Los Angeles Still Grows.
Tigers, Beware.
The Potato Chip Lady.
500,000 Sunkist Dollars.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 20.

THIS CITY, looking west across the Pacific, back to the mountains and the effete East, is climbing up the mountains in all directions. Land that was once desert worth fifty cents an acre is now worth ten thousand and a great deal more. And this ceaselessly growing city is spreading north to San Francisco, south toward San Diego, and the "depression" has not checked it.

DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS has gone to India, taking letters from the Duke of Sutherland to the Marajah of Mysore, and letters from other dukes to other marajahs, princes and potentates, plus a letter of credit, which is important. Fairbanks will shoot real tigers from the back of a real elephant in the Mysore territory. His cameraman goes along and his director to tell the tigers what is expected of them.

FEMININE SUCCESS here is not reserved to 18-year-old Hollywood ladies with golden hair and very large eyes. For instance Mrs. Laura Scudder will interest you, if you are a lady about forty. Ill health compelled her husband to drop his law practice and his doctors said he must be interested in something. Mrs. Scudder immediately went into business, manufacturing and selling potato chips. Now she employs 40 trucks to deliver the chips and makes as much money as one of the trucks could haul.

LOS ANGELES, where such crowds pour over the sidewalks as you never saw even in New York or Chicago, is widening many city streets, getting ready for the future.

And the roads of approach from the East are widened and straightened. Fifty-seven dangerous curves have just been taken out of the Cajon Pass road, leading back to Victorsville, Barstow and points East. The roads are made less romantic but safer. They are also made sometimes much steeper they they were, because modern automobiles can climb anything.

ORANGE GROWERS of the Sunkist organization here made a special fund of $500,000, intending to buy up the surplus crop, destroy it and prevent a break in the market. On wise second thought the 12,000 citrus farmers decided to add the $500,000 to this year's advertising appropriation and will spend more than two and a quarter million dollars in their 1931 campaign, a good example to other business men.

BETWEEN SATURDAY night's darkness and Sunday morning's daylight thousands of tons of rock fell from the top of Niagara Falls on the American side.

Thus Niagara's cliff travels gradually upstream, and in a few million years, cliff and cataract will have disappeared. But long before that happens men will have harnessed the tides, the earth's internal heat, the sun's limitless power, perhaps releasing also the inconceivable force locked up in the atom.

THOSE MEN OF A. D. 10,000,000 will talk of days when men took their puny power from waterfalls, as we talk of early agriculturists that harnessed their old wives to the plow, while the young, newest wife held the plow handles, guiding a sharp stick hardened in the fire.

DR. BLAISDELL, expert in skin diseases, says we ought to stop shaking hands and adopt the ancient Roman method of salutation, grasping a friend by the arm. Next to indiscriminate kissing, and unprotected sneezing, handshaking is the most efficient method of germ distribution. Dr. Blaisdell can prove to you that when President Hoover shook hands with 5,000 people on New Year's day, he collected at least 50,000,000 germs. The President washed them off carefully, of course, but not everybody does that.

AT PALM SPRINGS, near here, another case of sandy desert blooming into solid gold, Samuel Untermyer of New York sits on his veranda waiting for Prof. Einstein, who does not come because he has a bad cold. Prof. Einstein has been shaking hands ever since he landed in America.

IN JAPAN, 50 are dying every day of the so-called "Spanish influenza" with which the war made us too familiar. The disease is virulently active in Spain, also.

In China many are dying of the influenza in Shensi province, and from hunger and cold also. We should be grateful for our blessings and not complain so much of a depression, now near its end.

DEATH WHEN it comes is not so bad.

Guides traveling in the North entered a lonely hut at Long Rapids, on Hay River, and found a skeleton, holding in its bony hand a letter addressed to the mother of James Eldon Williams, of Albany, Cal. It said:

"The sun is shining, mother, but I feel so cold. I can still walk a little, but that's about all. I haven't eaten for so long, or seen another human being for 40 days. I have some cards but I don't care for solitaire. The only thing I worry about is if God will forgive me for my sins."

Williams imprudently had tried the Hay River trip alone. God, let us all hope, will forgive him for his sins, freezing to death there being perhaps equivalent to burning later on. The man probably died without pain. Nature is merciful.

Governor Dedicates His Term to Battle on Utility Trusts and 'Machines'

Staff Correspondent.

HARRISBURG, Jan. 20.—Gifford Pinchot today took oath of office as governor of Pennsylvania for the second time and dedicated his administration to extermination of "combined machine and public utility control of government."

Lashing out furiously with more than his accustomed vigor, the new chief executive in his 20-minute inaugural address declared war to the hilt upon predatory public utility interests which he charged are attempting not only to usurp the power of the state, but to control the nation as well.

'ATTACK UPON PEOPLE'

His direct accusation asserted:

Here in Pennsylvania a carefully planned, elaborately financed, and powerfully directed attack upon the rule of the people under the law has made substantial progress. It aims to substitute government by the public utilities for government by the people. It is not confined to Pennsylvania. Not a single state in the Union is free from a similar attempt."

This attempt, the Governor declared, is not fostered by Pennsylvanians, but by men "having their seat of power in another state and whose effort is part of a wider attempt to control the nation.

BID FOR PRESIDENCY

Political experts, considering the power controversy now raging between President Hoover and the United States Senate, saw a bold bid for the presidency in 1932 by Mr. Pinchot in extending the public utility battle lines from a state to the national boundaries.

The very first sentence of the address was a declaration of national warfare. Amplifying the familiar battlecry of Pennsyl-

HOOVER GOING TO MARION

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—(AP.)—President Hoover today accepted an invitation to dedicate the Harding Memorial at Marion, O., some time after May.

The invitation was formally extended by former Senator Frelinghuysen, of New Jersey, chairman of the Harding Memorial Commission. He said Calvin Coolidge also would be invited to attend the ceremonies.

The exact date for the dedication has not been fixed, but it will be sometime during the summer.

President Hoover recently indicated that he would participate in the dedication ceremonies if formally invited.

An official of the commission, however, at that time said invitations had previously been extended and doubted another would be issued.

BLAINE OFFERS AMENDMENT

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—(INS.)—Within a few minutes after the report of the Wickersham Commission was laid before Congress today, Senator Blaine (Rep.), of Wisconsin, introduced a constitutional amendment designed to carry out, in part, the recommendation of the commission for revising the Eighteenth Amendment.

Blaine took the text of the amendment proposed in the commission's conclusions, and erased three words, "or to prohibit," making the proposed amendment read:

"Section 1. The Congress shall have the power to regulate (or prohibit deleted) the manufacture, traffic in or transportation of intoxicating liquors within,

Dague Gloomy, But Irene Hopes to Escape Chair

NEW CASTLE, Pa., Jan. 20.—(AP.)—W. Glenn Dague, sentenced to die in the electric chair next month with Irene Schroeder for the slaying of a highway patrolman, holds little hope that the Pardon Board will intervene.

This was revealed by Al Lesher, Detroit youth, who talked with Dague while confined in jail pending the outcome of injuries suffered by William Love, who was struck by Lesher's machine.

On the jail calendar Dague has marked in red the date he expects to be taken to the Rockview death house with Mrs. Schroeder.

The death sentences of the pair have been upheld by the Supreme Court. Favorable action by the pardon board and governor remains as their only hope.

Irene, visited by relatives Sunday, spent much of the time discussing prospects of the pardon board hearing and expressed hope she would escape the electric chair.

Included among the woman's visitors was her little son, Donnie. She held the child most of the time during his stay and showered him with affection.

A 12-page letter was received by Mrs. Schroeder today from Mrs. Ella Mountz, of Smith's Mills, who has interested herself in the case. The contents of the letter was not given out.

Our Woes Told By Wickersham In 100,000 Words

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

Wickersham report sent to President yesterday. Went to Congress today.

Mr. Wickersham should get it back tomorrow.

Condensed to 100,000 words.

But 100,000 words isn't a bad start.

After Congress gets the words it will be set to music. Then the doleful scenario will be switched to Hollywood, where the continuity writers can take a whack at it.

By the time it gets back it will be something entirely different. It will be carried as a rider on the harbor and garage bill and will be an amendment compelling deep-sea divers to wrap their lunches in waterproof paper.

Bootleggers have nothing to

TWO DIE ON WAY TO INAUGURAL

LIVERPOOL, Pa., Jan. 20.—(AP.)—Two former Montour County state assemblymen were killed and Victor A. Olsen, a Montour County judge, was seriously injured this morning, near here, while driving to the inaugural ceremonies at Harrisburg.

The dead are J. B. Gerhart and Sharpless Dietz, both of Danville.

The car, driven by Judge Olsen, skidded on the icy road and crashed into an abutment.

Brother of Wickersham Here, Shies at Report

At least one man in America today didn't care to comment on the Wickersham committee report to the President.

White haired, 82, handsome, Thomas Wickersham sat in his home in 113 Third avenue, Aspinwall, eager to talk to George W. Wickersham, chairman of the commission, his brother. Retired from his career in the steel industry, he like to reminisce. Asked about today's liquor problems, he said:

"There's no use commenting on it. I don't want to see the report. I never dabble in my brother's business. And, anyhow, what's the use of my talking about it after the report has been submitted.

"But my brother? We correspond every week. He's worked hard. He doesn't like the limelight, is rather reticent. President Taft was very urgent or he would never have become a member of his cabinet.

"Know how he got to be a lawyer? Back in 1876, he got a job at the World's Fair grounds in Philadelphia. He got up early and walked to work, saving the carfare. He read his law books on the long walk. His seriousness must have impressed a judge, who took him into his office to study."

Mr. Wickersham told how their ancestors came from England to this country in the seventeenth century. They were Quakers, he said, concluding:

STRICTER ENFORCEMENT URGED IN BADLY SPLIT WICKERSHAM REPORT

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—A badly divided Wickersham commission rendered its long-awaited report on prohibition today after 18 months of laborious investigation and from it both the drys and anti-drys can extract some measure of comfort. Probably it will please neither.

The commission found that prohibition was a noble undertaking, but it is not being adequately enforced, that it never has been adequately enforced, and that there is grave doubt whether it ever can be adequately enforced.

It recommended against repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment—yet six of the 11 members of the commission, a majority, revealed themselves individually to be in favor of either outright repeal or revision of the amendment.

It recommended against any scheme of having either the federal government or the individual states "go in the liquor business" as has been done in Canada—yet the same majority individually recommended favorable consideration of a modified Swedish plan of liquor control which would have the national and state governments supervise and regulate the sale of liquor on the card system.

OPPOSE FEDERAL CONTROL

It recommended greater appropriations, more federal agents and more equipment with which to try to enforce the existing set-up which a majority of the members individually consider unenforceable.

These are only a few of the many anomalies contained in the report of nearly 100,000 words which took a year and a half and the expenditure of half a million dollars to compile.

As President Hoover transmitted the bulky document to Congress today, a somewhat bewildered but very much interested Congress received it.

Other principal features of the report were:

HOOVER HOSTILE TO SUBSTITUTE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—(INS.)—President Hoover does not approve the Wickersham prohibition report in its entirety, although he considers it a valuable contribution to the whole field of prohibition discussion.

Specifically, Mr. Hoover approves the recommendation of a majority of the commission against the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment, but he "sees serious objections" to the alternative amendment which the commission proposed, which would have the effect of throwing the whole problem of liquor control back into the hands of Congress.

The President expressed his attitude in a comparatively brief letter to Congress today, accompanying the report. The President declared that he was "in unity with the spirit of the report," although he made the specific reservation with regard to the proposed substitute for the Eighteenth Amendment.

Wickersham Dry Law Report In Brief

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—(AP.) Here is the report of the Law Enforcement Commission in a nutshell:

The majority report opposed outright repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment. Two of the members favored it.

Light wines and beer were discarded by the commission as a whole. Four of the commissioners urged this legislation.

The majority report favored a further trial for prohibition. Five of the members concurred in their individual reports.

As a group the commission opposed entry of the federal or state governments into the liquor business. One member proposed a plan to this end, however, and five more urged its consideration.

A majority agreed there has been "no adequate observance or enforcement" of prohibition, and that machinery to this end remains inadequate.

All agreed enforcement should be strengthened. Some believed this strengthening should hold only until the amendment is repealed or revised.

PINCHOT SWORN IN, PLEDGES BATTLE AGAINST TRUSTS

Governor Dedicates His Term to Fight on Utilities And Political Machines

vania the Governor plunged heatedly into the subject.

"Two forces are struggling for control of the governments of Pennsylvania and the United States.

UNDERCOVER BATTLE

"One fights in the open, representing the theory of government set forth in the Declaration of Independence and established by the sacrifices of our forefathers. Its central principle is the right of a free people to govern themselves.

"The other force operates under cover. It is directed by hidden powers for the advantage of a few against the interests of the many."

Then, reviewing the planks of his campaign platform, Gov. Pinchot declared that the people of Pennsylvania had registered their determination to manage their public affairs for themselves and by their decision had imposed upon his administration and the General Assembly before all other duties the duty of making and keeping the government of Pennsylvania free from public utility domination.

CHALLENGE ISSUED

"I deny the right of this invisible government to exist in free America. I challenge the men who are working for it to come into the open and to acknowledge in plain words that they are attempting to accomplish by secret action. Back of the public utilities in their attack on our American form of government is the whole fabric of political corruption, the underworld, the protected racketeer and criminals of high and low degree."

As a first step the Governor asserted the Public Service Commission must be abolished and replaced with a Fair Rate Board. The Public Service Commission he termed "the catspaw of the corporations, unfaithful to the people and worse than useless." The Fair Rate Board, he said, would be elected by districts so that every part of the state will be represented, and its duties he listed as reviewing and reducing every unjust rate now charged by any electric, gas, water, trolley, bus or other public utility under any authority.

CLEAN ELECTIONS

In his attack upon "gang" control, Gov. Pinchot said:

"Clean elections was a principal issue in the recent campaign. The new administration will leave nothing undone to carry through the will of the voters that election crookedness shall cease to disgrace our state."

Citing his appointment of the state-wide Committee on Unemployment even before his taking office, he pledged his best efforts to relieve unemployment and restore prosperity by laying before the Assembly promptly a concrete plan for relief of the state's jobless.

NEW TAXES BANNED

At the same time he asserted there will be no requests for new taxes and he further promised to "lift the present unjust burden of taxes from the farmer, the home owner and the business man by equalizing taxes."

Of the prohibition issue the Governor said it was well known that he not only believed in enforcing the Eighteenth Amendment because it is a law, but because he is a convinced supporter of the amendment itself, concluding:

"This administration will be dry."

COAL POLICE ABOLITION

The Governor reiterated his determination to abolish the coal and iron police and replace it with officers selected and commanded by the commonwealth and paid by it at company expense.

Other platform pledges repeated included those: To give every child an equal chance for education; to prevent unfair use of labor injunctions; to secure old age pensions for the helpless poor and to secure state assistance for disabled and neglected ex-service men.

the importation thereof into and the exportation thereof from the United States and all territory subject to the jurisdiction thereof for beverage purposes."

As soon as President Hoover's message and the Wickersham report were read to the Senate, the report and the individual recommendations of its 11 members were submitted to the Judiciary Committee for consideration.

MIXED FEELING

The report was received in Congress with mixed feelings and a great deal of reserve.

Generally speaking the drys had high praise of the conclusion not to recommend repeal of the eighteenth amendment, modification of the Volstead act and the proposal to increase the enforcement facilities. But they refrained from comment on that phase which proposed eventual change.

Waving aside the report, Senator Borah said the issue was "repeal or no repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment" and that was up to the people alone. He said:

"I should like to see those opposed to the Eighteenth Amendment present their alternative and let the people choose between the two propositions in an orderly and proper fashion."

SHEPPARD "DEE-LIGHTED"

Senator Morris Sheppard (Dem.) of Texas, one of the authors of the Eighteenth Amendment and a radical dry, declared he was "dee-lighted" with the report.

Senator Couzens (Rep.) of Michigan, said:

"The report will not have any great weight with either Congress or the country. The situation has got beyond the point of settlement by any group of men or even Congress itself.

"The only solution will be by the people through a referendum directing Congress what to do. All other attempts are destined to failure."

Representative La Guardia (Rep.) of New York, a wet, limiting his comment to recommendations and conclusions, assailed the commission's report, saying:

"Taking it all in all, the conclusions and recommendations constitute an apology for prohibition. The commission lacks courage to recommend repeal and makes an attempt to satisfy the drys, yet give the wets a drink."

While Clark was announcing this appointment a dozen or more politicians were hanging around Mayor Kline's office trying to land for their respective candidates the fifth detective appointment authorized by Council for 1931.

SEEKING TRUCE ON RELIEF

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—(INS.)—Faced with President Hoover's opposition to a direct appropriation for unemployment and drought relief, administration leaders on Capitol Hill today were seeking compromise of the controversy over federal aid for the needy.

The Senate was on record, for the second time, in favor of a direct appropriation of $25,000,000 to the American Red Cross. Administration leaders of the House announced they would not accept this provision, but Democratic leaders declared the House would approve it by an overwhelming majority if given an opportunity to vote on it.

A compromise may be drafted, providing the federal fund shall be only a "loan" to the Red Cross, to be repaid by popular subscriptions. Speaker Longworth (Rep.) of Ohio, was reported as favoring a "50-50" plan by which the government fund would be allotted only when "matched" by popular subscriptions to the Red Cross.

The Senate's action in approving the fund by a vote of 56 to 27—a two-thirds majority—was interpreted generally as a rebuke to the President.

POMP LACKING AS PINCHOT TAKES OATH

Governor Wears Slouch Hat, Drives to Stand in Old Victoria; Wild Welcome

A great gathering of citizens saw the tall, slender, gray-haired political warrior sworn in at ceremonies which he sought to keep devoid of ostentation and pomp. In keeping with his desire for a simple and informal inauguration, the veteran campaigner wore the soft, gray, slouch hat so familiar to those who have seen him in his recent "stumping" tours of Pennsylvania.

Like the omission of the usual high silk hat from the heads of the inaugural ceremony participants was the use of an ancient horse-drawn victoria in which the retiring Governor John S. Fisher and his successor rode from the Executive Mansion to the Capitol for the induction ceremonies. This carriage was formerly the property of the late William A. Stone, who was governor from 1899 to 1903.

AUTOS PREFERRED

Horse-drawn vehicles were abandoned in inauguration ceremonies in this state after the induction of John K. Tener in 1911, the victorias of the earlier days being replaced with the latest models of the more expensive automobiles.

As he took the oath of office, moreover, Pinchot today became the second chief executive who has been elected for two terms in Pennsylvania since the adoption of the constitution of 1873. Not since January 20, 1891, had a governor of this commonwealth been inducted into office for a second term. On that previous occasion 40 years ago today, Robert Emory Pattison, Pennsylvania's last Democratic governor, took his second oath of office.

Today's ceremony reversed that of four years ago when Gov. Fisher took office and Mr. Pinchot was ending his first term as chief executive. Here, too, was a parallel with the inauguration of 40 years ago, for James Addison Beaver had Pattison both as his predecessor and successor.

NOISY WELCOME

While Mr. Pinchot's induction ceremonies lacked much of the pomp and ceremony of other like proceedings, he did not want for vociferous and demonstrative greeting from the thousands of persons who witnessed his return to the state's highest office.

At 11:15 a. m. Gov. Fisher and Gov.-elect Pinchot left the Executive Mansion and were escorted in the venerable victoria by the Governor's Troop (Troop 1, 104th Cavalry, Pennsylvania National Guard) to the Capitol. On arriving there the retiring and incoming governors went to the governor's office in the south wing of the building to await the arrival of the governor's party in the reception room of the executive suite. Fifteen minutes later the party marched to the rotunda, where they were joined by the legislators and proceeded to the stand at Third and State streets in front of the Capitol. There they were seated in accordance with their rank.

The governor's party comprised Mr. Fisher and Mr. Pinchot, Senator William H. Earnest, Harrisburg, chairman of the inaugural committee; Chief Justice Robert S. Frazer, of the State Supreme Court; Lieut. Gov. E. C. Shannon and retiring Lieut. Gov. Arthur H. James; Chief Clerk of the Senate John E. McKirdy, the Rev. Dr. J. W. Claudy, of Pittsburgh; members of the inaugural committee, the Appellate Court members, heads of elective departments, members of the new cabinet and invited guests.

ERIE, Pa., Jan. 20.—(AP.)—Wide-eyed boys and girls, accustomed to seeing their two-gun hero, Tom Mix, keeping his word in filmland romances no matter what the odds, have heard him described in Erie County Court as one who in real life made and broke promises.

The youths pushed into the crowded courtroom and corridors to glimpse Mix, on hand with his sombrero and boots, as trial opened in the $325,000 breach of contract suit brought by Zack Miller, owner of the 101 Ranch and Circus. FOES OF DAIX IN SENATE PUNISHED

Coyne Among Chairmen Given Minor Jobs for Fighting Philadelphian's Election

By E. P. O'BRIEN,
Staff Correspondent.

HARRISBURG, Jan. 20.—Fate of 22 Senators who voted for Senator W. D. Mansfield for president pro tempore of the Senate in Gov. Pinchot's caucus fight against retention of Senator A. F. Daix, Jr., in that office was revealed today.

Six were demoted from major to minor chairmanships, including James J. Coyne; seven were retained as committee heads, among them Morris Einstein, Frank J. Harris and W. D. Mansfield, and nine failed to land chairmanships.

Young "Joe" Armstrong, bab member, who supported Daix, succeeded the veteran James E. Norton as chairman of the insuran committee. Herman P. Bran heads the public printing committee.

DEADLOCK ENDED

Daix granted five chairmanships to the Philadelphia delegation. Announcement of the assignments ended the deadlock which had delayed Senate business. The Senate slate committee is expected to hand out 100 employe jobs today.

Allegheny County fared well in the House assignments, landing eight of the 40 chairmanships. They are:

Appropriations—Dr. Joseph G. Steedle, McKees Rocks.

Judiciary General—James H. McClure, of Glassport.

Cities—W. F. Stadtlander, North Side.

Boroughs—L. W. Hagmaier, Aspinwall.

Constitutional Amendments—William T. Bell, South Side.

Repeal Bills—E. B. Goehring, Pittsburgh.

BATTLE OVER JOB

The Senate was said to be in a deadlock on the appointment of the assistant secretary of the Senate. It was the Daix-Mansfield battle being fought over again. Senator John G. Homsher, chairman of the slate committee by virtue of his chairmanship of the Senate caucus, holds the key to the situation. He named three Daix men and three Mansfield men. Homsher voted for Mansfield and paid the price when the Senate committees were announced. William Hillgrove, of Pittsburgh, is the incumbent. Senator Armstrong is backing Roy G. Walters and Senator James J. Coyne named Attorney Dennis Mulvihill.

Action on confirmation of Gov. Pinchot's cabinet is expected to reveal the battle against the Governor being carried to the floor of the Senate. Senators were circularized today against confirmation of Samuel S. Lewis as secretary of highways. Opposition has developed to the confirmation of Richard J. Beamish as secretary of the commonwealth.

County Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong, who came here for the inauguration, said he was taking no part in the battle his son is waging over Walters.

The proposed loan, according to its terms, would be repaid in five installments bearing 2 per cent interest.

A DAISY THAT TELLS—EVERYTHING!

DAISY DeVOE IN THE COURTROOM WHEN CAMERA CAUGHT HER IN APPREHENSIVE MOMENT

Miss Daisy, Clara Bow's big-time, one-time, two-time secretary, pictured in the Los Angeles courtroom where she's on trial for grand theft from Clara. And so she's telling a lot of things, everything apparently that she learned about red-headed Clara Bow socially, professionally.

Clara Bow's Ex-Secretary Breaks Under Grilling

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 20.—(INS.)—Cross-examination of Miss Daisy De Voe, former secretary and "Pal" of Clara Bow, was to be continued today at her trial before Superior Judge W. C. Doran here on a charge of embezzling $16,000 from the titian-haired "It" girl of the films.

The blonde Miss De Voe's inquisitor was to be Prosecutor David Clark, under whose grilling the defendant momentarily lost yesterday the composure that has marked her demeanor since the opening of the trial. The cause of Daisy's break was a barrage of questions about how much of Miss Bow's money she had given to her mother, Mrs. Ida De Voe.

Yesterday's session lost much of its potential drama at its outset when Judge Doran, by an order ruling out "mud slinging," prevented Daisy from carrying out a threat to "tell all" and continue a narrative she began last Friday about Miss Bow's life at home. The first installment of this story contained allusions to "boy friends," liquor and gambling.

Under cross-examination Miss De Voe denied that she ever had demanded $125,000 for the return of letters and telegrams sent to Miss Bow by "boy friends." She also denied an alleged admission that she had stolen $35,000 from her former employer, and declared that all her buying with Miss Bow's money had been on the screen star's orders.

Miss Bow, ill with bronchitis following her brief court appearance last week, was not present at the trial yesterday. Rex Bell, former cowboy actor and Miss De Voe's successor as Clara's secretary, was in the courtroom.

Famine Threat Must Be Met, Coolidge Declares

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., Jan. 20.

To the Editor of the Sun-Telegraph:

It would be difficult to recall when the American Red Cross has appealed to the people in vain for money. The request is now made for $10,000,000.

While that is a large sum it is less than the daily cost of the national government. No one can doubt the ability of the country easily to meet this requirement.

Calvin Coolidge

The emergency is acute and urgent. The large centers of population are able to care for their needy and generally are doing it. The great stretches of open country where drought has been superimposed upon bad business conditions are unable to relieve the most intense suffering without outside assistance. Many people in those areas are on the border of starvation. They are face to face with famine.

Such an unusual condition in our domestic experience makes it extremely difficult for our people to realize it, but the suffering does exist. It must be relieved. No more compelling demand has been presented to private charity since the war. The situation is such that it is not too much to say that our whole social organization is on trial. A comparatively small expenditure made now will avert a possible future calamity.

CALVIN COOLIDGE.

KAY, MACKENNA SECRETLY WED

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Jan. 20.—(AP.)—Kay Francis and Kenneth MacKenna, featured film players, returned home last night as man and wife. They were married at Avalon, Santa Catalina Island, Saturday, after eluding friends.

When they applied for a marriage license here last week, they revealed for the first time their secret romance. Wishing to keep their wedding a secret, at least until it was over, they refused to disclose their plans.

They boarded MacKenna's yacht and sailed away, leaving the impression they were bound for Ensenada, Mexico, but only sailed around Santa Catalina a few times before going ashore.

A justice of the peace read the ceremony. It was Miss Francis' third wedding and MacKenna's first.

NEW YORK, Jan. 20.—(AP.)—Warner Brothers, Inc., announced that Kay Francis had been signed to an exclusive long-term contract. She has been in the employ of Paramount-Publix.

Kills Wife, Self, Wounds Two Sons

BALTIMORE, Jan., 20.—(AP.)—Closing all windows and turning on four gas jets in the kitchen of his home today, a crazed man stabbed and killed his wife, seriously wounded two youthful sons who tried to subdue him, and then ended his own life.

State College Heads Re-elected at Meet

HARRISBURG, Jan. 20.—(AP.)—Present officers of the board of trustees of the Pennsylvania State College were re-elected at a meeting in the Department of Public Instruction offices. They are: President, J. Frank Shields, Philadelphia; vice president, James G. White, New York City; secretary, Dr. Ralph D. Hetzel, president of State College, and treasurer, W. G. Murtorff, State College.

Cook, Labor Leader, Has Leg Amputated

LONDON, Jan. 20.—(INS.)—The condition of A. J. Cook, British labor leader and secretary of the British Miners' Federation, was today reported satisfactory following amputation of his right leg at the knee, in Manor House Hospital.

Smudge Pots Balk California Frost

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 20.—(AP.)—Smudge pots burned in Southern California citrus groves early today. It was the second time temperatures had fallen below the freezing point since the last cold snap which ended January 2. Yesterday a low of 27 degrees was offset by the smudge pots, with no damage resulting, and this morning's nip was no more severe.

Fate of Missionary In China Unknown

PEIPING, Jan. 20.—(INS.)—The fate of Bert N. Nelson, American missionary, captured by roaming bandits several months ago and held for ransom, remained obscure today.

The American legation learned his captors have carried him from Hupeh Province into Anwei Province, but information as to his physical condition remained unavailable.

Deputy Fire Chief Halted in Auto Light Drive

It was the big red automobile in which Deputy Fire Chief Frank Jones was riding. Jones stepped out, commended the patrolman and instructed his chauffeur to get a new bulb immediately.

MAGAZINE SALE FINE APPEALED

An appeal from the fine imposed in Police Court upon Blanchard Wright, who was arrested for selling magazines on a downtown street, has been taken by the League for Industrial Democracy. Attorney Morris Schneirov filed the appeal. The magazine, "The Unemployed," is published by the league.

Sarah Limbach, a representative of the league, has written a letter to Mayor Charles H. Kline, asking for an interview to arrange for permission to have unemployed men sell the magazine on downtown streets. In the letter it is stated that Director James M. Clark, of the Public Safety Department, made an appointment with representatives of the league, but left them "cooling their heels" in his reception room.

AUTO DISPLAYS DRAW CROWDS

Large crowds are continuing to attend the thirty-first annual automobile show of the Pittsburgh Automobile Dealers' Association being staged this week in Motor Square Garden. Local automobile men predicted that the crowd tonight would be the largest since the show opened Saturday.

More than 40 makers of automobiles have displays in the show. Among them are cars to suit every taste and purse. An addition to the display was made yesterday when Marmon put in the latest entry, the new 16-cylinder coupe, designed by Col. Howard Marmon, and awarded a medal by the Society of Automotive Engineers for outstanding achievement in the perfecting of the new machine.

A feature of the show last night was the presence of Knute Rockne, of Notre Dame, world authority on coach-work, who broadcast from the Garden over Station KDKA. Don Bestor's Victor Recorders furnished special music.

WALES, GEORGE CROSSING SEA

VIGO, Spain, Jan. 20.—(INS.)—The liner Oropesa, carrying the Prince of Wales and his brother, Prince George, was on the high seas today headed for Bermuda after pausing briefly at the two Spanish ports of Corunna and Vigo.

The royal party debarked at Corunna for a trip down the Spanish coast by motor and boarded the Oropesa again at this port. The vessel left Vigo harbor for its long trip across the North Atlantic at 2:00 a. m.

Enthusiastic crowds welcomed the British princes and their entourage here, and city officials tendered them a banquet at the city hall. They arrived at Vigo at 8 p. m. after a day of festivity and ceremony at Corunna.

Plane Hits Eagle, 2 Soldier Fliers Die

LAHORE, India, Jan. 20.—(AP.)—Two military airmen were killed at Risalpur today when their plane collided at 800 feet with an eagle whose wings reached eight feet from tip to tip. One airman jumped, but his parachute failed to open. The other was killed in the crash.

SLEUTHS LINKED WITH NUMBERS

An alleged numbers writer testified in East End Police Court today that he was employed by the two city detectives who had arrested him. He was held for court at their request by Magistrate Charles Papale.

Dominic Ciquegrani, 45, of 710 Graphic street, was taken in custody at Beacon street and Murray avenue yesterday, according to testimony of Detectives James Noon and Robert Burke. Ciquegrani testified:

"They arrested me because they thought I was cheating them. They tell me where to get business and I work for them and Tom Smith."

Sewickley Firm Gets State Road Contract

HARRISBURG, Jan. 20.—(AP.)—The State Department of Highways announced the award of a contract to D. W. Challis & Sons Inc., of Sewickley, for $178,971 to place 2.68 miles of concrete and 0.91 mile macadam on route 678 in Ohio and Franklin townships in Allegheny County.

POLICE TO BURN BOZO BEACH

No smoke circles lazily from makeshift chimneys at Bozo Beach today. For Bozo Beach, refuge of insurgent vagrants, is deserted. And police will shortly destroy the six ramshackle sheds which housed their former occupants.

The ragged rebels spurned aid offered by a welfare institution here. They wouldn't wash their feet nightly as required by the rules of the Helping Hand, and founded their own settlement on the waterfront, near Ferry street, on the Monongahela River.

But today the entire population, 27 Negroes and three white men, were arraigned in Central Police Court on charges of vagrancy. Merchants complained they had been raiding truckloads of edibles. Magistrate Leo Rothenberg recommended that police burn the shacks.

The shabby settlers are headed for a 30-day excursion to the workhouse.

John Davis, 21, and Manuel Ford, 20, Negroes, who reside on the wharf, were saved from a court trial today because the evidence against them was chickens.

John and Manuel admitted taking nine chickens from the A. L. Brahm store in Penn avenue, but Magistrate Thomas D. Jones, in Morals Court, explained that he would not hold them for court because then it would be necessary to preserve the poultry as evidence. They were fined $50 each or 60 days in jail.

Planning Book, Girl Speeder Chooses Jail

NEW YORK, Jan. 20.—(AP.)—Fined $25 for automobiling too fast, Miss Ida Binney, of Norwalk, Conn., 19, has gone to jail for two days rather than pay it. She wishes to see what things are like behind the bars, in order to write a book.

Sends Ortiz Rubio $25,000 Gift Horse

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Jan. 20.—(AP.)—A thoroughbred horse valued at more than $25,000, a gift from R. W. Morrison, of San Antonio, to Pascual Ortiz Rubio, president of Mexico, will leave here this week for Laredo, to be transferred to a special car for Mexico City.

Republican Women Elect Mrs. Pinchot

HARRISBURG, Jan. 20.—(AP.)—Mrs. Gifford Pinchot, wife of Gov.-elect Pinchot, was elected to the board of directors of the Pennsylvania Council of Republican Women. A committee of three was named to inform Mrs. Pinchot of her election.

The directors of the council approved the committee assignments for the year and then voted to remain in Harrisburg for the inauguration today.

Sportsmen's Plane Drops Feed to Game

HAZLETON, Pa., Jan. 20.—(AP.)—An airplane rented from the Lehighton Airport by the County Sportsman's Association, was used yesterday in dropping 500 pounds of feed in the woodlands of the four corners of the county to feed wild game.

FARRELL SEES INDUSTRY GAIN

CHICAGO, Jan. 20.—(AP.)—In the opinion of James A. Farrell, president of the United States Steel Corporation, the last 30 days "have given ample evidence of considerable increase not only in the steel industry but in collateral and unrelated lines."

Addressing a joint meeting of the National Canners and National Wholesale Grocers Associations, he attributed the upturn to "steady, cool-headed thinking" and to "constructive efforts to avert panic," saying:

"I am confident of our steady progress toward better times, because of the fundamental soundness of our institutions, of the basic resources of our country, of its wealth and standing as a creditor nation. The relief given to the unemployed and the general adherence to the payment of fair wages prevailing through industry have undoubtedly hastened the recovery which is impending."

Farrell warned against wage reductions, asserting that, in his opinion, a general lowering of wages would set back the impending recovery by at least two years and "would complete the disaster by adding them (wage earners) to the mass of restricted purchasers."

Dog Catcher Quits, Pound Puzzles City

EVANSTON, Ill., Jan. 20.—(AP.)—One of the really important questions pending in Evanston is whether there should be a dog pound here, now that the official dog catcher is out of his job. The argument the Mayor put up was: What good is a pound without having anyone to put dogs into it, the dog catcher having quit work January 1 because the appropriation for his salary was exhausted.

Police Radio Here Approved by U. S.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—The Federal Radio Commission today authorized the City of Pittsburgh to erect a new police radio station to operate on 1712 kilocycles with 400 watts power.

Public Safety Director James M. Clark, notified by Congressman Harry A. Estep of the granting of a permit, stated he expected to have the station in operation within a month.

Omit Flowers, Aid Jobless, McCann Funeral Plea

Funeral services were being arranged today for Dr. Alfred W. McCann, 52, author and lecturer and former Pittsburgher, who died in his apartment in New York yesterday, a short time after he had finished a daily food lecture over the radio. His wife was the former Miss May C. Carmody of Pittsburgh.

Mrs. McCann today asked friends who planned to send flowers to the funeral to contribute the money to the aid of the unemployed.

Born in Pittsburgh, Dr. McCann was educated at Duquesne University, Fordham College and at the University of Chicago. For a short time he appeared on the stage, at one time in a play with E. H. Southern. He was widely known as a lecturer and a radio speaker on pure food subjects and as a defender of religion against Darwinism.

Among his works as an author was "God or Gorilla," "Starving America," "This Famishing World," later entitled "Science of Eating;" "The Science of Keeping Young," and "Greatest of Men—Washington." Dr. McCann was the principal speaker at the dedication of Canevin Hall at Duquesne University in 1923, at which time he was honored with the degree of doctor of literature.

At the time of his death he conducted a laboratory in New York. He had made his home in Yonkers for several years. He leaves his widow, two sons, Justin C. McCann and Alfred W. McCann, Jr., and three daughters, Miss Frances, Miss Muriel and Miss Rose Mary McCann.

BIG AD PROGRAM BY AUTO FIRM

The Studebaker Corporation of America will spend $800,000 for advertising during the first three months of 1931, Paul G. Hoffman, vice president and sales director of the corporation announced last night. This is the corporation's evidence of its faith in the return of prosperity. The announcement was made at a banquet of the Studebaker Sales Company in McCann's East Liberty dining room, which also was addressed by Knute Rockne, coach of the Notre Dame College football team. In his address Rockne discussed incidents of his gridiron career.

Mr. Hoffman.

Hoffman's address dwelt chiefly with "free wheeling," a Studebaker innovation, which he described as the greatest development in motordom since the adoption of the self-starter.

The executive also complimented various Pennsylvania dealers on their sales records of preceding months, and urged concentrated sales efforts during the coming year.

That the Studebaker Corporation would not hinder development by other firms of the new transmission and clutch as found in "free wheeling" was indicated by Hoffman. He said in a few years the principle would be common to all makes of cars. He said the automobile outlook for the coming year was good, and announced the expenditure of $800,000 for advertising purposes.

Fred L. Dennis, president of the Studebaker Sales Company, Baum boulevard, was toastmaster. He introduced Paul Castner, sales manager of the Studebaker-Pierce Arrow Corporation, who discussed a new line of trucks his company was placing on the motor market. The new Studebaker trucks will range from 1½ to eight tons.

M. E. Hewins, manager of the Cleveland branch of the Studebaker Corporation, which includes the Pittsburgh area, also gave a brief address. Hewins recently was transferred from the Los Angeles branch.

25 PLAN SUITS OVER TAX LEVY

About 25 appeals to Common Pleas Court on city assessments in the Lincoln avenue district, Twelfth Ward, have been filed with Attorney Hymen Schlesinger who predicts that about twice that number will be taken.

Meetings with taxpayers of the district to consider court action originally scheduled to close last night will be extended to the end of the week. The conferences are being held in the office of Alderman William A. Means. It is explained that numerous taxpayers who originally contemplated court action have been held back by the expense which in some cases would be more than any possible benefit gained in a decreased assessment.

RULE RELEASES BALLOT BOXES

Fifty-seven ballot boxes are to be turned back to the County Commissioners, so they can be used in future elections, under an order made in Common Pleas Court by Judge James R. Macfarlane, on petition of Sheriff Robert S. Cain. The court had ordered 64 boxes impounded by the sheriff after the primary election May 20, for use of the special recount board. Later District Attorney Andrew T. Park had the sheriff turn over to him all the boxes and those in which sufficient evidence was found to warrant prosecutions are still in his charge. Seven boards were indicted, but several of the cases are yet to be tried.

If You're Losing Health Here's Good Advice

One man we know had lost a lot of weight. He felt all run down and out of sorts. His precious health was slipping away from him. So his doctor told him he'd have to take cod liver oil. But the poor fellow couldn't take cod liver oil. The nasty taste was just too much for him.

Then one night he discovered a little article in his evening paper. It told him that McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Tablets give all the benefits of the finest liquid cod liver oil. All the vitamins, all the healthful benefits are put into this tiny tasteless tablet form. He read that Good Housekeeping Institute had tested these tablets and given them its seal of approval.

This pale and sickly man got a box of McCoy's. And what a change it made in him! He's got a new grip on life now. His health is normal. He's full of pep and vigor. What McCoy's have done for him they'll do for you. So get your box today. 60 tablets—60 cents.

TEXT OF GOV. PINCHOT'S INAUGURAL ADDRESS

HARRISBURG, Jan. 20.

Two forces are struggling for control of the governments of Pennsylvania and of the United States. One fights in the open, and has done so since the birth of this Republic. It represents the theory of government set forth in the Declaration of Independence and established upon this Continent by the sacrifices of our forefathers. Its central principle is the right of a free people to govern themselves. It recognizes the duty and responsibility of government to protect the people.

The other force operates under cover. It is directed by hidden powers for the advantage of a few as against the interests of the many. Its motives and methods are disclosed only when attacks upon it drive them into the open. Its central purpose is to control the government and so prevent it from protecting the people against manifold extortions which take unjustly from the breadwinners many hundreds if not thousands of millions of dollars each year.

Liberty at Stake

What is at stake in this conflict is the continuance of that government by the people which triumphed over government by the few when America declared and achieved her freedom.

In the great future which opens before us our people will either remain masters of their own destiny, or they will once more become subjects of that type of government whose destruction was the object of the French Revolution in Europe and the American Revolution on this continent.

In this momentous struggle every citizen eventually must take his stand with one side or the other.

It has become politically fashionable to doubt and flout the capacity of the people to govern themselves. It has become the custom to exalt and advocate government by little groups of self-selected powerful men as against that government by the people in which our fathers so passionately believed.

The cynics who cast that doubt are everlastingly wrong. Government by the people is the American way, the right way. With all my heart and soul I believe in it. With all the power I have, I shall defend it. The preservation of our constitution, the prosperity of Pennsylvania, and the welfare of the plain people depend absolutely upon the perpetuation of the American form of government.

Quotes Penn

William Penn, founder of the Commonwealth, said this:

"Any government is free to the people under it, where the laws rule and the people are a party to these laws, and more than this is tyranny, oligarchy or confusion."

Here in Pennsylvania a carefully planned, elaborately financed and powerfully directed attack upon the rule of the people under the law has made substantial progress. It aims to substitute government by the public utilities for government by the people. It is not confined to Pennsylvania. Not a single state in the Union is free from a similar attempt.

With few exceptions the men who would thus transfer the government of this Commonwealth to great special interests are not Pennsylvanians. Their seat of power is in another state, and their effort to control the affairs of this Commonwealth is part of the wider attempt of the same men to control the Nation.

I deny the right of this invisible government to exist in free America. I challenge the men who are working for it to come into the open and to acknowledge in plain words what they are attempting to accomplish by secret action.

"Undercover Army"

The captains of the undercover army engaged in this raid upon our form of government, like the captains of the armies who fought against Washington, have their mercenaries. The Hessians of those days have their counterparts in the controlled and corrupt political machines of today. Politicians who procure men to debauch the ballot, vote thieves who nullify the franchise of honest citizens, political contractors whose graft supplies the cash for war hoards to use in crooked elections, public service commissions that listen complaisantly to their utility master's voice—these are the mercenaries without whom the public utilities would be powerless.

Back of the public utilities in their attack on our American form of government is the whole fabric of political corruption, the underworld, the protected racketeer, and criminals of high and low degree.

As the Hessians of the Revolution once held Philadelphia, so their successors hold it today. In their time our forefathers drove them out. So in our day must we.

For the second time in the history of Pennsylvania a man has been elected twice to the high office of governor. I approach my second term with firm reliance upon the Almighty, with clear purpose to do the right as God gives me to see the right, with a deep and humble sense of my responsibility, and with heartfelt gratitude to my fellow citizens.

Free From All Strings

I take office wholly free from any promise that is not a public promise, from any obligation that would hamper my full liberty to serve the commonwealth soberly, in honor and in truth.

My allegiance is first of all to the plain people, the men, the women and the children, whose servant I am, whose mandate I hold and whose interests I represent.

Eight years ago the task before the new administration was to relieve the state from the huge burden of debt into which many years of maladministration had plunged it, to substitute honest, economical and efficient government for waste and corruption, and to establish new political standards in this commonwealth.

The task today is to defeat the attack of the public utilities. Government by utility magnates must not be substituted for government by the people. We have no more compelling duty than to destroy the corruption upon which the power of the utilities depends.

Clean elections was a principal issue in the recent campaign. The new administration will leave nothing undone to carry through the will of the voters that election crookedness shall cease to disgrace our state.

Farm Relief

Other matters also require attention. The problem of farm relief exists in Pennsylvania and demands the most serious consideration. The farmer and his family need relief from excessive taxation and they need roads that will take them to their schools, churches and markets throughout the year. The two objects can be secured at once.

As I promised on the stump, in my first message I shall lay before the General Assembly a practical and workable plan for farm relief in these two essential directions—a plan to transfer from the farm people in the townships to the commonwealth the responsibility and the cost of maintaining 20,000 miles of rural roads. This is a greater mileage of state roads than any state in the Union has today.

Prosperity is a general blessing. Substantially, we all go up and down together. Prosperous business, like prosperous farming, is necessary for the prosperity of people who neither do business nor farm.

During my first term nothing was left undone to promote and defend honest business. Partly as a result, business grew better and work more plenty during those four years. I shall labor most earnestly for a return of the good times which marked by first administration.

Sees Obligation

I recognize the obligation upon every man in public office to exert his full power to promote the prosperity of honest business, and to prevent and defeat attacks upon it. This is especially true when, as now, millions are seeking a chance to work.

Prosperous business provides employment. Just at the moment opportunity to work is our greatest need.

The critical character of the unemployment problem was recognized when, without waiting for election, I appointed a state-wide committee on unemployment. This committee entered upon it duties at once. It has organized special committees in every county in the commonwealth, and is proceeding vigorously, intelligently, and with the most gratifying public co-operation to do what can be done in the present emergency.

But that is not enough. As with so many other evils, the best way to deal with unemployment is by prevention. A concrete plan for that purpose prepared by the committee on unemployment will be laid promptly before the General Assembly.

Remains Dry

On the wet and dry issue my record speaks louder than any words. It is well known not only that I believe in obeying and enforcing the Eighteenth Amendment because it is the law, but that I am a convinced supporter of the amendment itself. I repeat the declaration made in my first inaugural — this administration will be dry.

The depression from which not only Pennsylvania but the whole nation now suffers is necessarily reflected in diminishing revenues from taxation. So large a part of Pennsylvania's taxes is levied upon the capital stock of corporations that we are especially affected.

It is a fundamental principle of good government to spend no more than there is to spend. Eight years ago the commonwealth had appropriated more than $30,000,000 beyond its ability to pay. The first Pinchot administration reduced expenses and paid off this debt. The second Pinchot administration will keep the expenses of the commonwealth strictly within its income.

This is no time to load the burden of additional taxes upon the backs of the people. The decision to avoid new taxes means that many worthy causes which are asking for large increases in appropriations cannot receive them. I regret the necessity for refusing to ask for the new taxes which alone could make these increases possible, but I am confident that such a course is right, and that the taxpayers will support me in that refusal.

Will Inform Public

It is my intention to keep the voters of Pennsylvania fully informed as to the progress of the public business, and as to the way in which their orders are being opposed or carried out. They have the right to know.

It should be easy for the people to see their governor. Therefore, the sign, "Governor's Office—Walk Right In," which was displayed during my first term on certain days, will appear again, and the door will be open to all who choose to come.

Many matters of vital importance to the commonwealth, such as the maintenance and improvement of the public schools, abolition of the coal and iron police, safeguards for the public health, and maintenance of hospitals and other state institutions, will be dealt with in subsequent messages to the General Assembly or to the people.

The platform upon which I was nominated in the Republican primary was the platform upon which I was elected in the fall. It was the only platform advanced by the Republican party in the general election. It was adopted, and upon it I was chosen, by the electorate of the whole commonwealth. It will be the sailing chart of this administration.

Repeats Platform

I repeat that platform now as my pledge to the people of Pennsylvania.

I will use the full power of my office:

To break the stranglehold of the electric, gas, water, trolley, bus, and other public utilities on the cost of living and the margin for happiness.

To free the government of Pennsylvania from combined machine and public utility control.

To abolish the Public Service Commission. It is the catspaw of the corporations, unfaithful to the people, and worse than useless.

To replace it with a Fair Rate Board elected (like our courts) by the people.

To have the Fair Rate Board elected by districts, so that every part of the state will be represented.

To review and reduce, through the Fair Rate Board, every unjust rate now charged by any electric, gas, water, trolley, bus, or other public utility under its authority.

To give the Fair Rate Board the power and duty, on demand of any householder, to check and correct any electric, gas, water, or other public utility meter.

To prevent any electric, gas, water, or other public utility from raising any charge or rate until after it has been submitted, investigated at public hearings, and approved by the Fair Rate Board.

To revise the Public Service Law so as to make the Fair Rate Board the defender of the people against high rates and poor service.

To lift the present unjust burden of taxes from the farmer, the home owner and the business man by equalizing taxation throughout the state.

Good Roads

To give the country people good roads from home to market, church and school—summer and winter.

To give every child an equal chance for an education, and security in office for competent teachers.

To abolish the coal and iron police, and replace it with officers selected and commanded by the commonwealth, and paid by it at company expense.

To prevent the unfair use of labor injunctions.

To prevent by law all political assessments on state, county, city, borough and other public servants, and punish those who solicit them.

To see that the state assists disabled and neglected ex-service men, who need opportunity most.

To stop stream pollution, and empower cities, boroughs and townships to protect their own water.

To lift the tax from small inheritances.

To secure clean elections in Pennsylvania.

To maintain and enforce the law.

I will do my level best to give the children, the workers, the farmers, the fare payers, the rate payers, and the tax payers a Roosevelt square deal.

Pledges Fight

Through the decision of her citizens upon the issue of this platform Pennsylvania made a new declaration of independence. Her people registered their determination to manage their public affairs for themselves. In the hardest-fought election for many years, in spite of unprecedented efforts by the public utilities and their political subordinates, the voters of Pennsylvania recorded themselves emphatically against the control of their government by the little group of men who dominate the public utilities of this state.

It was a great and momentous decision. By it there is imposed upon the new administration and the General Assembly, before all other duties, the duty of making and keeping the government of Pennsylvania free from public utility domination.

To that great duty, in the sight of God, and before the face of all the people, I dedicate my administration.

FIRST BILL BANS COAL POLICE

HARRISBURG, Jan. 20.—Representative M. A. Musmanno, of Allegheny, presented Bill No. 1 in the House today. His measure calls for the abolition of industrial police and creates industrial guards.

Approval of the industrial guards is under control of the attorney general. Each guard would be under a $2,000 bond. The bill provides a blanket bond of $50,000 for companies hiring large numbers of these police.

All guards are to be equipped with uniforms. They are empowered to arrest persons for law violations on warrants. Persons committing felonies can be arrested by the guards without warrants. They also are empowered to guard payrolls.

Musmanno also introduced a bill to repeal the Sunday Blue Law of 1794 and provide for determination of Sunday amusements by local option.

GEN. SHANNON TAKES OATH

HARRISBURG, Jan. 20.—(AP.)—Pledging his thought and best judgment to consideration of worthy cases before the State Board of Pardons and acknowledging the duties placed upon the presiding officer of the State Senate, Brig. Gen. E. C. Shannon, of Columbia, today was inducted into office as lieutenant governor of Pennsylvania.

Immediately after taking the oath of office, administered at 11 o'clock in the Senate chamber by President Judge William M. Hargest, of the Dauphin County Court, the new Lieutenant Governor, in a brief inaugural address, thanked the people of Pennsylvania for the honor conferred upon him and reminded the senators of their responsibilities.

WICKERSHAM REPORT GIVEN CONGRESS

Dry Quiz Conclusions And Recommendations

Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.

Following are the conclusions and recommendations of the Wickersham commission in its report on prohibition enforcement, as submitted to Congress today by President Hoover:

1—The commission is opposed to repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment.

2—The commission is opposed to the restoration in any manner of the legalized saloon.

3—The commission is opposed to the federal or state governments, as such, going into the liquor business.

4—The commission is opposed to the proposal to modify the national prohibition act so as to permit manufacture and sale of light wines or beer.

5—The commission is of opinion that the co-operation of the states is an essential element in the enforcement of the Eighteenth Amendment and the national prohibition act throughout the territory of the United States; that the support of public opinion in the several states is necessary in order to insure such co-operation.

6—The commission is of opinion that prior to the enactment of the Bureau of Prohibition Act, 1927, the agencies for enforcement were badly organized and inadequate; that subsequent to that enactment there has been continued improvement in organization and effort for enforcement.

7—The commission is of opinion that there is yet no adequate observance or enforcement.

8—The commission is of opinion that the present organization for enforcement is still inadequate.

9—The commission is of opinion that the federal appropriations for enforcement of the Eighteenth Amendment should be substantially increased and that the vigorous and better organized efforts which have gone on since the Bureau of Prohibition Act, 1927, should be furthered by certain improvements in the statutes and in the organization, personnel, and equipment of enforcement, so as to give to enforcement the greatest practicable efficiency.

10—Some of the commission are not convinced that prohibition under the Eighteenth Amendment is unenforceable, and believe that a further trial should be made with the help of the recommended improvements, and that if, after such trial, effective enforcement is not secured, there should be a revision of the amendment. Others of the commission are convinced that it has been demonstrated that prohibition under the Eighteenth Amendment is unenforceable and that the amendment should be immediately revised, but recognizing that the process of amendment will require some time, they unite in the recommendations of conclusion No. 9 for the improvement of the enforcement agencies.

11—All the commission agree that if the amendment is revised it should be made to read substantially as follows:

Section 1—The Congress shall have power to regulate or to prohibit the manufacture, traffic in or transportation of intoxicating liquors within, the importation thereof into and the exportation thereof from the United States and all territory subject to the jurisdiction thereof for beverage purposes.

12—The recommendations referred to in conclusion No. 9 are:

1—Removal of the causes of irritation and resentment on the part of the medical profession by:

(a)—Doing away with the statutory fixing of the amount which may be prescribed and the number of prescriptions.

(b)—Abolition of the requirement of specifying the ailment for which liquor is prescribed upon a blank to go into the public files.

(c)—Leaving as much as possible to regulations rather than fixing details by statute.

2—Removal of the anomalous provision in Section 29, National Prohibition Act, as to cider and fruit juices, by making some uniform provision for a fixed alcoholic content.

3—Increase of the number of agents, storekeeper-gaugers, prohibition investigators, and special agents; increase in the personnel of the Customs Bureau and in the equipment of all enforcement organizations.

4—Enactment of a statute authorizing regulations permitting access to the premises and records of wholesale and retail dealers so as to make it possible to trace products of specially denatured alcohol to the ultimate consumer.

5—Enactment of legislation to prohibit independent denaturing plants.

6—The commission is opposed to legislation allowing more latitude for federal searches and seizures.

7—The commission renews the recommendation contained in its previous reports for codification of the national prohibition act and the acts supplemental to and in amendment thereof.

8—The commission renews its recommendation of legislation for making procedure in the so-called padlock injunction cases more effective.

9—The commission recommends legislation providing a mode of prosecuting petty offenses in the federal courts and modifying the increased penalties act of 1929, as set forth in the chairman's letter to the attorney general dated May 23, 1930. H. R. Rep. 1699.

There are differences of view among the members of the commission as to certain of the conclusions stated and as to some matters included in or omitted from this report. The report is signed subject to individual reservation of the right to express these individual views in separate or supplemental reports to be annexed hereto.

ENFORCEMENT RESULTS HELD DOUBTFUL

stead law to permit beers and light wines on the ground such action would be ineffectual in reaching the root of the problem.

MEDICAL BAN OPPOSED.

It recommended that all restrictions upon the issuance of prescriptions by physicians be forthwith abolished.

It hit the rapidly growing grape concentrate business by recommending that the anomalous provisions of Section 29 of the Volstead act be removed, in order to put wine-making and beer-making in the home on the same basis. Under the present interpretation of the law it is legal to make wine in the home, but illegal to make beer.

Three members of the commission, Judge William S. Kenyon, Judge Paul J. McCormick and Roscoe Pound, dean of Harvard Law School, suggested the desirability of submitting the repeal of the amendment to state constitutional conventions elected to consider the subject.

Two members of the commission, Newton D. Baker, ex-secretary of war, and Monte H. Lemann, law professor at Tulane University, recommended outright repeal of the Eighteenth amendment.

PUT UP TO CONGRESS

Four members of the commission, Henry W. Anderson, Virginia lawyer; Ada L. Comstock, dean of Radcliffe College, the only woman member; Frank J. Loesch, Chicago lawyer, and Dean Pound, proposed revision of the amendment so as to throw the whole question back upon Congress for determination.

Five members of the commission, Judges William I. Grubb, of Alabama; Kenyon, McIntosh, McCormick and Chairman Wickersham himself, recommended "further trial" of the existing prohibition set-up under the reforms and improvements instituted during the past three years, with the proviso that if material improvement is not forthcoming after "a fair trial," then serious attention be given to revision of the amendment.

All of the members were of the opinion that the amendment should be repealed or revised rather than to permit it to sink into a state of nullification such as has happened in the case of the Fourteenth and Fifteenth amendments.

All were agreed, too, that prohibition cannot be enforced without the active co-operation of the states, and without a great deal more public support than has hitherto been given to it.

"SAMPLE AMENDMENT"

The commission went so far as to propose a sample amendment if and when it becomes advisable to knock out the existing Eighteenth Amendment, the practical effect of which would be to throw the whole question back into the direct control of Congress. Thus if a dry Congress elected to keep the country dry it could do so by legislative enactment; conversely, if a wet Congress decided to permit the sale of liquor under strict government supervision and regulation it could also do so by mere legislative enactment.

The principal advantage to this scheme, as stressed by its indorsers, would be to remove a police statute from the Constitution, and afford a flexibility of control of the liquor question that would always reflect public opinion.

The commission's report consisted of 12 parts—the main body which presented the recommendations and an appalling picture of present day conditions, which was signed by 10 of the 11 members (all with reservations) and then 11 individual statements reflecting the views of the various members.

ONE REFUSES TO SIGN

The only member who refrained from signing the report was Monte H. Lemann, the Tulane University law professor. An inquiry at commission headquarters as to why Prof. Lemann had withheld his signature brought only the tart rejoinder:

"You had better ask Prof. Lemann."

The individual statements varied greatly in length and substance. They ranged all the way from Ada L. Comstock's 150 words stating she favored "an immediate attempt" to change the Constitution to Judge Kenyon's 15,000 words extolling the merits of national prohibition and explaining why he favored "a further trial" before resorting to attempts to change the laws.

Dealing with the subject of prohibition in its broadest sense the commission found it has in many respects been of enormous benefit to the country. Economically and socially the country has prospered. There has been increased production industrially, savings accounts have increased materially, and demands upon charitable agencies have been reduced under prohibition. These benefits, the commission said, should be preserved.

CRIME INCREASE CITED

But there is another side of the picture to which the commission devoted page after page of its report, telling of the enormous increase in crime, in bribery and corruption of public officers, of congested courts, of overflowing prisons, of indiscriminate killings by federal agents, of lawless practices by police and enforcement agents, of disrespect for all law that has followed disrespect and violation of the prohibition law.

Tracing the history of the prohibition enactment, the commission found it was thrust upon the country during war-time without proper consideration of whether the country was yet ready for so radical an experiment, the report stating:

"The proponents of the law paid no heed to the admonition that 'no law can be effectively enforced except with the assistance and co-operation of the law-abiding element.'

"On the contrary, the passage of the act and its enforcement were urged with a spirit of intolerant zeal that awakened an equally intolerant opposition and the difficulties now being experienced in rallying public sentiment in support of the Eighteenth Amendment result largely from that spirit of intolerance."

OBSERVANCE LACKING

The whole experiment, the commission agreed, got off to a bad start. The government was unprepared for so gigantic a task; many of the earlier agents were venal, corrupt and inefficient. More than 1,600 agents have been discharged in the last 10 years "for cause" exclusive of the Coast Guard, Customs Service and other co-operating agencies. "For cause" means bribery, extortion, theft, violation of the law itself, conspiracy, forgery, perjury and other crimes.

As to observance of the law the commission found there isn't a great deal and never has been, and declared:

"There is a mass of evidence before us as to general prevalence of drinking in homes, in clubs, in hotels; of drinking parties given and attended by persons of high standing and respectability.

"It is evident that, taking the country as a whole, people of wealth, business men and professional men, and their families, and, perhaps, the higher paid working men and their families, are drinking in large numbers in quite disregard of the national prohibition act . . . There has been a steady increase in drinking.

"To the serious effects of this must be added the bad effect on children and employes of what they see constantly in the conduct of otherwise law-abiding persons."

ILLICIT LIQUOR SOURCES

The principal sources of illicit liquor were found to be smuggled imports, diversion of industrial alcohol and illicit distilling and brewing.

As for home brew, the extent of this can only be guessed at, the commission said. It frankly admitted that it is impossible to enforce the law with relation to home brewing.

Enormous liquor rings have sprung up, the commission pointed out, which are country-wide in their scope and heavily financed, "with the big operators or head men rarely caught."

Wrong enforcement methods contributed to the difficulties, the commission asserted, adding:

"Some advocates of the law have constantly urged and are still urging disregard of the guarantees of liberty and of sanctity of the home which had been deemed fundamental in our policy.

INFLUENCE OF POLITICS

"High-handed methods, shootings and killings, even where justified, alienated thoughtful citizens, believers in law and order. Unfortunate public expressions by advocates of the law, approving killings and promiscuous shootings and lawless raids and seizures and deprecating the constitutional guarantees involved, aggravated this effect.

"Another cause was the influence of politics. Politics intervened decisively from the beginning, nor was this the only source of interference. For some time overzealous organizations, supporting the law, brought pressure to bear with respect to personnel and methods and even legislation which had unfortunate results. Only in the last few years has enforcement been reasonably emancipated from political interference."

"We expect legislation to conform to public opinion, not public opinion to yield to legislation. Whether public opinion on a given subject is right or wrong is not a question which

END TO MEDICAL LIQUOR BAN FAVORED

Benefits From Prohibition And Big Crime Increase Revealed in Dry Report

according to American ideas may be settled by the words, 'Be It Enacted.'

"It is therefore a serious impairment of the legal order to have a national law upon the books theoretically governing the whole land, which public opinion in many important centers will not enforce . . . the injury to our legal and political institutions from such a situation must be weighed against the gains achieved by national prohibition.

PUBLIC OPPOSED

"It is axiomatic that under any system of reasonably free government a law will be observed only where and to the extent it reflects the general opinion of the normally law-abiding elements of the community.

"The state of public opinion, certainly in many important portions of the country, presents a serious obstacle to the observance and enforcement of the national prohibition laws."

There is a vast difference, the commission observed, between temperance and prohibition, and the latter "makes no distinction between moderate and excessive use." In the beginning, it went on, both the prohibition and the temperance forces of the country made common cause of promoting the Eighteenth Amendment, but the temperance people have gradually drawn away and many of them are now to be found on the opposite side of the question.

Proceeding from economic difficulties to "psychological difficulties," the commission reported that the general state of public opinion is that prohibition is too invasive of personal liberty and the rights of the individual. The report declared:

"A considerable part of the public were irritated at a constitutional 'don't' in a matter where they saw no moral question. The statutory definition of 'intoxicating' at a point clearly much below what is intoxicating in turn and fact was widely felt to be arbitrary and unnecessary."

BAD EFFECT ON COURTS

Prohibition has had a bad effect on the courts everywhere, the commission found, and in the public respect for courts.

As for penal institutions, a survey disclosed that one-third of all the prisoners now in federal prisons are there for violations of the prohibition laws.

The commission severely criticised that provision of the Volstead Act which exempts "manufacture of fruit juices in the home," while home-brewing of beer and home-distilling of spirits is unlawful.

REPEAL OPPOSED

Even with all of prohibition's shortcomings, the commission said:

"We are convinced that repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment would be a step backward, that it would not conserve the benefits of national prohibition, and that it would likely lead to conditions as bad as those we are endeavoring to escape.

"Repeal of the national prohibition (Volstead) act would amount to nullification of a constitutional provision. The bad features and bad possibilities involved in such a course are manifest. In our opinion it is even less to be thought of than repeal of the amendment. It would not be honest."

The commission strongly recommended a program of public education for better observance. This and closer co-operation of the states, together with "more men, more money and more and better equipment," in its opinion, afford the only hope for bettering enforcement.

Majority Views in Dry Report Urge Revision

FRANK J. LOESCH, lawyer, Chicago—For revision.

MONTE M. LEMANN, professor of law, Tulane University, New Orleans—For repeal.

W. I. GRUBB, U. S. District Judge, Alabama—Further trial.

HENRY W. ANDERSON, Virginia, lawyer—For revision and submits plans giving Congress "power to regulate or prohibit" manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors.

COMMISSION TO CONTROL RUM URGED

Dry Quiz Member Advocates Manufacture and Sale By National Corporation

Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—Henry W. Anderson, member of the Wickersham Law Enforcement Commission, submitted with the commission's report today his own views for revising the Eighteenth Amendment.

After Congress has given the amendment the necessary flexibility, he recommends that Congress create a bipartisan national commission on liquor control, with full power to regulate and control the manufacture, importation, transportation and also the sale of intoxicating liquors. He holds this commission should have the same powers over liquor that the Interstate Commerce Commission has over railroads.

NATIONAL CORPORATION

His next suggestion is that Congress create a national corporation which would have the exclusive right to manufacture, import, export, transport and sell intoxicating liquors. The corporation should have branches throughout the country. All the stock in this corporation should be privately owned, Mr. Anderson believes, so that the government would not be in the liquor business. All of its activities, however, would be regulated by the commission on liquor control.

Another provision of his plan is that any state may retain prohibition if it chooses, but would have to enforce its own law.

REVENUE FOR GOVERNMENT

The national government would get some benefit from such a plan because it provides that all excess revenues of the corporation be paid to the national treasury.

There is also a provision for state treasuries to get the excess revenues from the corporation's branches.

Mr. Anderson concludes that "every principle and feature of this plan except as to the specific use of excess profits, is now in operation either in the present system of government regulation of railroads or in the Federal Reserve Bank system or in both.

WOMEN ANTIS FOR REPEAL

Admitting the Wickersham commission should be congratulated in its thorough report, the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform still maintains its stand that the prohibition law should be repealed, asserted Mrs. Charles H. Sabin, national president, who was here today to address the Pittsburgh chapter in the William Penn Hotel.

Mrs. Sabin emphasized congratulations for Monte Lemann, of New Orleans, commission member, who had refused to sign the report. His consistency should have been followed by others, she said. The statement was made by Mrs. Sabin before she addressed local members at a luncheon meeting on "The Failure of Prohibition." Mrs. Marion Booth Kelley, national chairman of the legislative and speakers' committee, pointed out the impossibility of enforcement. With the national leaders was Mrs. Edward S. Moore, publicity committee chairman. Mrs. Carroll Miller, local vice chairman, presided.

Questioned on the Wickersham report, Mrs. Sabin declared:

"It is apparent the commission should be congratulated upon the fairness and thoroughness of its investigation into the workings of the prohibition law.

"It is also apparent that some of the members must have signed recommendations in which they are not in complete accord."

Pittsburgh Drys, Antis Divided Over Findings

Widely differing views on the report of the Wickersham commission were voiced here today by leading advocates and opponents of prohibition. Some of the comments follow:

COL. SAMUEL HARDEN CHURCH, president, Carnegie Institute, an ardent Liberal—I have seen nothing yet but a synopsis of the report and that seems to indicate that the mountain has labored and brought forth a mouse. But if it is true that the commission has unanimously agreed to recommend a change in the Eighteenth Amendment so that, instead of the existing prohibition, Congress shall have power to regulate the liquor traffic between the states, I am free to admit that they have taken a forward step and out of that proposal we may be able to reach a solution of the problem.

MRS. ELLA M. GEORGE, state president, W. C. T. U.—I heartily approve those features of the commission's report opposing repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment, restoration of the saloon or the government going into the liquor business. As to the rest I would offer no opinion until I have read the report carefully.

SIMON T. PATTERSON, executive commander of the Crusaders, anti-prohibition organization—The commission doesn't seem to have gotten anywhere. Enforcement is impossible and has been so demonstrated in 11 years. The situation will be the same in 20 years. State supervision of the liquor traffic with transportation banned into dry states is the most practicable plan. We do not favor the saloon or manufacture of liquor by private individuals.

J. C. DOWNS, business manager of the United Presbyterian, a church publication—The digest of the Wickersham report indicates that the commission has made careful investigations and had come to its conclusions in a judicial manner. The commission recognizes the abuses which have grown up under inadequate provisions for enforcement, and makes recommendations for correcting these abuses. This is the type of constructive work the country has a right to expect, and which it ought to support. Prohibition is entitled to a fair chance to succeed, which it has not had thus far. The country has a right to expect of Congress enactment of legislation to make enforcement more effective, and local officials should support the government in its efforts.

C. T. ROSS, acting president of Allegheny College—The report is correct in every detail. I don't think that the commission could have done otherwise and still be true to its principles.

FORMER JUDGE THOMAS J. Prather, Pittsburgh attorney—The report is a sort of disappointment. It appears that there isn't anything new in it. Some of the provisions, especially the modification of the Jones 5-and-10 act, are good. This act should have been repealed. I can't agree with the conclusion that more prohibition agents will make the American people more law abiding. The average American mind is such that if you tell him not to do something he is going to do it anyhow. Therefore, all the prohibition agents you could get can't give full enforcement of the dry act.

THE REV. DR. R. A. HUTCHISON, state and national director, Anti-Saloon League—I believe the provisions for larger federal appropriations for enforcement and more vigorous and better organized effort along the lines now followed would prove still more conclusively that the Eighteenth Amendment can be enforced. We agree that the improvement in the statutes, organization, personnel and equipment of enforcement should be furthered. I agree exactly with the idea of the commission that prohibition under the Eighteenth Amendment is enforceable and that further trial should be made with the help of the recommended improvements.

Prince of Piedmont To Remain at Turin

TURIN, Italy, Jan. 20.—(AP.)—Reports that the Prince of Piedmont, heir to the Italian throne, would be transferred to another big provincial city or would be sent abroad were dissipated today by a semi-official announcement that he would be made a brigadier general about March 15, assuming command of the First Infantry Brigade with headquarters here.

To End a Cough In a Hurry, Mix This at Home

To end a stubborn cough quickly, it is important to soothe and heal the inflamed membranes, get rid of the germs and also to aid the system inwardly to help throw off the trouble.

For these purposes, here is a homemade medicine, far better than anything you could buy at 3 times the cost. From any druggist, get 2½ ounces of Pinex. Pour this into a pint bottle, and add plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey to fill up the pint. This takes but a moment, and makes a remedy so effective that you will never do without, once you have used it. Keeps perfectly, and children like it.

This simple remedy does three necessary things. First, it loosens the germ-laden phlegm. Second, it soothes away the inflammation. Third, it is absorbed into the blood, where it acts directly on the bronchial tubes. This explains why it brings such quick relief, even in the obstinate bronchial coughs which follow cold epidemics.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form, and known as one of the greatest healing agents for severe coughs, chest colds and bronchial troubles.

WHEN BETTER AUTOMOBILES ARE BUILT . . . BUICK WILL BUILD THEM

This is "open season" for THINKERS

THIS message is addressed to the thinker! These are times when mature thought is given to important expenditures—times when genuine value receives its just recognition.

Hence Buick is winning 60 fine car sales out of every 100 in its price range, with 14 other companies competing. The thinker has come to know that Buick gives more value, that Buick builds better motor cars, year after year.

"One-time sales" are common, but to win and hold friends for a decade, or a quarter century, is an achievement. More than 88 per cent of all Buick owners buy Buicks again and again. Thousands have purchased as many as five, ten or even twenty Buick motor cars.

Many will ponder these basic facts. Many will make the same decision more than 2,500,000 others have made: namely, that Buick is a better automobile . . . that Buick is a sounder motor car investment. Think it over!

Effective January 1, every Buick built—including Buick's Series 50, priced from $1025 to $1095, f. o. b. Flint, Mich.—has the famous Syncro-Mesh Silent-Shift Transmission and Torque Tube Drive.

Our Woes Told By Wickersham In 100,000 Words

By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER

fear from this twenty-month-old report.

It exceeds the statute of limitations.

All the Nobel prizes have been captured by Americans, including Ted Roberts, who reaches back into science and bobs up with a 12-year headache.

Sinclair Lewis grabbed a loose citation in Sweden, the home of the other red-headed matches, for writing a book about his compatriots in a language that saved translators the trouble.

Now, Americans are funny people. Let us take the case of Winchell, who was born with everybody's silver spoons in his mouth.

Winchell gets fat on being hated. O. O. McIntyre stays thin by being admired.

One of Winchell's enemies picks up the paper and says, "Did that rat Winchell say anything about me in his column today?"

He looks through the column and finds nothing. So he slams the paper down in disgust and hollers:

"Why, Winchell DIDN'T say a thing about ME today. The rat."

So you're wrong if you do and you're wrong if you don't. You cannot blow hot and cold with one breath.

In fact, you cannot blow at all with the breaths they are drinking these days.

If Sinclair Lewis got a Swedish prize for dragging Americans through the public library, what's that to Swedes? What have they got to lose?

If a prophet is without honor in his own country it's his own fault for not having an available supply of that valuable commodity incorporated in his apartment lease.

You cannot pan your neighbors and expect to borrow their sugar, too.

That's why most of our super-intelligent malcontents must go to Europe for their medals and their baths.

We give medals and citations for literary valor and intellectual bravery outside the line of regular librarian habits.

But nobody gets them without an act of Congress. We have great writers over here, but we hate to admit it. Along comes Sweden and gives a man a medal and we get so excited that we throw the butter into the laundry bag and fry an old pair of sox.

We don't know what we have over here. "All Quiet on the Western Front" proves the "Red Badge of Courage" was the best war book ever written. And you would be surprised to learn of how many baby gangsters there are who never heard of Stephen Crane, Herman Melville or Lafcadio Hearn.

COMEDY WITH AND WITHOUT MUSIC, MELODRAMA STAGE FEATURES

'Mendel' Has Many Laughs But It's Vaudeville Just Grown Up

By GEORGE SEIBEL.

The family tree of a play is sometimes as easy to follow as the pedigree of a dog or a horse. There is "Mendel, Inc.," which gave an audience at the Alvin many hearty laughs last night and left the audience wondering why. Mendel's grandfather was "The Auctioneer" once played by David Warfield. He has two estimable uncles in Potash and Perlmutter, who reappear in this comedy under the name of Shnaps and Shtrudel. There are cousins and nieces and sisters and nephews in "Kibitzer" and "The Jazz Singer" and a few other pieces of that type.

George Seibel

Then you look closely at the plot, and you see that it is merely an overgrown vaudeville sketch, with some pathos and some extravaganza to cover its bare limbs.

But you laugh anyway—though you wonder why.

Part of the laughter is due to the comicality of the characters—East Side types that are as true as the comic strips.

Part of the laughter is due to the lines—well-worn wisdom dished up with a new dialect sauce.

Such is "Mendel, Inc.," which is good fun for much of the time and cheap pathos some of the time, but owes most of its pull to clever acting in the best vaudeville tradition.

EDISON AND SOLOMON

Mendel is lazy—so lazy it even hurts him to see his wife work—so he invents a dishwasher and house cleaner which makes his fortune.

He is also full of proverbs. "What is love? A potato—it has eyes but it's blind." "What's relations? Measles—you got to have 'em." Not exactly devastating but Mendel has only one wife to nag him, and Solomon had a thousand.

He is also sentimental even about the smells of East Side streets, every one of which has its own flavor.

And after he acquires wealth he remains in the old building where he made his invention, though he has it fixed up like a swell club. He will not move uptown "to dress like a waiter, carry a cane like a cripple and follow a white dog like a blind man."

But his family thinks he was too lazy to work and is now too lazy to move.

SMITH AND DALE

Carr is assisted in his Hebrew comedy by Joe Smith and Charles Dale, as Shnaps and Shtrudel. Whatever wisecracks have not been put into Carr's part, they work off. "Live and let live, but not too long," is one motto. There are many such sayings, and they are put across very effectively by these two comedians.

Racy comedy is also furnished by two women, Lisa Silbert as Mrs. Mendel and Anna Chandler as Bessie the janitress. In fact, these ladies probably do the best acting of the evening, though they have merely conventional parts. And the remaining members of the cast just fill in the elements of romance and villainy required in the plot.

Stripped of its Hebrew comedy lines, this plot is old-fashioned melodrama or ancient fairy tale. There's no mortgage, but an injunction that works the same way. The lawyer who saves the situation by exposing the plot will marry Mendel's daughter. Mrs. Mendel was going to get a divorce but she "sees it all now."

We're expected to shed a few tears, but they just won't come.

WANTED: A WARFIELD

There is no Warfield to tap them. Warfield could catch your heartstrings even in that claptrap farce in which he first became a star. But he was human beneath and behind his character. "Mendel" is a comic strip which is so desperately devised to make you laugh that you stop when you've done that. In the third act it comes close to being merely musical comedy without music.

But it is staged with much care, and those five people—Carr, Smith, Dale, Silbert and Chandler—merit the applause they received.

The author, David Freedman, who adapted the play from his own novel, also should have credit for the fond paternal care with which he raised "Mendel" from a vaudeville sketch to a three-act comedy.

2 Steamers Bring Pittsburghers Home

NEW YORK, Jan. 20.—Dr. Pauline C. Marks and Mrs. Ray Marks, of 7409 Race street, Pittsburgh, returned on the steamship Carmania from Havana. They spent a week at the Cuban capital and stopped at Nassau on the outbound voyage.

Others returning on the steamship Scythia are Mrs. Katherine K. Reilly, of 6941 Edgerton avenue, and Miss Delia Earner, of 700 Webster avenue, Pittsburgh.

Shoots Up Dwelling Of Foe; Kills Woman

CLARKSBURG, W. Va., Jan. 20.—Following a quarrel with James O'Connor, farmer, Lloyd Long, 36, coal miner, is alleged to have fired a shotgun repeatedly through the windows of the O'Connor home, near Norton, killing Mrs. Elizabeth Ware, 38, housekeeper.

Other occupants, including children, were unharmed. Long was arrested. He and O'Connor had quarreled over a tract of land.

Romantic Lead

Constance Cummings plays the feminine romantic lead in "The Criminal Code," current screen feature in the Warner.

OBITS COME SWIFTLY, SO DO THRILLS IN PITT

By CLARENCE E. GRUNDISH

"The Ninth Guest," a play by Owen Davis, opened last night in the Pitt. It is a killing mystery drama. More obituaries are written in three acts than in a month of Chicago gang war.

The play is interestingly different. It has suspense. It has chills. There are enough gruesome shrieks to paper a morgue with echoes. And the drama gets good presentation from Mr. George Sharp's troupe.

The scene is a pent house. Eight guests have been assembled by a mysterious host. A strange group they are. They all hate each other.

THE RADIO VOICE

Then a voice from a radio intrudes upon them. "You'll all be dead by morning," it announces. Which makes a nice short future to look forward to. It is already an hour before midnight.

Catherine Maison, carrying a part credited to Mabel Kroman on the program, handles it especially well. But, really, it is okay work by all hands. And the chief "trick" is to be able to die naturally, if none too gracefully.

THE FIRST DEMISE

Also prominent in the cast are Alice Ann Baker, Robert Fiske, John Winthrop, Hugh Banks, Paul McGrath, John Thorn, Lenita Lane and Sherrard Van Trump. Incidentally, Mr. Van Trump isn't given the chance to live. He's a dead one when he appears. And, though this appearance is brief, it brings enough shrieks from stage and audience to win him a place among "prominent players."

A good mystery is "The Ninth Guest." It is off the beaten trapdoor path. There are no spooks. It took a lot of imagination to put it together.

'America's Sweetheart,' in Nixon, Is Another Musical Hit

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

For the second time in a few weeks Hollywood was brought to the Nixon stage last night, this time by Schwab & Mandel, who have a reputation for producing musical hits. The capital of Movieland was presented as the background of "America's Sweetheart," and it proved that Messrs. Schwab & Mandel have no present intention—or danger—of losing that previously mentioned reputation, for the reaction of last night's audience proclaims their latest enterprise to be a success.

It was a smart audience that turned out for this "first night" of what the movie folk call a "world premiere." Many of the fair and the brave of Pittsburgh were present, all dressed in their best bibs and tuckers, and all seemingly in a mood to regard the proceedings as a gala event. It was midnight when they filed from the theater, but every fair lady and handsome gentleman stayed and it can be stated—shall be stated here and now—that not one of them showed any signs of fatigue.

ORCHESTRA KEPT BUSY

How could they, when they were being diverted. Even some of the stage waits—due, no doubt, to the newness of the piece—were not tiresome. Alfred Goodman, peppy orchestra conductor, proved a veritable slave driver in such junctures. Constantly in motion he waved the baton over this way, and then his batonless hand the other way, and the brasses and strings and the reeds and percussion instruments took fresh zeal and zoomed away unflaggingly until the awkward moments passed excitingly and pleasantly.

Yes indeed, the audience was diverted. First by Gus Shy, leading comedian, who was cast as a film comedian in this travesty on Hollywood. The comedian he played wasn't so hot, but Gus was. Maybe he wouldn't be so hot playing a good comedian but he does good work as a bad comedian. Don't bother trying to figure that out. Just ask anybody who was present last night and you will be told that playing an unfunny man can be most funny.

MAKES YOU LIKE HIM

John Sheehan, as a movie magnate who liked himself pre-t-t-y well, gave Shy a contest for laugh honors. You just couldn't hate S. A. Dolan and his egotism—you couldn't do it because Sheehan made you like him.

Inez Courtney, as Shy's teammate in the movies, also came in for a large share of approval. She has the pert manner that wins and can dance well. Harriette Lake, a charming miss, bore well the burden of the leading feminine role, the title part, that of an unexperienced girl who made good in the movies. Opposite her was Jack Whiting, a nice-looking chap with a good voice, which he knows how to use. Jeanne Aubert, from that dear Paris, a real artist, too, gave the exotic touch in the role of a foreign movie star.

WINS AUDIENCE

Incidentally, Mlle. Aubert, who has a most pleasing voice, received assurance that she had the audience with her in an unusual experience. She sang "A Lady Must Live" so well that she was recalled. For some reason, she could not remember the beginning of the encore verse and was compelled to retire in embarrassment. In sheer sympathy the audience applauded until she came out again for a bow.

The audience wanted to hear more of the harmony singing of the three Forman sisters. Dorothy Dare and Vera March, a pair of cuties, also were popular. The song hit of the piece is "I've Got Five Dollars," the air of which you will be hearing plenty from now on.

Some of the comedy of "America's Sweetheart" is far from delicate, but it is most amusing.

GRIPPING PRISON FILM SWITCHED HURRIEDLY INTO WARNER

By MILDRED FILLMORE.

"The Criminal Code," hurriedly switched into the Warner Monday, three days in advance of the original date, is a tense dramatic production, powerfully acted. It is the photoplay version of the melodramatic stage play that was one of the successes of New York last season. Much of the action takes place within prison walls, and it gives a vivid portrayal of the emotional feeling of convicts toward their duties, their reaction to captivity and their loyalty to their own code of honor, which, in simple terms, means that a "squealer" or "stool-pigeon" is doomed.

MERELY BACKGROUND

This, of course, is merely the background for the story of a boy who goes to prison for murder, although the killing had been done in self-defense and is semi-accidental, becomes embittered and is ripe to become a real criminal, when contact with the warden's daughter works another change in his character, and he comes through cleanly, with the boy and the girl in the inevitable clinch at the finale.

The role of the boy, however, is not the leading one. That is in the capable hands of Walter Huston, as the district attorney who sends the youngster to prison, of which he later is made warden. Huston simply is superb as a biting, hard-crusted sort of chap, to whom duty is duty.

DISPLAY OF NERVE

Even though one knows it is only play, one can't help admiring the character he portrays—Brady—as he walks unguarded into a seething—that is the word, seething—horde of prisoners in an uproar of rebellion at news of his assuming the post of warden. You see, Brady has put many of them where they are and it takes sheer nerve to face them.

It is a grippingly interesting picture. The fly in the ointment is that, as Brady himself says unofficially, the boy has no business in prison, and it is rather far-fetched to put him there just because he has a lady-like attorney. And the romantic angle is silly. Yet one is apt to forget these things in the power of the drama, however illogical it may be.

Phillips Holmes does a good job in the boy part. DeWitt Jennings, as a brutal prison guard, is most realistic, as is Boris Korloff, a vengeful prisoner who eventually "keeps an appointment" with the guard. Constance Cummings, new to the screen, plays the girl plenty well enough.

France Votes Pension To Joffre's Widow

PARIS, Jan. 20.—(AP.)—The finance committee of the Chamber of Deputies has approved a pension of 100,000 francs a year (about $4,000) for Madame Joffre, widow of the Marshal. The pension bill will come before Parliament shortly. It is similar to that voted the widow of Marshal Foch in 1928.

Chrysler Eight 5-Passenger Sedan, $1525, F. O. B. Factory

THE SHOW CARS OF THE MOTOR SHOW

THE NEW Chrysler Six—big in size, big in power—and the Chrysler Eights are, in a very true sense, the Show Cars of 1931—outstanding in style.

In the new Six, as in the Eights, refreshing smartness is created by an extremely low center of gravity, which also makes for greater safety at all speeds. You actually feel safer as you ride along and notice the needless height of other cars.

And performance!—Chrysler performance is as outstanding as Chrysler style. The new Chrysler Six has a 70-horsepower engine. The Chrysler Eight has a 90-horsepower engine. The Chrysler Imperial Eight has a 125 horsepower engine. In addition, the two Eights have an exclusive Chrysler Multi-Range 4-speed transmission with Dual High gears. There are two distinct high gears—one for sprinting in traffic and climbing hills, the other for the open highway. A quick, quiet gear shift makes it easy to shift back and forth between the two "highs" at any speed without clashing.

See the new Chrysler Six, the Chrysler Eight and the Chrysler Imperial Eight at the Automobile Show, and at the special exhibit in our showroom.

Stomach Trouble Due to Acidity

Home Treatment Brings Swift Relief

Get rid of the excess acid, and you get rid of Gas, Sourness, Heartburn, Bloating and all the distress of indigestion.

The best way to do this is to take a teaspoonful or three tablets of pure "Bisurated" Magnesia in a little water right after eating or whenever pain is felt. "Bisurated" Magnesia works quickly. It brings relief from every distressing symptom in just a few minutes.

"Bisurated" Magnesia is the ideal safe, convenient, and inexpensive magnesia treatment for stomach use. QUICKEST WAY TO KNOCK A COLD

Millions Say of This Proved Way You Feel Like a New Person Almost Before You Know It

If you want quick relief from a cold, go back to first principles and use something you know does the business—don't start "trying" a lot of fancy ideas or remedies. Even a "little" cold is too dangerous to take chances on.

Get Hill's Cascara Quinine. A scientific formula made to do ONE THING WELL: to knock a cold in a jiffy, not to cure a hundred different things.

Take two tablets now. Then follow directions on box. Drink lots of water, too—that's all. Soon those mean, aching pains in head and body begin to go; the cold breaks up; poisons leave your system. Almost before you know it, you feel like a new person.

If it doesn't do that, your money back. Get a box now. You'll be surprised at the speed with which it works. Costs only a few cents.

Kennywood Official Loses Tax Appeal

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—(AP.)—In appeal of F. W. Henninger of Pittsburgh, secretary and treasurer of Kennywood Park, against deficiencies in income tax declared against him by the Internal Revenue Bureau, was dismissed by the board of tax appeals.

Henninger contended the commissioner of Internal Revenue erred in including in his income distributions made by the Kennywood Park Corporation and three affiliated companies. The board held the distributions were properly chargeable as income.

Bandits Slay 400, Kidnap 1,000 in China

CITY TURNS AWAY SCORES OF NEEDY

SIDEWALKS —of— PITTSBURGH

George Dennison, of the Pittsburgh Clearing Bureau, has one of those fake broadcasting sets which enables one to broadcast from the next room. A few evenings ago Mr. Dennison entertained at his home, and among the guests were several reputable physicians, who strictly observe the ethics of their profession that doctors shall not boast of their own ability.

A pleasant conversation was suddenly interrupted when over the radio there came a blurb which proclaimed that Dr. So-and-so was the person to see when you're ill.

AND THIS DOCTOR'S PRICES ARE RIGHT

The doctor flushed, fidgeted, squirmed and finally walked to the telephone and called the broadcasting station. The fake announcer, Mr. Dennison, then told all.

As if that weren't enough, Mr. Dennison chose as his next victims a young man and woman who kept company. Over the radio, in their presence, he announced: "We wish to congratulate Mr. So-and-so and Miss So-and-so who are soon to be married."

Mary Roberts Rinehart has written her autobiography ("My Story"), not neglecting to tell of her residence in Sewickley.

Mrs. Rinehart had already published several books when she and her husband, Dr. Stanley M. Rinehart, decided to buy the Sewickley estate, then owned by a railroad official.

The house was in run-down shape and needed countless repairs—almost rebuilding.

The Rinehart finances were taxed beyond their current capacity. To meet the bills Mrs. Rinehart pushed her pen many hours each day.

After some months of this, Mrs. Rinehart asked her husband to suggest a name for the new home.

"Why not," suggested the good doctor, "call it 'The Bluff'? That's what we're putting up."

We know of a man who has a wooden leg and a sense of humor. He was crossing a street recently when an auto hit him just hard enough to topple him and unlock his wooden leg, which rolled several feet away. The excited driver stumbled from the car, looked at the fallen victim and exclaimed:

"I've cut his leg off."

The man with the wooden leg replied:

"Yes, you have, see if you can find it." The driver looked around, found the leg and returned it. The victim attached the leg, brushed himself and went his way.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

NEW YORK, Jan. 20.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Well, you saw what happened in Washington. They put off even considering voting for government food relief till February 9th. Now if you can live that long, the Senate will vote on it, then if you can live another month the House will vote on it. By that time, if the Red Cross hasn't raised its quota in each state, the government aid bill can be changed from food to coffins. Right on top of all our hard luck Wickersham turned in his report, and that knocked 234 stenographers (who have been compiling it for three years) out of a job. And if Congress reads it through, that means an extra session.

7 FIRES ROUT 40, SMOKE DISABLES 2

2 Children Saved by Nurse; Girl, Overcome, Carried Out; Damage Heavy

A young woman and a man were overcome by smoke and removed to hospitals, two children were rescued and 40 persons were routed by fires in the Pittsburgh district this morning and last night. Seven fires were reported, causing damage of more than $22,000.

Miss Margaret Smiley, 19 of 54 Magdalena street, was overcome by smoke when fire broke out in the basement of Margie's doughnut factory, 406 Brownsville road, where she was employed, last night. After being treated at South Side Hospital she was taken home. Miss Smiley was carried from the bakery by Fire Capt. Joseph Dengler, of No. 23 Engine Company. Firemen said that clothes hanging in the basement became ignited from a gas stove.

ROUTED BY SMOKE

Morrow Cifola, 53, was removed to the Pittsburgh Hospital early today after being overcome by smoke during a fire in his home at 6941 Chaucer street, East End. Cifola, his wife and five children were routed and led through smoke-filled rooms from their quarters on the second and third floors of the building. The fire was confined to a confectionery store of Angelo Erco on the first floor.

Those routed were Mrs. Cifola, a daughter, Lena, 17, and four sons, Tony, 15; Frank, 12; John, 10, and Morrow, Jr., 5.

9 FLEE STORE FIRE

Nine persons residing in apartments on the second, third and fourth floors of a building at 5900 Penn avenue were routed early today when fire broke out in the automobile accessory shop of Powell and Schwartz on the first floor. Damage estimated at $1,000 was caused to the shop. Smoke filled the apartment of George M. Dell on the second floor, routing him and his wife, Elizabeth, and Miss Levina Emminger. Miss Emminger discovered the fire when she was awakened by smoke.

Miss Emminger aroused Mr and Mrs. Dell and the husband then ran to the third floor and aroused Mr. and Mrs. A. M. McKemmery and Miss A. Cruikshank. Miss Helen M. Eyth, Miss Sofia Ewen and Ralph Kirsch, residing on the fourth floor, also were forced to flee.

NURSE SAVES CHILDREN

Two small children were rescued by their nursemaid, Miss Catherine Drosdowski, during a fire in the home of H. A. Huhn, of 207 Castlegate road, Forest Hills, late yesterday. The damage was estimated at $1,800.

In Turtle Creek 10 members of Charles W. Zischkau Post No. 267, Veterans of Foreign Wars, were compelled to flee when fire was discovered in the building housing their headquarters. Loss was estimated at $5,000.

Business establishments damaged included the real estate office of Gorman McDonald; Factory Outlet Men's Furnishing Store, and the Penn Cash Meat Market. The veterans' headquarters were located in the second floor.

KENSINGTON STORE BURNS

New Kensington firemen were forced to don smoke and oxygen masks while combatting flames in the Army and Navy store, 969 Fourth avenue. Frank Fragale, owner of the building, who was ill; his wife and four children, and Tony Trussell, his wife and 5-year-old daughter, who occupied second floor apartments, were compelled to flee the building. Loss was estimated at $12,000.

In Aliquippa, members of two families occupying a two-story frame dwelling in Greene street, were compelled to seek safety early today when fire was discovered on the second floor.

Pershing Refused To Be Involved in Europe's Politics

MY EXPERIENCES IN THE WORLD WAR

By JOHN J. PERSHING,

Commander-in-Chief, American Expeditionary Forces.

CHAPTER IX.

Succeeding chapters of "My Experiences in the World War" will appear daily and Sunday exclusively in the Sun-Telegraph.

I left Paris July 20 for a visit with Field Marshal Sir Douglas Haig, the British Commander-in-Chief, whose headquarters were in an old chateau half hidden away in a magnificent grove at Blendiques. I was accompanied by Cols. Harbord and Alvord and Capt. Patton of my staff.

At dinner, the subject of conversation naturally turned on the military situation of the Allied armies, our own in particular. They were keen to know about our army, its organization and size, and the prospects of our putting troops in the field. As our active participation depended on many factors, such as training, equipment and shipping, my replies, of course, were indefinite and no doubt disappointing.

In turn we asked many questions, and it was especially interesting to hear the importance of artillery emphasized by its chief, Maj. Gen. Birch, who spoke of the difficulties they had experienced in supplying themselves with guns that matched the enemy's.

Gen. Pershing

Referring to their lack of artillery in the beginning, Gen. Birch said there was reason to believe that they had finally attained a superiority over the Germans.

A glance at the chart, seen later at the office of the chief of artillery, showed that the British had then 3,712 field guns and howitzers and 2,258 guns of other calibers, which gave them a sufficient number of guns of all calibers to average one to every 25 yards of their more than 80 miles of front. These figures were transmitted to the War Department to support my recent cable urging the expedition of gun construction at home.

British Casualties Heavy

Sir Douglas told me some of the details of Nivelle's unsuccessful attack in the spring; how it was known far and wide beforehand, and spoke particularly of the consequent serious disaffection among the French troops. Although he had placed himself under Nivelle's command for these operations, he had, he said, little confidence in the outcome from the start. He also commented on the failure of the French to cooperate fully on various occasions. His remarks entirely confirmed the belief that I had long since held that real teamwork between the two armies was almost totally absent.

Sir Douglas

During my visit Gen. Sir William Robertson, British chief of staff, happened to be there, and we had a detailed discussion of the question of man power. Their casualties in the Arras Offensive during April and May had amounted to nearly 200,000 officers and men, and they were preparing at that moment for another attack soon to be made on Paschendale Ridge. This was the beginning of operations that lasted until late in the autumn, with casualties which increased the total for the year to about 450,000 officers and men.

The British high command, however, claimed that they had inflicted heavy losses on the enemy. It must be admitted that the serious aspect of the general situation did not noticeably dampen the aggressive spirit of the British army nor weaken the

20,307 JOBLESS IN APRIL COUNT

Preparing for a comparison of the unemployment situation as revealed by the special census now being taken and the dicennial census of last April, the Washington office of the Bureau of the Census today announced that statistics recently compiled show that 20,307 persons or 7.7 per cent of the total numbers of workers in the city were idle and looking for work last April. There were 5,885 persons who were reported as having jobs, but being on a layoff without pay.

The other classes reported on the unemployment schedule in April included 986 persons, 813 males and 173 females, out of a job and unable to work; 2,501 persons, 1,918 males and 583 females, with jobs, but idle on account of sickness or disability; 482 persons, 316 male and 112 women, out of a job and not looking for work; 447 persons, 306 males and 141 females, voluntarily idle without pay, and 528 persons, 387 men and 141 women, with jobs and drawing pay although not working at the time of the census.

DROUGHT RELIEF DRIVE OPENS IN CITY

Third of $300,000 Quota Pledged, Committee Named In Appeal of Red Cross

Pledging of $101,750 toward Pittsburgh's quota of $300,000 and appointment of a committee of 100 to aid in the $10,000,000 nation-wide drive of the Red Cross Drought Relief Fund, marked a meeting in the board room of the Union Trust Company.

The executive committee in charge of the campaign here is composed of J. R. Flannery, chairman; G. Greer Coolidge, Harry W. Dunlap, Jr., Howard Heinz, Irvin F. Lehman, Richard K. Mellon, A. K. Oliver, A. W. Robertson, Joseph C. Trees and Mrs. Henry R. Rea. The committee will attempt to complete the Pittsburgh quota in about a week. Checks are to be mailed to Room 402, Chamber of Commerce Building.

In a statement issued after the meeting it was said reports from Red Cross national headquarters indicate the seriousness of conditions in 21 states where drought victims are suffering extreme hardships. In many places children and parents are so seriously undernourished, the reports said, as to be in danger of epidemics and plagues unless food is provided. President Hoover has urged upon the whole country the necessity of contributing generously to relieve the suffering families which are greater in number, according to the Red Cross, than those affected by the Mississippi flood disaster.

COUGH VICTIM RECOVERING

Suffering from hiccoughs for 16 days, George C. Wright, superintendent of the Vitro Manufacturing Company, today was recovering at his home, 1224 Justine street. Wright was seized with hiccoughs while attending church services December 28. When efforts failed to halt the ailment after one week, he was removed to the Mercy Hospital.

Wright was released from the hospital Sunday. A nervous breakdown was said to have been responsible for the attack.

FUND SPENT, POOR STILL SEEK AID

Tales of Destitution Sent To Welfare Groups While Council Takes No Action

With hope in their hearts and unmindful of the fact that the city's emergency appropriation to aid destitute and jobless is at an end, scores of the needy today continued their march to the City-County Building and sought help.

Nearly 50 men and women told their stories of destitution to P. D. Seybold, in the fund distribution office yesterday. He estimated approximately that number would appear today. Cases brought to the attention of the Department of Welfare, in charge of the work of supplying succor to the needy, are being filed and referred to various welfare agencies.

SECOND FUND USED UP

The appropriation of $100,000, the second within the period of a few months, supplied by City Council to further the work, was exhausted Saturday. Since then hands of the department in administering relief have been tied.

Seybold said those who since Saturday have sought help to purchase food, clothing and coal and to pay rent, seem hardly able to realize that the fund is exhausted, and have hopes that Council will do something to aid them soon.

Nearly 10,000 families aided by the appropriation have received little, if any, help from any source since Saturday. Many, according to the Welfare Associations, are in dire circumstances.

BILLS POUR IN

Although Council met yesterday, nothing was done toward continuing the appropirations, although $100,000 was ordered transferred from a code emergency account to the unemployment fund to pay bills which accumulated under the provisions of the grant. This was the money appropriated some time ago. The bills, totaling nearly the full amount of the $100,000, poured into the Welfare Department office all day after Mrs. Enoch Rauh, head of the department, had notified welfare groups that they must be in for payment not later than yesterday.

With President John S. Herron, Councilman W. Y. English, head of the Finance Committee, and other city officials in Harrisburg today for the inauguration of Gov. Gifford Pinchot, the proposals to create an employment fund with outside aid, were at a standstill.

JOB PLAN HELD UP

Under provisions of the job plan a councilmanic appropriation of $25,000 would be made, the remainder of the contributions coming from citizens. The money would be used in providing work for needy men, Herron pointed out after a conference with Mayor Charles H. Kline.

Mayor Kline intends calling another conference tomorrow or Thursday to discuss the plan. Expected to attend are Herron, Public Works Director Edward G. Lang, City Controller James P. Kerr, Mrs. Rauh and citizens' representatives.

Officials of welfare organizations and heads of the Welfare Fund clashed with Herron following his statement that the organizations were "letting the city hold the bag" in giving relief and were not doing their duty toward the poor.

BANK MERGER SLATED TODAY

The First National Bank of Birmingham, organized in 1865, and having an invested capital of $525,000 and deposits of $2,400,000, was to be merged with the Pittsburgh-Peoples Trust Company today. Business will be conducted in the South Side branch of the Peoples-Pittsburgh Bank at Eighteenth and Carson streets.

Officers of the South Side bank are: President, Thomas H. Sankey; vice president, W. S. Charles; cashier, Charles F. Beech, and directors, the officers and Joseph Goodman, J. S. McCarthy, J. F. Sankey and H. R. Hissrich.

The South Side branch of the Peoples-Pittsburgh Trust Company was formed last December when it was merged with the Peoples Trust Company of Pittsburgh.

Fitzgerald to Speak At Pitt Ceremony

John M. Fitzgerald, vice president of the Associated Traffic Clubs of America, will be the speaker at the midyear commencement of the University of Pittsburgh in Syria Mosque February 11. Dr. John G. Bowman, chancellor, announced that about 200 degrees will be conferred.

Viennese Child Specialist To Hold Clinic Here

Clinical demonstrations for guidance of the adolescent child will feature lectures at the University of Pittsburgh by Dr. Hugo Lukacs, celebrated Viennese psychiatrist, who arrives in America today on the S. S. Bremen. Dr. Lukacs is coming at the invitation of Edgar J. Kaufmann, and under sponsorship of the University.

Educated at the University of Budapest, and an official in various medical, educational and administrative colleges in Hungary and Austria, Dr. Lukacs has devoted most of his time since the war to psychiatric problems of adolescents. He is the author of more than a score of scientific works on this and kindred subjects and the vice president of the International Society for the Consultation and Advice of Youth.

Dr. Lukacs comes to America as the advocate for the Scientific Guidance of Youth, an outstanding social movement of post-war Europe. His theories, born of the drastic social reconstruction and developed under Vienna's stimulating tradition for psychological research, have aroused keen interest among educators in this country.

While in America Dr. Lukacs will probably lecture at various universities and at other educational, scientific and social welfare institutions.

COUNTY VOTING ZONE CHANGES UPHELD BY COMMISSION

REJECTS PLEA OF TOWNSHIPS' AUTHORITIES

Appeal to Keep Same Quota Of Officials Overridden: Court to Pass on Matter

The Redistricting Commission of Allegheny County has gone on record as declaring it will not reconsider changes made in first class townships unless legal difficulties force such action.

The decision followed a plea from the Association of Commissioners of First Class Townships that election districts be left alone in townships of the first and second class, thereby retaining the same number of commissioners. The present redistricting plan would reduce the number of commissioners in virtually every first class township.

AUTHORITY QUESTIONED

A committee of three commissioners appeared before the commission asserting that the present district lines are needed for proper representation and questioning the right of the redistricting commission to consolidate voting districts.

Members of the redistricting commission declared the fact that some township commissioners will lose their jobs will have no weight since about 2,000 election district jobs in the city have already been eliminated by action of the commission.

The legal aspect of the case, however, will be referred to Judge Harry H. Rowand of Quarter Sessions Court. Those who represented the township commissioners were William F. Armstrong, S. A. Schreiner and Henry A. Jones. About 25 townships of the first class are affected.

WORK ALMOST FINISHED

The work of redistricting the county is nearly complete. Hearings are being given citizens objecting to the new lines. A saving of more than $400,000 a year in election expense is estimated in Pittsburgh, McKeesport, Duquesne and Clairton. Economies will not be as large in the less thickly populated districts.

Action on Wilkinsburg and Jefferson township wards was deferred yesterday until January 26. Moon township was approved after a protest. West Deer township was revised after protest and approved. Other districts approved were Bellevue, Blawnox, Osborne, Haysville and Marshall, Richland, Sewickley, Sewickley Heights, Kilbuck and Ohio townships.

LEHMAN QUITS AS HOSPITAL BOARD CHIEF

Resigns Montefiore Post Because of Ill Health: 12 New Directors Named

Retirement of A. C. Lehman from the presidency of the Montefiore Hospital board was announced last night at the annual board meeting. Lehman gave ill health as his reason for ending 10 years of service. The meeting was attended by approximately 100 members of groups identified with conduct of the hospital. Twelve new directors were chosen.

A reorganization meeting is to be held Monday afternoon at which time Lehman's successor probably will be selected. The 12 directors voted on last night were Lee B. Foster, Mrs. Mortimer B. Lesher, Aaron Cohen, Maurice Falk, Raymond M. Kaufmann, Oscar Oppenheimer, Max Rothschild, Mrs. Chester C. Kaufmann, Nathaniel Speer, James J. Coyne, Albert C. Lehman and Bennie Neiman.

In his last report Lehman reviewed a year of achievement in providing the city with unified medical service. He pictured the financial problems brought about by erection of the new hospital and emphasized the type of service now provided, 77 per cent of which has been wholly or partly free. During 1930, 4,668 persons were treated at the hospital, of which service 33 per cent was free and 42 per cent partly free. In addition there were 28,000 visits to the out-patient department clinics.

Lecturer Stresses Part Mexicans' Daily Life Plays in Their Art

By PENELOPE REDD.

Penelope Redd

Without lantern slides, paintings, decorative objects, or other popular distractions, he created an atmosphere in which the history of Mexico was effectively laid in as background for illuminating anecdotes of Mexican manners and customs. He said:

"Art is most interesting when we understand the daily lives of the people who create it.

"Every feast the Mexicans arrange is composed in harmonious fashion. One cannot go any place in Mexico without realizing a strong atmosphere of living as an art."

DESCRIBES VILLAGE

Count d'Harnoncourt visualized artfully a remote village in which women with beads haloed by stiff lace, garbed in scarlet tunics with bright blue skirts, moved majestically against a brilliant background of white sand, white houses and ambient silver atmosphere. Then he elaborated on a feast of the Easter season in this village with candle light, jasmine, music and armorous songs, in pictures no less vivid than Rivera's mural paintings. This he used as an illustration of Mexican "unconscious" art in daily life.

Count d'Harnoncourt discussed what is commonly called the Renaissance of Mexican art, which he personally designates as "conscious" art. Since 1910, painters have placed their ability at the service of the government and have created mural paintings to astound the sophisticated world.

COMMON THROUGH NATION

Count d'Harnoncourt said:

"This art is not the work of one or two painters, but is common throughout the republic. Children have transformed great white surfaces of school, church and huts, including the dog houses, in the midst of a banana jungle into a marvelous example of Mexican fresco.

"Mexican artists are in the fortunate position of observing primitive people going about unconscious of their romance. The painters, thoroughly conscious, yet partake of the faith of their country and thus make an art that is an archetype for moderns the world wide."

GUNMAN ROBS TAXI DRIVER

A Negro holdup man who flourished two revolvers this morning robbed Charles Elk, a cab driver, of 8013 Ferndale street, of $4.25 in Sprague street, East End. After telling Elk to drive away after taking his money, and to make sure he sped off quickly, the highwayman fired several shots at the moving taxicab, Elk told East End police.

Elk said he had been called to the Columbia Hospital for a passenger and his fare was the robber. Inquiry at the hospital revealed that the thief had been loitering about the hospital for some time before he entered the lobby and asked the telephone operator to call him a taxi. Hospital attaches believe he intended to hold up the office clerk, but lost his nerve when he discovered several persons in the lobby.

BANDITS STAGE HOLDUPS; FLEE

Two bandits held up Paul Wilson, of 212 Fifth street, Aspinwall, an attendant in the service station of the Standard Oil Company, at Hamilton avenue and Putnam street, and rifled the cash register of $25 last night. They escaped in a stolen automobile.

LANG URGES SPEED IN REPAVING FOR SAKE OF ECONOMY

COSTS AT LOW MARK, COUNCIL INFORMED

Director Submits Schedule, Asking Jobs Wanted for Quick Action Be Selected

With the 1931 street repaving schedule in its hands, Council has been requested by the Department of Public Works to expedite as much as possible selection of projects for immediate action, so advantage can be taken of present low contract prices.

In a communication given Council yesterday with the schedule, which comprises nearly 30 streets, Public Works Director Edward G. Lang said:

"Low prices on contracts are apparent now. I suggest speedy action to take advantage of these economical prices. Another reason is the advantage of having the work out of the way so the engineering department can start work on other projects."

An early start on the repaving would provide employment for many workmen, it was said.

Estimated cost of the work is $866,800. Of this amount the city's share is $662,000, and that of the Pittsburgh Railways Company, $204,800. The railway's share is for repaving of streets where car tracks are part of the paving projected.

The estimates are in excess of the amount appropriated for this purpose and it is presumed Council will do considerable paring. The schedule was referred to the councilmanic Committee on Public Works.

Several grading, paving, curbing and sewer contract ordinances were in the hands of the city clerk today following presentation to Council yesterday by the Department of Public Works.

MUSIC
Chicago Symphony Orchestra
SYRIA MOSQUE

PROGRAM

Overture, "Husitzka," Opus 67 ..... Dvorak
Symphony, G Minor (Kochel 550) ..... Mozart
"Iberia," Images pour Orchestre, No. 2 ..... Debussy
"In the Streets and by the Wayside."
"The Perfumes of the Night."
"The Morning of a Fete Day."
Tone Poem, "Ein Heldenleben," Opus 40 ..... Strauss

The Chicago Orchestra presented a formidable program in Syria Mosque last night, and succeeded in making as great music as we have heard this season. Frederick Stock received a most touching ovation when, at the close of the Strauss tone poem, the audience remained reverently silent instead of bursting into applause.

J. Fred Lissfelt

There were striking contrasts in that program. An unfamiliar overture of Dvorak, written around a thrilling historical event (the Hussite Wars) and built upon a fervent hymn, was a stirring prelude for the concert. The clever playing of tympani lent most unusual color to the otherwise academic music. A fluent reading of the Mozart G Minor Symphony had many a sparkling phrase. Stock is always at court with Mozart and his minuet lost none of the pomp of the Viennese aristocracy.

But his Debussy came to us, page after page of fragments, colorless, spotted, without allurement, meaningless fiddling, hornplaying and bellringing. Now the Strauss "Heldenleben" was another thing. The composer wrote herein not only a clever biography but laid his cards before him and prophesied his future with some assurance. The program of this tone poem is indeed earthly enough, but the score is of magnificent proportions. Into it Strauss has poured all his wit, his demoniacal sophistication and self-assurance, and his genius for orchestration. The reminiscences of his other works, recounted during the playing of the hero's Mission of Peace, suggest how much greater are the themes of Don Juan and Zarathustra, but the writing for the solo violin will remain the mark of distinction for this symphony. Mischa Mischakoff, as concertmaster, played with virtuoso spirit, only emphasizing in his own work the quality of the entire orchestra.

PUPILS IN CAPES RULE TRAFFIC

When driving near a school building look for the boy with the cape and the cap, obey his signals and all will be well.

This is the advice of the Better Traffic Committee, which today announced that safety patrol members from public and parochial schools will wear yellow and black caps and capes while directing pupils safely across streets in the vicinity of schools.

The capes will be in the shape of ponchos, and the caps close-fitting helmets of the aviator style. The colors are those of the city of Pittsburgh.

Walter Rosenbaum, chairman of the education division of the Traffic Committee, said that the patrols are not to direct vehicular traffic, but merely assure that pedestrian school children cross streets in safety.

Funds for the new equipment for the boys were provided by City Council last December.

CITY WORKERS SOUND COUNCIL ON PENSIONS

Ask Expression of Sympathy On Revision Plan Giving Employes 'Break' on Age

Veteran city employes have asked Council and Mayor Charles H. Kline for an "expression of sympathy" in connection with a revision of the pension plan now in effect for those who work for the municipality.

In a communication presented to Council the employes ask that for each five years served over 20 years they be permitted to retire a year earlier. The usual retirement age is 60.

Should an employe serve his 20 years and still be under the age of 60, no provision is made in that case for retirement.

A pension at the salary average for the past five years is requested. The new plan proposes that if an employe serves 25 years he be permitted to retire at 59, and if he serves 30 years be permitted to quit at 58, and so on.

No one, however, would be permitted to retire earlier than 56 years of age. The pension laws are fixed by the State Legislature, and the petitioners informed Council they have conferred with the Allegheny County delegation in connection with the project.

PATRICIA PITT'S COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Miss Madelaine Alexander, Debutante, Honor Guest At Theater Party

Outshining all stellar social events of yesterday was the theater party Dr. and Mrs. Robert Milligan, of Sewickley and Ridge avenue, gave last night in the Nixon Theater in honor of Madelaine Alexander, debutante daughter of the Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Maitland Alexander.

Everyone in the debutante set of this year and the past winter still at home was there, and the young married set and many friends of the hosts, too. The boxes were filled with colorfully gowned women with the severe black of the men's attire accenting the brilliance of their costumes. And the first rows were all taken too by the guests at the party. Of course, many of the usual patrons of the theater were there, and there were even folks standing and applauding the show. "America's Sweetheart," as gay and as smart and as colorful as the patrons.

Guests at Supper

After the theater Dr. and Mrs. Milligan entertained their guests with a supper at their home. Mrs. Milligan looked charming in a smartly draped black velvet gown with rhinestones at the decolletage as the only ornament. Her long wrap was of black velvet with a collar of beige fox. And their daughter Peggy, who made her debut during the past winter, I saw in one of the boxes. She chose seafoam green chiffon. And the guest of honor, Madelaine Alexander, wore black transparent velvet with cream lace at the decolletage. Her wrap was of sapphire blue velvet with a shawl collar of white fox.

The Alan Magee Scaifes arrived with Mrs. Verner Scaife, who wore black chiffon. Mrs. Alan Scaife chose a striking gown of cloth of silver, having the popular cowl draping both in the front and back of the bodice and brief sleeves banded in chinchilla. The same fur placed at the hip-line gave the peplum effect, and the lower part of the skirt boasted many pleats.

* * *

Black Is Prominent

Others I noticed were Mrs. B. F. Jones III in a black velvet gown, Mrs. Harvey Childs III in black velvet and Mary Childs in black lace.

Among the younger set were Anne and Margaret Rose, wearing pistachio green satin gowns and finger tip white lapin jackets; Helen Pendleton in seafoam green chiffon; Laura Evans in black velvet with white fur as the only trimming, and Susan O'Neil in blue satin.

Mrs. Jack Bissell chose black chiffon and a coral velvet wrap. And Mrs. Gordon King wore scarlet and gold.

Caroline Crittenden chose a gold lace gown and a white ermine coat. Mrs. B. R. Shriver chose a black ensemble; Katherine Collin wore turquoise blue velvet with a jacket of white lapin.

And I saw Mrs. George A. Kelly, III, in her favorite color, green, arriving with Mrs. Reginald G. Quaile in black velvet. And I had a glimpse of Mrs. J. Porter Gillespie.

* * *

Brilliant Hues Seen

Mrs. William Standish wore black crepe with Kelly green for accent, and Helen Leovy wore apricot satin crepe with a wrap of black velvet having a scarf of ermine.

The William Dudley Livingstons were there too with Mrs. Livingston, the former Jane Edison, wearing black velvet and a wrap of beige lapin.

Mary Elizabeth Floyd was there, and Mrs. Lewis A. Park, looking smart in a vivid gown of green tulle and chiffon and a white ermine wrap, and Louise Reed, and Mrs. Reed Brown, and Mrs. W. Edgar Reed in a black velvet ensemble. Mary Black chose a cream taffeta gown printed with large scarlet motifs, and Clodagh McCune wore black velvet.

Jane Allderdice I saw, and Betty McKay, a deb of the season, in a smart gown of Algerian rust crepe satin with organdy flowers in the same shade outlining the decolletage and the briefest of brief sleeves.

* * *

Foyer Crowded

Mr. and Mrs. T. M. Jones III I saw in the crowded foyer during the only intermission, and Evelyn Evans, in red crepe, and Barbara Irwin and Virginia Goldsbury, and the Herbert A. Mays. Mrs. May wore black velvet and a long fitted coat of white ermine having a deep cape of the same material.

Mrs. T. J. Hilliard I had a glimpse of, and the Edward Purcell Mellons, back from their wedding trip, were there. Mrs. Mellon, the former Marian Stone, wore aquamarine satin, and Mrs. T. Howe Nimick chose violet satin. I believe I saw Virginia Wright in black velvet and Miss Marjorie Gethoefer in black chiffon. The Theodore F. Smiths were among the late arrivals with Mrs. Smith wearing black velvet.

Wedding Today

The lovely Twentieth Century Club is the scene this afternoon at 4:30 o'clock of the wedding of Anne Blakeley Watt, daughter of the Robert Pitcairn Watts, of Denniston avenue, and William H. Robinson, Jr., son of the William H. Robinsons, of Beechwood boulevard. Elaborate spring decorations are making the clubhouse still lovelier with the reception room transformed into a summer garden with trees and hedges and lovely spring flowers and garden statuary adding to the illusion. Officiating is the Rev. Dr. Asbury Krom, of Providence, R. I.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, is wearing a distinctive gown of white satin with close-fitting sleeves of rose point and duchess lace, worn by her mother, with a peplum at the hipline terminating in a long court train. U. S. Studies British Jobless Insurance

LONDON, Jan. 20.—(INS.)—The London Daily Mail reported today that a secret American mission has been in England for some time studying the manner of operation of the British unemployment insurance system.

It was believed here that government departments are aware of the mission's activities, but American official representatives denied all knowledge of its existence.

20th Century Club Told Of Seeing 'World on One Leg' by Walter

Forty-five thousand miles (around the world), 19 operations en route and back to Seattle with $16 in his pocket ($1 more than he had started with a year and a half before) and all this on one leg. The details of this amazing trip constituted the refreshing, buoyant tale told to the Twentieth Century Club yesterday morning by young Ellery Walter, author of "The World on One Leg," which is in its eighth edition.

There was no hint in his talk of anything but the "good breaks" (although his audience could not help sensing the pluck and indomitable courage of the lad) which Mr. Walter told with such contagious humor that the women were kept in a continuous state of laughter.

The personality of the speaker as projected to his audience yesterday is probably sufficient reason in itself, without any of the accommodating circumstances, for Mr. Walter's having met and become friendly with such persons as the Asquiths, Mussolini (Il Duce was greeted on first acquaintance with a "Howdy Benito"—but that was on a dare), Lloyd George and many other notables.

Mrs. Carroll Miller introduced Mr. Walter as "youth, student, lecturer, author, financier and adventurer supreme," and after hearing him tell of having worked his way through the University of Washington, studying for a fellowship, rowing on the crew, working eight hours at night and "running the university on the side" or of his experiences upon landing in England with three manuscripts and 10 shillings or bent for "Heaven, Hell or Hoboken" (one of the chapter captions in his book) with 45 cents, yesterday's audience was about ready to concur with Mrs. Miller.

Incidentally, Mr. Walter spoke of Lady Asquith as "looking like nothing so much as two profiles pasted together."

THE KIND OF DENTIFRICE THAT DENTISTS CONSIDER THE MOST EFFECTIVE?

Do you sometimes wonder if you actually are taking the best care of your teeth and gums? Then, you'll welcome the expert advice of thousands of American dentists. They overwhelmingly agree on one kind of dental cream.

A leading research institution made an investigation among 50,000 practicing dentists in order that this question of the most effective dentifrice might be authoritatively answered. Read the summary of the replies received:

95% of the answers stated that germ acids most frequently cause tooth decay and gum irritation;

95% agreed that the most serious trouble occurs at the place where teeth and gums meet;

85% stated that the best product to prevent these acids from causing decay and irritating the gums is Milk of Magnesia.

Surely this is real assurance that you could select no better dentifrice to protect your teeth and gums than Squibb Dental Cream. For it is made with more than 50% Squibb Milk of Magnesia.

WE NOW PRESENT

By DARRELL V. MARTIN, Radio Editor.

It's nip and tuck tonight between the stage and Mother Goose rhymes.

If Ruth Etting doesn't make you polly-wog with her Broadway recitation of "Ten Cents a Dance" (KDKA at 9) then it's up to Sig Spaeth and Ann Ronell to finish the job on WCAE at 9:30.

* * *

* * *

Ann Ronell, the girl who composed "Baby's Birthday Party" and now reaping royalties on one of the five best selling song hits, tells first hand how she did it for WCAE fans at 9:30. "Doc" Spaeth goes kindergarten in the same program with a musical version of "Jack and Jill," done first as an oratorio, then as an Italian opera and last as modern American jazz.

* * *

* * *

Before ink had dried on CBS stationery announcing the system as "the largest network in the world," NBC came along last night and added its seventy-fourth station—CFCF at Montreal—tying the score.

* * *

QUESTION A DAY:

Do listeners on KDKA's short wave hear the announcement "KDKA and W8XK" the same as those on the standard wave?—Boys at the Homestead Postoffice.

Answer—Yes. One announcement made in Studio "C" serves all listeners.

* * *

Movie directors with contracts in their pockets are following Raymond Knight, of "Cuckoo" fame. Ray's sketches have been exceedingly funny lately. KDKA tonight at 10:30.

* * *

* * *

John McCormack sings over KDKA on Thursday, February 5.

* * *

From Director of Public Safety James M. Clark:

"When the question of installing Pittsburgh's police radio system is to be discussed we shall be glad to have your advice in the situation. Please accept our thanks for your kind offer."

Televising pictures of criminals is the latest. It's being tried by WMAQ and the Chicago police. You may call us when ready, Mr. Clark.

* * *

TODAY'S TID BIT:

In London there is no chime for station standbys; merely the ticking of a clock indicates that the key station is on the air and it has come time for associated stations to say something. Not a bad idea.

The LOUDSPEAKER

—By LOUIS REID—

NEW YORK, Jan. 20.—The broadcasters call Herbert Hoover radio's ideal speaker. It all depends upon what they mean by ideal. If it means promptness, rigid adherence to schedule and attention at all times to the microphone, they are justified in giving the laurel to the President.

* * *

Mr. Hoover, they declare, is never late. His speeches run the specified time, almost to the minute. His voice never varies, and from the standpoint of the radio engineers, it is easier to handle than the voices of most speakers, for he always faces the microphone.

* * *

From the standpoint of diction, resonance and clarity of voice and excellence of delivery J. Ramsay MacDonald, it is our notion, is radio's ideal speaker. Moreover, MacDonald can always be depended upon to color his talks with anecdote, figures of speech, poetic allusions, and he speaks with a fervor, a sincerity that make him one of the most attractive figures on the microphone.

* * *

The broadcasters say that Secretary of Agriculture Hyde has the best radio voice in the President's cabinet, while Secretary Wilbur is more at home before the microphone than any man in Washington. Certainly both have had long training as radio talkers. Hyde, in 1930, was on the air more than any other cabinet member. Wilbur was not far behind him.

* * *

With the government represented more and more on the air, Washington has rapidly recovered from any sign of microphonic fright. Senators, cabinet members, departmental subordinates now speak in natural, conversation tones. No longer do they hesitate and stammer.

The best radio speakers on Capitol Hill—such men as Borah, Vandenberg, Bingham, Barkley—do not, however, face the microphones often. Barkley, in particular, showed a new and humorous side when he announced in the most booming voice this side of the Potomac, or the other side for that matter, the congressional horseshoe tournament last spring.

If all advertising chatter on the radio were handled as adroitly as Bull Munday's introduction of Bobby Jones, there would never be any cause for complaint from the ear-cuppers. It was Munday's first appearance as a ballyhoo man. He spoke briefly—not more than 15 or 20 seconds, it seemed—on the merits of a mouth wash and then put his listeners in a good frame of mind by saying,

"Well, that's over."

Gassy Stomach Pain Ends Quick

"I suffered for months from indigestion and gas on the stomach," says C. Bedford, of Detroit, Mich. "I got relief from the very start by taking ACIDINE. I could not eat without being troubled with gas, pain and dizziness. Since taking ACIDINE each day I feel entirely better, and have had no pains at all."

Almost everyone who takes ACIDINE raves about it. More than two million packages have been sold. It's absolutely amazing the way this new prescription succeeds when other known remedies fail.

ACIDINE is the only known remedy which contains Japtase, that in laboratory tests digests 800 times its weight of certain heavy, starchy foods which cause trouble. It neutralizes burning acids, soothes irritated stomach linings, stops gassy headaches, sleeplessness and nervousness. No other known remedy contains this combination to end acid stomach. ACIDINE also fortifies you against colds by reducing acidity.

Get ACIDINE today at your druggist. Watch how quick acid indigestion, burning stomach, belching, pain, heartburn, dizziness, fullness, short breath vanish. Eat, drink all you want. Maker refunds money if not delighted.

TELL IT TO SALLY

By SALLY MARTIN

Girl Sad Because In-Laws Disapprove of Family

Martin picked Molly out of all the girls he knew . . . and he thought she was Swell . . . the sweetest little gal a guy ever had—

Until mother 'n' Uncle Simeon 'n' Cousin Laura got wind of Who She Was.

Then he heard plenty . . . and he's beginning to take it seriously.

"How'd you ever demean yourself to marry a girl like that?" they sniffed noses in the air. "Why, her family's common! You should have remembered that we Highlids, etc., etc.—

And so another marriage is skidding to a smash . . . and poor Molly's heart is breaking.

"Dear Miss Martin:

"You seem so good at mending sore hearts and straightening out terrible tangles that I'm bringing my trouble to you in the hope that you can help me out.

Relatives Disapprove

"The trouble is—my husband's folks. I know that's nothing new. Most wives have some such problem to get around I guess. But I think mine is a little unusual at that.

"You see Martin's folks think a great deal of 'family,' and I have none to speak of. None of my ancestors came over in the Mayflower or fought in the Revolutionary War or anything like that. None of them were ever hung either so far as I know. But they don't come up to snuff with my in-laws not by a long ways. And somehow it's getting to be a sort of canker on our marriage.

"I didn't live here when I met Martin. I lived in another city. And we were married there. My folks had a little store and I had just an ordinary education. They didn't care particularly. They're just ordinary, honest citizens with no frills and no particular pedigree. And that seems to be a terrible crime in the eyes of Martin's mother and his other relatives.

Hubby Following Example

"And the real trouble is he seems to be getting high hat like that himself. I know they have talked to him until he honestly believes that he and his are better than me and mine . . . and that attitude is beginning to creep into pretty nearly everything that he says and does, and it is breaking my heart, Sally, no less. Because I just can't stand for him to feel that way, silly as you may think it is. I'm proud of my people, and, between you and me, they're a whole lot sweeter and friendlier and more human than Martin's cool, rather formal family. They wouldn't think of treating a daughter-in-law the way Martin's people have treated me. They wouldn't think of high-hatting any decent man or woman because of 'family.'

"But what am I to do? I know if things keep on the way they're going, Martin's people will break up our marriage sooner or later. I can see him going away from me more every day, pushing my ideas aside as something too unimportant to bother with. I don't think he realizes this, but it's true nevertheless.

"Please help me. Tell me how I can bring back the comradeship we used to know when we were first married. Martin was so sweet to me then. And he seemed to like my people. If we only hadn't come here! But that's done now. Is there any way to fight this situation? They seem so mean and unfair. And it hurts terribly.

"MOLLY."

Is there a way to fight it? Well, I'll admit it's a tough proposition, but I'm sure there is if you'll use your spunk and and your wits. Of course, these people are being unfair if they're doing what you say. But feeling sorry for yourself on that account won't help you defeat them. And you can't defeat them by quarreling with them . . . or with Martin.

It's equally true that ancestors don't cut much real ice in the world . . . unless their possessors live up to them . . . and the chances are that these people are not living up to theirs if they're trying to freeze you out of the family from sheer snobbery.

May Be Own Fault

Perhaps, after all, they're not doing that. Perhaps, without realizing it, you have little ways and mannerisms that actually do grate on people. Ways and mannerisms that Martin didn't notice at first, because he was so much in love with you. And if that's true, honey, you have the trump card right in your own hands. Because things like that can be changed if we have the wit and the courage to see ourselves clearly, and then do a little hustling.

So sit down and look yourself over carefully. Be sure of your own manners . . . your own grooming . . . your own good sense and alert wits. If there are things you don't know, study them. Find out just what you are and what you need to be. And then sit down and talk it over, calmly and quietly, with that husband of yours. Ask for his understanding and his help. Make him see how anxious you are to make a happy, vital going concern of your marriage. . . . And make him understand how much you need his help and his co-operation to do it.

And then snap into it! Make him so proud of you that he won't pay any attention to the old folks, even if they do sniff at your family tree. You can do that if you're the smart kid I think you are.

You can do even more. You can make them proud of you. You can make them so proud of you that they'll have to admit that it isn't where you started from that counts, it's how far you get!

Household Hints

Turn the small rugs frequently so the wear will not always be in the same place.

Leather furniture needs care just as does fabric upholstery—but not the same kind. And don't wait until the leather begins to show wear. Begin when it is new to give it an occasional rubbing with linseed oil. This will prevent it from cracking and drying.

Don't form the habit of placing things to go upstairs on the last few treads of the flight. Someone coming down stairs might not see them and have a very nasty fall.

If the raincoat is too long for the child, fasten the hem with adhesive tape to the desired length. Then as the youngster grows the raincoat may be let down accordingly.

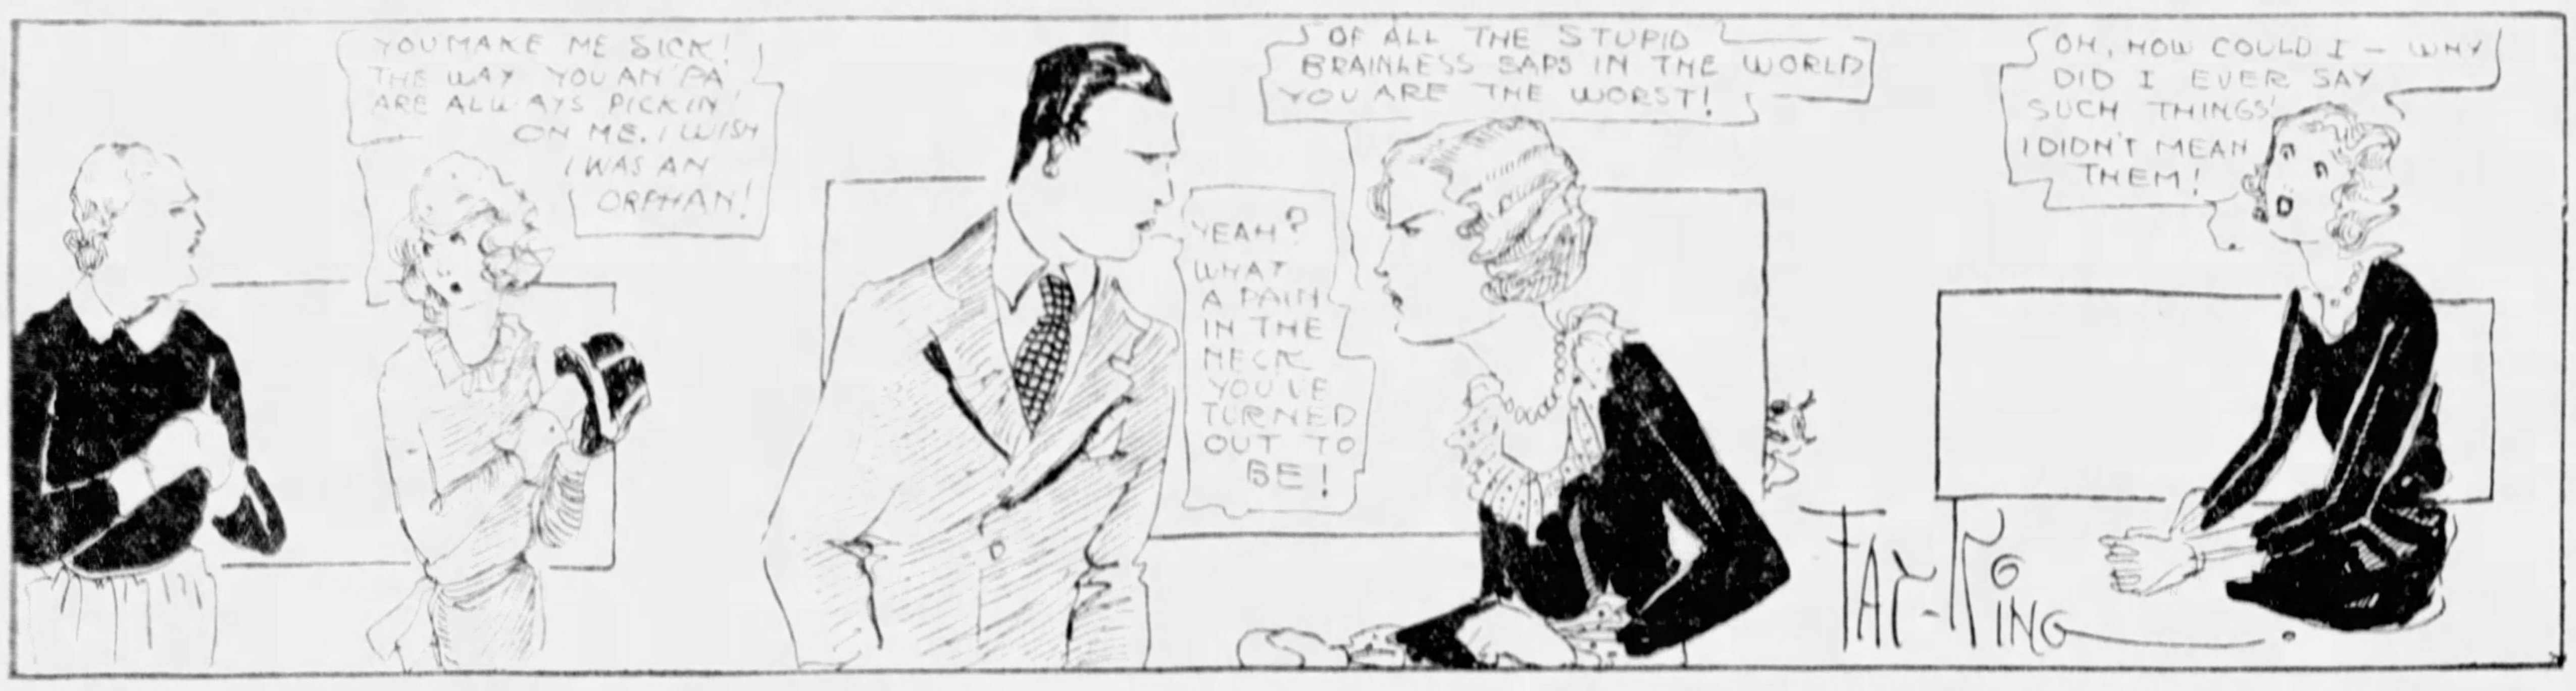
Unpleasant Words Seem More Easily Said Than Pleasant Ones—Fay King



YOU MAKE ME SICK! THE WAY YOU AN' PA ARE ALLWAYS PICKIN' ON ME. I WISH I WAS AN ORPHAN!
OF ALL THE STUPID BRAINLESS SAPS IN THE WORLD YOU ARE THE WORST!
OH, HOW COULD I — WHY DID I EVER SAY SUCH THINGS! I DIDN'T MEAN THEM!
FAY-KING

By FAY KING

It is a queer quirk of human nature that unpleasant things are so easily said and pleasant ones more difficult.

It seems we are never at a loss for harsh words, but too often do not voice the praise, affection or appreciation we feel, because the words do not come quickly enough.

Unkind things so readily said are seldom meant, and if the kind ones we mean could be spoken as freely they would more than balance the bad.

Quarrels, misunderstandings, broken hearts and countless tears are all the result of the haste and ease with which harsh and thoughtless words are uttered.

It is not less wit, but more wisdom that stays even the clever words that carry a sting within their cleverness.

Love's Reawakening

Continuation of Love's Awakening

By ADELE GARRISON

Madge Believes That All Was Not News to Veritzen

I looked at Mr. Veritzen in carefully simulated astonishment as he said that he must see his son at once, that he could not wait until Noel awakened in the afternoon.

"Surely you do not understand, Mr. Veritzen," I said. "Noel has been ill, following the attack upon him, and his nurse, Mrs. Bickett, has brought him to convalescence only by great effort. She permitted him to come up here for Mary's party because she thought the change might banish for a little the brooding which is sapping his strength. But she is most insistent that when he is asleep he shall not be disturbed until he wakens. Neither Mr. Underwood, his wife, nor I would dare go against her dictum and awaken him. But if you care about it, the 'phone is right over there. If you get her permission anyone of us would waken him for you."

"No, I will not trouble her," he said. "I have had experience with trained nurses before. They never change their decisions nor their opinions whether they are right or wrong. It will be no use to appeal to her, and of course I cannot ask any of you people to go contrary to her instructions."

"I am glad you see that," I murmured, "because it would be very hard for us otherwise. Please believe that we hate to refuse any request of yours."

He looked at me queerly.

"I wonder how much you mean of that," he said. "But, first, what do you mean by an attack upon Noel? What attack?"

Was he really ignorant of the injury to his son which Jack Leslie had instigated? His voice and words spelled sincerity, but Mary's passionate doubt of him rose in my mind. I watched him narrowly as I answered.

"I forgot that you have been away and could not know about it. But a few weeks ago Noel was struck over the head by a man who leaped from that building they are constructing between here and the corner. As the man leaped back again he said that the blow was from Jack Leslie and that he would receive a worse one the next time."

Mr. Veritzen sprang to his feet, and if he were stimulating anger he was indeed a great actor.

"Jack Leslie!" he said. "He would never dare! But did he give no warning?"

My brain felt as if something were racing inside of it. Through the swirl there finally came two distinct conclusions. My employer had been surprised at Jack Leslie's attack upon Noel and resented it, but he had not been surprised at the presence of the "capering cockroach" in New York when he was supposed to be at the other end of the world. Was that because he himself was using Leslie?

"Oh, yes, he gave warning," I said, "in exactly the way a rattlesnake does before it strikes. But it was not to Noel that he gave the warning, but to Mary."

"To Mary?" Was it my imagination or did his voice have a counterfeit ring now? "He has come back and talked to Mary then? I was always afraid that I faced him steadily and interrupted him.

"You cannot mean that you were afraid Mary was interested in him," I said sternly, and his eyes shifted from mine.

"No—not exactly," he said, "but I cannot understand her talking to him after her experience with him."

"Do you think she talked with him willingly?" I demanded, and swept on without waiting for a reply.

"That unspeakable villain cornered her in Riverside Park when she was out for a walk, tried to make love to her and when she repulsed him snarled out a blackmailing demand to meet him every week with $35 on pain of injury to Noel."

"The low, double-crossing—" Mr. Veritzen began, then cut himself off short while my pulses hammered wildly.

"He told her," I went on, as if unnoticing his interruption, "that he would show her what he meant very soon, and that very night the attack came. Since then we have guarded Mary and Noel as rigidly as if they were a royal couple in danger of assassination. Leslie has disappeared, but even if he were in the same hotel he would have no chance even to speak to Mary or Noel. We have made a compact to protect those two children from anything that could harm them."

I looked steadily at him as I spoke.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Informality in the Business Office

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My husband has an office where a number of girls are employed. Among them is my sister-in-law, a typist. Occasionally I go to the office, and my sister-in-law calls me by my first name when talking to me in front of the employes, or when referring to me among them. As a result the other employes have taken the same privilege and have called me by my first name the few times that they have had occasion to say anything to me. I am not insistent upon formality in most things, but I think that my sister-in-law, being one of the employes, should set the example for the other employes and should call me Mrs. Brown during office hours, or at least whenever other employes are present. Kindly inform me as to whether I am right in insisting that I be called Mrs. Brown by all the employes, and if my sister-in-law should not call me Mrs. Brown during office hours?

READER.

I agree with you that it is natural for you to resent the other employes of the office calling you by your first name, but I don't by any means agree with you that your sister should refer to you by your formal name, even when she is in the office and is talking to the other employes. This would sound stilted and rather ridiculous, and your sister would, I am sure, feel foolish doing this.

It seems strange that this informality started in the office, and the only way that you can change it is by being very formal with the employes when you go to the office, or else accept, in a thoroughly friendly manner what they probably mean as thorough friendliness. Why not do this? After all, it isn't serious, and since it is started you might just as well let it takes its own momentum.

In Regard to Soup and Bouillon

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. We have had an argument as to whether it is proper when eating (or drinking) soup to tip one's plate in order to consume the last few spoonfuls.

2. Also regarding bullion. Is it sipped from the cup or from the spoon?

J. L.

1. Although, obviously, it is supposed to be more 'punctilious' not to tip the plate to capture the last few spoonfuls of soup, I see no real reason, especially when we are dining informally, not to enjoy these good-to-the-last-drop mouthfuls if the soup is good and if we wish to enjoy it in its entirety. But it should be done as gracefully as possible!

2. The very best way for this is to test the heat of the bouillon by sipping the first few mouthfuls with the bouillon spoon and then drinking the rest of the bouillon as you would drink tea.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Don't End Pursuit of Health in the Winter

It is a pleasure to find on sale today an occasional book that goes right to the heart. My friend Harry Hershfield has just published his "Super City," a brilliant novel, a gripping tale of human interest. But more than this, the book is rich in philosophical comment.

Dr. Copeland

In my reading I lingered over a trifling incident, unimportant to the plot, but it contains a hint worth observing. Three friends had just finished a heavy lunch. In spite of good October weather, balmy and bright, they lolled in their chairs with the club windows tightly closed.

The author commented:

"It is surprising how rich men, who engage in the expensive outdoor sports of golfing, polo and tennis, take advantage of unhealthy, smug comfort whenever they can."

It is, indeed, surprising that men who profess to live the out-of-doors will submit to the vile air found in many of their indoor haunts. Clubs, offices, lodge rooms, even dining rooms, are frequently stifling. The atmosphere is polluted and the simplest hygenic rules of right living are utterly disregarded. Why is it?

If golf is a pose and other outdoor sports are merely games to please grown-up boys, let us confess the truth. But, if we indulge in these things, even partly for health's sake, let us not end our health pursuit when we go indoors. Let us see to it that the inside places are decent places in which to live.

Persons who are undernourished have thin blood. The circulation is poor, and even slight exposure may bring a chill. Nothing overcomes this sensitiveness as quickly as proper feeding and habitual exposure of the skin to sunlight.

If your duties are such that during the winter season you are denied the advantage of regular exercise out-of-doors, there must be found a substitute for sunlight. In this connection talk with your doctor about the ultra-violet lamps. A few minutes' exposure to their rays will do almost as much good as several hours in the sunshine. They will build up in your skin a resistance to heat and cold.

Try to make this an exceptional winter. Give the same thought to your indoor living that you give to your expensive outdoor sports.

There can be no doubt that the average individual declines in vigor during the cold weather. This is not necessary if thought is given to the problem. You can govern your life, if you will, so that spring time will find you fit and fine.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Wednesday, January 21

The planetary conditions in dominant rulership on this day may not be deemed as fortunate, excepting for those in the employment of others, who may enjoy some small recognition or favor from their superiors. Otherwise there may be encountered a state of turmoil and perturbation vexing the spirit and reacting on the physical condition. Finances are in a critical arc and there is a sign of duplicity, fraud or subtle undoing.

Those whose birthday it is may not expect a very advantageous year unless their employment brings them some preferment or gratification. There is a general state of turmoil, confusion and dissension, with finances imperiled and the menace of fraud, trickery and secret attack. Be on guard against these.

A child born on this day may have a rather diffident and retiring nature and should seek employment far from the prospect of clamor, strife and confusion.

"The magic of charm! Men can grow tired of beauty, neglect it, but the silken threads of charm hold forever.

"Believe me when I say these 2 rules of charm are as important to WIVES as to brides—

Rules of Charm

1. Choose lovely, colorful lingerie. 2. Never let it become faded and drab.

"Not impossible rules! Dainty, lacy lingerie is not extravagant if you wash it in Lux, for Lux keeps it new so much longer than ordinary 'good' soaps do.

"Lux never fades delicate colors. Lux never robs a garment of softness and sheen. It's a wonderful soap and it's one of the great aids to exquisite feminine charm!

"REMEMBER, too, that your HOME should express and emphasize your charm to your husband. Here also Lux is essential in keeping colorful curtains, slip covers, linens freshly lovely!"

By WILLIAM F. BROOKS,
Corporal Battery C, 6th Trench Mortar Battalion, A. E. F.

En route to Brest, France, December 13, 1918, our special train traveled so slowly that "Rumor Sergt." Clough, ex-Philadelphia policeman, passed out word that our arrival there was to be timed with that of President Wilson, on his way to the Paris Peace Conference.

Many comrades couldn't understand why our train was sidetracked outside Brest. After a wait of hours, President Wilson's special train shot by. Our view of it through the tiny windows was limited, there was an order against opening doors, and every man was required to be in his respective box car.

purpose of the war office to continue.

Lack of Unity Costly

There was considerable criticism by certain officials of their government regarding the excessive cost in man power of these offensives, which it was alleged, could not materially affect the final outcome. The superiority of the Allies during the first half of 1917 would no doubt have produced greater results if there had been unity in the conduct of operations, but the Allies did not appear to realize that without it there could be little prospect of gaining more than a temporary local advantage.

The theory of winning by attrition with isolated attacks on limited fronts, which was evidently the idea of the British General Staff, did not appeal to me in principle, especially because they could not afford the losses in view of the shortage of men which they, themselves, said existed.

Gen. Trenchard

Scarcely anything more strikingly impressed upon me our unpreparedness than what I saw during a few hours spent with Gen. Trenchard at the British flying field, where we witnessed fliers doing every imaginable stunt, and saw planes of all classes, bombing, pursuit and observation, motors of different types and the thoroughly equipped repair shops.

Good Understanding

The outstanding thing, however, which it was gratifying to note later on in our own aviation personnel, was the incomparable spirit and alertness of the young officers and the enlisted personnel. Every man seemed to be disappointed when a flight of planes departed for the front without him.

Trenchard was an expert flier and probably the most progressive officer of aviation in any army. Few people then thought that the development of aviation could ever reach his conception of its possibilities. He was a very strong advocate of bombing, and the British were doing a lot of it at that time. A year later Gen. Trenchard brought the British Independent Bombing Corps to our front, where it served under my command for the St. Mihiel operation.

This visit to British headquarters was most instructive, as every opportunity was given us to study intimately the details of their wartime organization. After similar studies of the French system, we selected from each those features best suited to perfect a well-balanced staff for our own army.

The cordial relations and good understanding established between Sir Douglas Haig and myself and between the corresponding members of our staffs and with a number of the leading British officers with whom we were later to have official dealings, proved very advantageous. In London, long after the Armistice, Sir Douglas, in an after-dinner speech, referred to this visit, which happened during a period of depression, and said that our timely appearance at his headquarters had aroused in them a strong feeling of hopefulness for the future.

My diary at this time notes the following:

> Paris, Thursday, July 26, 1917. Had breakfast yesterday at the Crillon with Mr. Lloyd George. He is alert and energetic and has a clear conception of Allied problems. Took lunch with Mr. Balfour, who thinks we have reason to feel easier regarding submarines. Representatives of the various Allies met for conference on general situation. In the evening M. Ribot, the Prime Minister, gave a state dinner to officials attending conference.
>
>
> In conference this afternoon with Petain, Cadorna, Robertson and Foch at latter's office. Discussed military plans, talked about tonnage possibilities and shortage of personnel. All pessimistic and reserved.
>

Avoids Politics

The conference of allied representatives was one of those periodical meetings held to discuss the situation, both political and military, and to decide upon policies and programs. The French were anxious that we should participate, and Premier Ribot had requested Washington to designate our ambassador and myself to attend. M. Jules Cambon, minister of foreign affairs, whom I had known many years before he was ambassador at Washington, asked me to urge Washington that we should be represented. Speaking for the French government, he felt that we should begin to take part in allied councils and have a voice in directing policies.

It seemed to me, and I so cabled Secretary of War Baker, that for the moment we should limit ourselves to the consideration of purely military questions and not become involved in political matters that affected only the Allies.

This view was approved by Secretary Baker as being in accord with the opinion of President Wilson, which had been conveyed to the French government. Therefore, arrangements were made for a separate meeting of the military leaders.

During breakfast with Mr. Lloyd George, as noted in my diary, he pointed out the grave consequences of continued German success against Russia, his conclusions being those already reached by everyone concerning the outlook. This situation, he thought, made it especially important that the Americans should assume the responsibility of helping to decide the course to be followed by the Allies. I explained that President Wilson felt that for the present we should join only in the consideration of the military aspects of the general situation.

Russians Overwhelmed

Kerensky

The meeting of the allied military leaders, July 26, which was my first, brought out little that was hopeful. The political relations of the Allies were touched upon in a general way, but only so far as they might affect the military situation. The most significant recent event, of course, had been the crisis in Russia. Kerensky had succeeded in reviving the spirits of the Russian armies in Galicia, and they were able to make considerable gains against the Austro-Germans.

The effort had been short-lived, however, the Russian armies in the end had been badly beaten by the vigorous attacks of their opponents, and reports indicated that great demoralization existed throughout the nation. Although lacking complete information, the opinion prevailed in the conference that Russia was practically eliminated as a military factor. Yet one or two of the officers expressed some lingering hope that she might still be encouraged to offer further resistance to the Germans. Under the circumstances, little doubt existed that the Germans would be able to renew activities on the Western front by spring at the latest.

With reference to American assistance, I gave in detail the situation as to our man power, immediate and prospective, especially in the light of the latest plans of the department, and laid particular emphasis on the necessity of additional shipping. A cablegram had just been received in response to mine of July 6 in which I had requested that at least a million men reach France by the following spring.

This message, indicating that the War Department foresaw small chance of securing the necessary tonnage, was read to the conference in part as follows:

> "By using all shipping which is now in sight for the purpose and which will be available after month of November, the plan proposes to transport to France by June 15, 1918, 21 divisions, comprising about 420,000 men, together with auxiliary troops and replacement troops, line of communication troops, and others, amounting to 214,975 men, making a total of 634,975 men."

Although short of my recommendations, even this schedule could be carried out only by a very large increase of tonnage. The other members of the conference were of the opinion that if new adjustments could be made there might be shipping for nine or 10 of our divisions before spring. So for the moment, there did not seem to be the slightest chance of transporting a million men to France by the following June.

Losses Cause Anxiety

As to the state of their respective armies, Robertson pointed out that the British casualties had been heavy during the year and their man power greatly reduced. Petain mentioned their severe losses and said that the French could only slightly augment their strength. Cadorna said the Italian Army was little if any better off. The depletion of Allied resources in men caused considerable anxiety among them in the face of the probability of having to meet the full force of the Central Powers in the spring.

After canvassing the whole situation, the conference expressed the unanimous opinion that a defensive role should be adopted on all secondary fronts. The British and French representatives hoped that the surplus troops resulting from this course might be available to strengthen their armies in France, and Gen. Cadorna, of course, thought the Italian armies should have their share. The following cable conveyed to Washington the conclusions of the conference:

> "General conclusions reached were necessity of adoption purely defensive attitude on all secondary fronts and withdrawal surplus troops for duty on western front. By thus strengthening western front believed Allies could hold until American forces in sufficient numbers arrived to gain ascendency.
> "To accelerate participation American forces and provide necessary transport for American army and movement of armies from secondary fronts conference recommends that question of shipping be immediately taken up by Inter-Allied Commission. However, consensus of opinion was that steps should be taken by Allies to determine part to be played by America, Great Britain, France and possibly Japan to support Russia with a view to avoiding extreme eventualities."

GRAY HAIR IS EASILY DARKENED

Tells How She Did It With a Home-Made Remedy.

Mrs. E. H. Boots, a well-known resident of Buchanan County, Ia., who darkened her gray hair, made the following statement:

"Anyone can darken their gray or faded hair, and look twenty years younger with this simple remedy, which they can mix at home. To half a pint of water add 1 ounce of bay rum, one small box of Barbo Compound and ¼ ounce of glycerine. These ingredients can be purchased at any drug store at very little cost. Apply to the hair every other day until the gray hair is darkened sufficiently. It does not color the scalp, is not greasy and does not rub off. It will make a gray-haired person look twenty years younger."

PITT COACH RENAMED RULES ADVISOR

Dr. J. B. Sutherland

DR. J. B. SUTHERLAND, football coach at the University of Pittsburgh for the last seven seasons, has again been signally honored among the gridiron mentors of the country. For the second year in succession he has been named a member of the coaches' advisory board to the football rules committee, one of the most important posts in connection with the annual overhauling of the code. It amounts to the selection of the Panther chief to present the recommendations made by the coaches of the country at their annual meeting in New York recently and also to give the rules committee the benefit of his own individual pigskin knowledge and experience.

The appointment is all the more an honor to Sutherland and to the local football field because it is the second straight time that Jock has been chosen. He served in a similar capacity last year, along with Pop Warner, of Stanford, Bob Zuppke, of Illinois, and Bill Alexander, of Georgia Tech, and the reappointment attests that his work was highly satisfactory.

SPEAKING OF FOOTBALL appointments it was rumored that one selection would mean the loss to the game of an official long ranked among the best in the land. When Bill Crowell was appointed on the rules committee from the second district to replace Bill Roper it was reported that Crowell would give up officiating.

However, the rumor turns out to have been unfounded. Crowell will continue to serve in the role he has filled so long and so ably, and will be appointed to a full schedule of games for next fall by Walter Okeson. Officials of Crowell's type and ability are all too few, and football could ill afford to lose another on top of the loss of Judge John P. Egan.

IN PREDICTING WHILE in Pittsburgh yesterday that his Notre Dame football team would lose at least three games next season after losing 14 letter men, Coach Knute Rockne could have pointed to a schedule showing that a tumble or two for the Irish may not be beyond the bounds of possibility.

Indiana, Drake and Chicago may not make a great deal of trouble, but Pitt, Carnegie Tech, Southern California, Army, Navy, Northwestern and Penn spell plenty of bother.

"SURE, WE PLAY only good games," Rockne said. "Why shouldn't we? We generally have a pretty good team, and if we are going to play the game honestly and in sportsmanlike fashion—which we are—we certainly are not going to pick on teams that haven't a chance to beat us. I don't like the so-called practice games that some colleges play. There is nothing fair about them, for one team is assured of victory and the other of a sound beating that might entail serious injuries to the players."

Joe Harris

JOE HARRIS, whose trusty bat used to win major league games for the Pirates and other clubs, will be 39 in May, but he still is one of the most valuable men in the big minors, as his record for Toronto last year shows.

Official averages of the International League disclose that Joe hit for the healthy mark of .333 in 114 games and ranked sixteenth in batting among the players who took part in 100 or more contests. He made 115 hits in 345 times at bat, his safeties including 21 doubles, eight triples and 11 home runs, knocked in 82 runs and struck out only 11 times.

CONSIDERING NUMBER OF games played, Jim Collins, the new Cardinal first baseman, led the International in hitting with an average of .376 in 167 games for Rochester. He made the most hits, 234; most triples, 19, and knocked in the greatest number of runs, 180, the latter being a new league record.

Collins played on the Johnstown pennant-winners of 1925 with Joe Cronin, Eddie Montague and other Pirate recruits. Former Buccaneers besides Harris who had big seasons in the International last year included Pete Scott, with 32 homers for Reading; Willie Windle, with a batting average of .332 for Newark, and Jim Stroner with 27 homers and a mark of .331 for Baltimore.

IN THE EXPRESSED view that there is little difference between the old and new standard golf balls, Walter Hagen is backed up by Johnny Farrell. "If you [illegible] scores today with those of a year ago you will see that the scoring is as low as it was previously if not actually better," Farrell says. "Last year Gene Sarazen won the Miami open with a score above 300. This year Joe Turnesa won with the new ball with a score of 294. I had 295, whereas a year ago I had a score almost 10 shots higher."

AN UNUSUAL EXPLANATION is given by Paul Lowry, Los Angeles critic, at this late day for the action of Alabama in calling signals in the Tournament of Roses football game from regular formation without resorting to the huddle.

He says it wasn't done to save time, as has been claimed for Alabama, but because Hurry Cain, the Tuscaloosa signal caller, was a sophomore while the other members of the regular team almost to a man were seniors. "In the huddle," Lowry explains, "the older players would be likely to overrule Cain whereas in the regular formation Cain could call the signals without any powows or objections."

HAL CHASE, first-base king of yesteryear, who might still be a prominent figure in baseball as a wealthy club owner if he had followed a different course, is determined to keep his son from making the same mistakes that proved so costly to himself.

Hal Chase

So Hal, Jr., left-handed and 20, who recently enrolled at a San Francisco college for a course of study and a whirl at collegiate ball before entering the professional ranks at his father's old first-base position, is being coached in what he must do off the field as well as on it. He is being instructed as to the kind of companions he must avoid to assure his lasting success.

"DAD TOLD ME to forget about the crowd," said young Chase in discussing the lessons his father had given him in first-base play. "He told me not to mind what the spectators might say, and that that would develop poise . . . Other things he told me were: Play first base deep and about eight feet from the foul line. Watch the batsman. That's the big secret. By studying the batter closely a player can get a better idea of the direction in which the ball is going to be hit. Keep your eyes on the men on the bases, and on the bases they are occupying. Check on that on every pitched ball in order to be in a better position to make a play."

TITANS CLAIM SCHEDULE IS TOP-HEAVY

GAMES TONIGHT
Syracuse vs. Penn State, State College.

By JESS CARVER.

Phil Rice

There will be no basketball series between Duquesne and Westminster this season. The two games that Graduate Manager John Holohan of the Dukes and Andy McDonald of the Titans thought they had all set have been completely nolle prossed by the Westminster faculty, which has refused to ratify the contests.

Holohan and McDonald got together at the Tri-State Conference meeting here last April and arranged tentatively for a pair of games, one to be played here February 3 and the other in New Wilmington March 3. In June Holohan mailed McDonald a contract for the game here but received no reply and then yesterday, after he'd already been assured by a party very much in the know that the games were off, McDonald called him by phone and told him everything was off.

CARD TOPHEAVY?

The reason advanced for the cancellation of the games with Duquesne by the Westminster faculty was that the Titan schedule was topheavy.

Pittsburgh therefore will be denied the pleasure of seeing Capt. Phil Rice and the big Westminster team in action here this year. Duquesne-Westminster games always have been colorful battles, and it has been many a year since the annual clash on the Bluff didn't pack the cash customers in like flies in a custard pie. The same situation existed in New Wilmington when the Dukes appeared there.

With the Dukes off their schedule, Westminster's chances of slipping through the campaign undefeated are improved many per cent. The Titans have Allegheny and Bethany to play away from home in what appear to be their toughest contests from now on in, but their record at the end of the year without a pair of battles with the formidable Dukes included won't be as hot as it might have been.

"I am very much disappointed over losing the two games with Westminster," Graduate Manager Holohan said. "I feel that Westminster might have been a bit more prompt in notifying me. It was not until late yesterday that McDonald called me and told me the games definitely were off. When we first arranged the dates, I had no idea there would be a hitch of any sort. Even though my letters requesting contracts were not answered, I was certain that Westminster would remain on our schedule."

The loss of the two battles to the district card certainly is nobody's gain. Players on both teams were anxious to have the contests go through, as were the coaches and student bodies, but the Westminster faculty spoiled the deal.

'GATORS, BISONS CLASH

Bethany begins its week of basketball toil by entertaining Allegheny tonight. The Bisons can fortify their positions at the top of the heap by winning this one. At the same time, Allegheny needs to pick up some of the ground lost last week when both Grove City and Westminster took it for a buggy ride.

The Gators played at Waynesburg last night and will complete their week's activity with the tussle with the Bisons.

They huddle together in a drowsy condition for a great part of their time, both day and night. During their sleep the bodies of seals are continually undergoing various quivering and rolling motions, accompanied by twitchings of the paddles, and it has been found that they never actually sleep for more than a minute and a half at a time. AMATEUR NEXT FOR MORGAN

By TOM BIRKS.

While Morgan awaits the decision of the national challenge cup committee relative to changing the decision of its game with the Shamrocks, the Mangus outfit will turn its attention to the semi-final round of the national amateur cup, scheduled for Cleveland, Sunday, with the Sons of St. George outfit.

Buff Donnelli will be on the side lines, for since Buff joined the grid coaching staff of the Dukes, he has been ruled a professional.

Despite the fact Morgan gave the Shamrocks a lacing, fans were not satisfied with its showing. Chappell and Barrafoldi were very poor on the wings and not one of the nine goals came directly from crosses from the wings. Many scoring opportunities were lost this way.

Villani came out of the game with a lot of new friends, and his coaching of young Cyle gave the Heidelberg boy much confidence. Corrigan, veteran inside left for the Shamrocks, showed some fine footwork, but this fancy stuff availed his team little.

It is evident the Clevelanders are going through with their protest. There is more poor sportsmanship in soccer than in any other sport in the United States. Half of the teams are looking for loopholes for replays after being decisively beaten.

The spirit of the national rules was not broken by Morgan. The delegate failed to function, and a hand collection had to be taken up. Cleveland was playing under a guarantee and collected in the neighborhood of $268. Morgan got $7 for its end. And they did not let out a yell when the county detectives stopped the game at the Speedway.

SPORT VIGNETTES

It would appear from the testimony that the impression Daisy De Voe wished to convey to the jury with regard to Clara Bow was that the hennahed "It" girl had dyed from the neck up . . . Michigan and Ohio State met at Columbus last Saturday night, but a flock of tickets were printed and sold bearing the legend that the contest was slated for Ann Arbor, Mich. . . . Eddie Weygant, of Youngstown, manager of Mickey Solomen and other boxers, is sunning himself in St. Petersburg, Fla., these days, along with K. M. Landis, high commissioner of baseball, and other notables, and he may bring a couple of fighters from down there with him when he returns to these parts . . . The rule barring all suspended boxers, managers and officials from arenas, which was enforced by the New York Commission the other night to keep Paulino Uzcudun, Primo Carnera and others away from the Max Baer-Tom Heeney fight in Madison Square Garden, also is on the books in this state, but is not enforced.

Max Marston, National amateur champion in 1923, is one of many topnotch golfers who do not approve of the change in the rules for the titular event whereby players with a handicap of four or less will qualify by districts, the same as for the National Open . . . Max's view is that there are not more than 150 players, if that many, in the land who are capable of winning the championship under any conditions, and that it is a waste of money, time and effort to include the dubs in the eliminations . . . Marston offers as a counter plan one whereby only really low handicap players would qualify to the number of not more than 64, who then would be paired off in 36-hole match play rounds from the very start of the tournament proper instead of playing two 18-hole rounds, as at present, with 36-hole competition following. Thus, in order to be crowned champion, a player first would have to qualify in his district and then survive six 36-hole rounds, a tough and sufficient test.

Have you noticed, if you are a boxing fan, the increasing number of southpaw boxers who are finding favor with their work in local rings . . . Most popular of these is Jimmy Kelly, North Side socker, with young Mose Butch not far behind . . . Then there is Marcus Nole, Hill Negro . . . Joey Spiegel, of Uniontown, who became a professional after winning the junior National amateur lightweight title, is another.

Just a word about this fellow Nole . . . All along his name has been published as Noll . . . In looking over his scrapbook the other day, I noticed that it also appears therein as Noel . . . He says Nole is correct . . . Nole was born in Havana, Cuba, 20 years ago, and moved with his parents to Houston, Tex., when he was a baby . . . His parents still reside in Houston . . . His father is a mixture of Spanish, Indian and Cuban Negro . . . Marcus began boxing a couple of years ago in Houston and moved from there to Grand Rapids, Mich., and then came to Pittsburgh, following a bout with Allen Beatty, of McKeesport, at Flint, Mich., on a card headed by Tony Herrera and Tommy Grogan, some months ago . . . He has done very well here, scoring knockouts all along the line . . . His best punch is a driving left to the body that causes his opponents to double up in pain

The entire week of April 13 also has been left open, but probably will be filled in with exhibitions in cities neighboring to Chicago.

OLYMPICS BATTLE JACKETS

EXTRA POLICE TO KEEP ORDER TONIGHT

By CARL W. SHATTO.

An extra squad of policemen will be on hand to maintain order when the Yellow Jackets meet the Detroit Olympics in an International League hockey battle at Duquesne Garden tonight.

The fact that an unusually large number of bluecoats is regarded as necessary would indicate that there is considerable bitter feeling between the two clubs and that the prize is of sufficient importance to fan this enmity to a fighting pitch, and in neither instance is the fact misleading.

Fist fights were unexpected features of the last Pittsburgh-Detroit game here, and sticks were swung at rival heads, rather than the puck, when the warfare was renewed in Detroit recently. Roy D. Schooley, president and manager of the local club, last night instructed his skaters to concentrate on playing hockey and start no trouble, but to match roughness with roughness in the event that the invaders show too much of an inclination to "rough things up."

TO MAINTAIN ORDER

The officials almost lost control of the situation during the fist swinging the last time the Olympics appeared at the Craig street arena, and the extra policemen have been employed to assist in maintaining order in case the situation gets out of hand.

The second, third, fourth, fifth and sixth-place clubs are so closely bunched in the race that a victory or a defeat can make a difference of three notches in the standings. Should the Jackets win tonight they can vault into fourth place. In the event that the locals lose, there is no question but that they will drop to sixth place. Pittsburgh and Detroit at present are deadlocked in the standings, and a victory, therefore, means just as much to the Olympics as it does to the Schooley clan.

The Jackets have scored four triumphs in four starts against the Olympics this season, but the locals are weakened and the visitors strengthened for tonight's joust. Duke McCurry, sterling wingman, has a badly infected arm, and Roger Smith, defense stalwart, is out with a charley-horse. There is a possibility that Duke may be able to get into action, but Smith is so completely "on the shelf" that he will not even be in uniform. Because the locals have more than three times as many forwards as defense men available, McCurry will appear as a relief guard in the event that he appears at all.

OLYMPICS STRENGTHENED

A deal which was closed last Sunday, in which the Olympics obtained Roy Goldsworthy from London, has resulted in the strengthening of the Detroit attack. Goldsworthy, a left wing, is one of the fastest skaters and most prolific scorers in the circuit, and he played a prominent role in leading Detroit to a 2-1 victory over Windsor's second-placers Sunday night. Gillie, Detroit right wing, is another fast, tricky gent who ranks with the league's "first five" in goal getting. He makes an ideal front line mate for the speedy Roy, and Goalie Albie Cox and his fellow backfielders are likely to experience plenty of trouble in holding the invaders at bay.

Despite the fact that they lost their last game here, the Jackets tonight will be out to add to a victory string consisting of two wins and a tie. Their recent trip to Detroit, Buffalo and Syracuse was a victory jaunt all the way, and they do not propose to be stopped on home ice.

BIG CROWD EXPECTED

Recent frays here have attracted capacity crowds, and there is every indication that tonight's throng will be a record-breaker. The probable lineup:

PITTSBURGH		DETROIT
Cox	G	Venne
Fraser	D	Hoffinger
Berlett	D	Pusie
Ouellette	C	Herberts
Proudfoot	W	Goldsworthy
Gregg	W	Gillie

Spares: Pittsburgh, Reise, Rodden, McGuire, Fields, McCurry, White, Halliday, McIntyre. Detroit, Williams, Murray, Steele, Brophy, Gilhooley, McPherson, Tabor, Daly.

Fifth Avenue's battle to gain a tie for second place in Section I and Allegheny's fight to remain in undisputed possession of first place in Section II feature today's contests in the City League championship court campaign. Westinghouse, unbeaten and in the lead in Section I, anticipates little difficulty in downing Peabody, and figures to hold the lead it took last week for the remainder of the first-half chase.

Fifth Avenue, defending league and sectional champ, started off on the wrong foot by losing to Schenley, but since then has won two in a row and, playing on its own court, will give the formidable Allderdice entry a busy afternoon of basketball.

SCHENLEY DESPERATE

In the other Section I game today, Connelley meets Schenley, with the Bellefielders desperately anxious to gain a 50-50 rating by turning in a triumph over the Trade School quintet.

Oliver, with two wins and one defeat to date, figures to give Allegheny a merry battle, and may upset all the dope by knocking off the unbeaten Section II leader. In the event of an Allegheny defeat, South Hills can slip into the lead by beating Perry. Carrick and Vocational clash in the third game at Vocational.

Three games are listed in all sections of the junior division. In Section I, Liberty meets Allderdice, Baxter takes on Peabody and Schenley tackles Gladstone. In Section II, Fifth engages Herron, Arsenal takes on Overbrook and Somers engages Schenley. Section III finds Oliver at Latimer, Knoxville at Carrick and Langley at Perry.

LEAD AT STAKE

In the W. P. I. A. L., New Kensington, defending league champ, and Har-Brack furnish the most important action in a Section I tussle. The rival quintets are tied for the lead, and, clashing tonight, may settle the matter for the first half race.

Other sectional leaders and rivals, unless idle, are confronted by tests they are expected to pass. In Section II, Leetsdale invades the court of the crack Ambridge quintet. New Castle, tied with Butler in Section III, prepares for its meeting with its rivals Friday by taking on Ellwood City. In Section IV, Beaver Falls plays Monaca and New Brighton meets Midland. Monessen battles California and Charleroi engages West Newton in Section V.

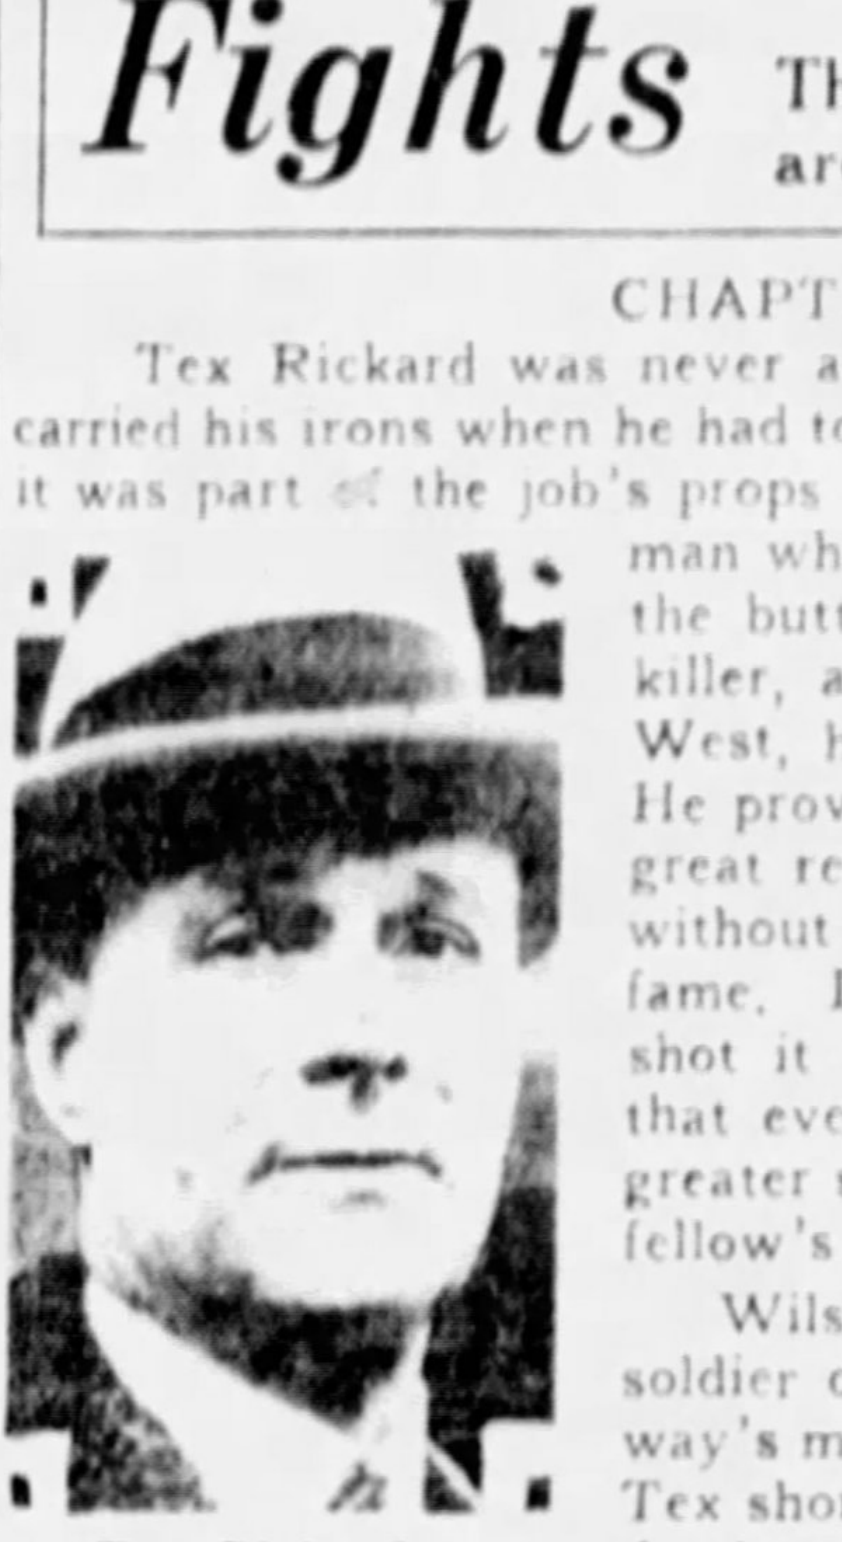
Building Up Big Fights

By IKE DORGAN,
The Man Behind Tex Rickard's Fistic Ballyhoos.

CHAPTER VIII.

Tex Rickard was never an out-and-out gun fighter. He carried his irons when he had to: As a young marshal in Texas, it was part of the job's props to go heeled, but Tex wasn't a man who boasted of notches sawed into the butt of his gats. Tex wasn't a killer, and, like any game man of the West, he didn't believe in it—unless! He proved that a man could maintain a great reputation for pluck and honesty without having to shoot his way to fame. I dare say that Tex would have shot it out with the toughest hombre that ever crossed his path, but he got greater satisfaction by pulling the other fellow's nose if it came to that.



Tex Rickard.

Wilson Mizner, playwright, author, soldier of fortune and one of Broadway's most famous wits, told a story on Tex shortly before the great promoter's death which riled Tex more than anything that had happened in all his life. Mizner's yarn had challenged Rickard's courage. It was enough that it churned Tex up into a rage. Was he burned up!

It appears that Mizner, in talking to a newspaperman, Hype Igoe, on a visit to Hollywood, had mentioned a Klondike incident that was so readable that Hype printed it as a matter of course.

STORY RILES RICKARD

According to Mizner, a fellow named Jack McCloud, well known in the gold regions as a quiet killer when the occasion demanded, had taken a violent dislike to Rickard.

McCloud worked around the gambling halls, doing any old thing that kept him on hand in case trouble should bob up. He could be depended upon to do his stuff with such conviction that he had nine out of ten men in the district backed right up to the wall.

Mizner had pictured the character of Jack McCloud to David Belasco so vividly that the old stage craftsman asked Mizner to write a Klondike play around the silent, gray-haired gold hunter.

Mizner tells of the escapades of the Spokane Kid. Spokane was a do-as-well-as-you-can character around the diggings, but he wasn't cut out for hard work. He tried to get by without any of the hard bumps a real good digger had to endure. The Kid had been suspected of several slight-of-hand operations on a few pokes and there was a quiet order sent out for him to move on to the next camp.

A COLD-BLOODED KILLING

The camp's pot-bellied peace officer set out to enforce the order. The Spokane Kid had made himself mighty scarce, although there had been no out-and-out conviction nor even a direct charge made against him. They simply harped on the possibility of the Kid's having done the lifting because he wasn't doing any hard labor gold-digging.

McCloud, he of the cold gray eye and lightning trigger finger, was polishing glasses behind the bar of the camp's best gambling hall when he heard the report of a double-barreled shotgun. He paused just a second and then went on about his work.

"Well, McCloud," he began, "we'll not be bothered around here any more by that young squirt, the Spokane Kid. I just crowded him off shore and drilled him."

"You killed little Spoke?" asked McCloud anxiously, a great stickler for the old theory that a man was innocent until proved guilty.

HOW IT HAPPENED

"Yes, McCloud, I got him and the getting was timely. We've no place for those young buckoes who think they can come in here and loaf themselves into a fortune. This is a man's game, this gold-hunting, and it is good riddance to bad rubbish."

"Did he give you a fight?" asked McCloud.

"Naw, I didn't give him any chance. I just leveled the old sawed-off on him, walked him out into the water and told him to throw 'em up. When he faced me and got his claws into the air, I let him have both barrels in the belly. He's floatin' around out there now. Here's old Jenny. She got him," said the marshal, as he pulled open his overcoat, displaying a sawed-off shotgun slung to his shoulder.

"Let me see her. She is a nice gun at that," said McCloud, as he reached for the weapon. "Loaded, Dan?"

A DEATH AVENGED

"And you walked him out into the water and pointed it at him this way—and told him to throw up his hands?"

A blinding flash and a tremendous roar as both barrels of the gun sent its double charge through the body of the marshal, blowing him almost in twain.

"Accident. He was handing me his gun to keep, stock first, when he hit the hammers against the bar. Too bad. Awful nice feller, and so game," was all that McCloud said in explanation.

RICKARD'S TRAIL CROSSED

That, according to Mizner, was the McCloud that came into Rickard's life at a time when Tex was running high in the chips.

McCloud had come back to camp after a few months' absence. He was looking for Tex. He told Mizner so.

"Bill, you go in there and tell Rickard that Jack McCloud is in town. He'll know why. Tell him I'm in town and that I'm out in the middle of the street in front of his joint. Tell him to come out in the smoke!"

BOXING CARDS COMPLETED FOR WEEK

Sports Editor.

The cards have been completed for Apples Meyers' weekly boxing show in the Moose Temple, Friday night, and Jim McGirr's offering in the McKeesport arena Thursday night.

Meyers rounded out his bill with the signing of Joe Walters, a rugged middleweight, of Springfield, O., to box Al Becker, of Sheraden, in the semi-final. His main bout brings together Buck McTiernan, of Swissvale, and Billy Brent, Negro, of the Hill. Harry Fine, of the Hill, and Al Ghan, of Columbus, O., will box the second bout, and Peaches Gallagher, of Swissvale, returns to action after an absence of several months to box Joey Bazone, of McKeesport, in the opener.

M'ARTHUR BOXES ATTEL

Billy Jones, Negro light-heavyweight star, of Philadelphia, and Harold Scarney, of Youngstown, box the windup at McKeesport. Buddy McArthur, of McKeesport, and Henry Attel, of Girard, O., will appear in the semi-final and Joe Potts, of Monessen and Marty Gornick, of McKeesport, are in the opener, with Joey Spiegel, of Uniontown, and Al Munro, of the Hill, in the second bout.

The Jimmy Belmont—Jimmy McGraw bout, postponed from Christmas afternoon, has been remade for Motor Square Garden next Tuesday night, when it will serve as the second event on the Johnny Datto-Harry Fierro card. Jimmy Thomas, of the Hill, and Ollie Bartlett, of Oklahoma, box the semi-final of eight rounds, and the second bout remains to be arranged.

Between Rounds

Gorilla Jones boxes Chick Devlin at San Francisco Friday night and Young Corbett and Paulie Walker, who recently fought a draw there, have been rematched for 'Frisco, February 26.

Larry Johnson and Paul Cavalier will box the semi-final to the Jimmy Braddock-Ernie Schaaf bout in Madison Square Garden, New York, Friday night. Nick Testo and Vittorio Livan are in the other 10-rounder, and Frankie Wine meets Tony Galento in a six-rounder.

Henry Attel, who boxes Buddy McArthur at McKeesport Thursday night, has met Harry Harris, K. O. Husk, Joe Midway and Mickey Fedor, among others, which is a sufficiently good recommendation.

Plans are under way to rematch Max Baer with both Tom Heeney and Ernie Schaaf, his two foes in the East, in California. Baer is due to leave New York for the Coast today. is believed will pack the small arena. Buck Crouse and George Chip will be the principals in one of the exhibitions.

Patsy Pirrone is confined in the Aultman Hospital, Canton, O., where he recently underwent an operation that will keep him out of the ring until June. Local friends of the popular Italian light heavyweight may write him in care of the hospital during his confinement.

Freddie Miller, of Cincinnati, and Phil Zwick, of Cleveland, have been matched for the main bout of a show in Wheeling, W. Va., next Monday night.

Plans were advanced at a meeting of the committee last night for the amateur boxing show to be held in the Moose Temple, downtown, two weeks from tomorrow night for the benefit of Father Cox's relief fund. A card of eight amateur bouts, two exhibitions between stars of bygone days and a parade of veterans in the ring before the main bout will make up the program, which it is believed will pack the small arena.

COUNTY LEAGUE GAMES HOLD SPOTLIGHT

By JULIUS LEVIN.

Natural rival clash tonight in the feature games on the independent basketball schedule. Fintex and the Mieles renewing a feud of long standing at Columbus Temple, while the Duquesne Lafayettes entertain the Charleroi Merchants on the Duquesne Court. Both games are Allegheny County League battles.

The contests bring together four contenders for the second-half championship of the County League race and should attract capacity crowds to both halls. Both the Mieles and Fintex have been beaten in the second round, each bowing to the Ellwood City Manhattans, and another setback tonight will about ruin their hopes for the title.

The Duquesne Lafayettes are not taking their game with the Merchants lightly, as Al Wildman's boys have been playing great basketball of late. The Charleroi quintet is composed mainly of Duquesne boys.

P. A. A. PLAYS PHANTOMS

Out at P. A. A. tonight the Winged Headers go after their thirteenth straight victory of the season. The Oaklanders, coached by the father of Charley Hyatt, former Pitt star, and including in their lineup Arthur Hyatt, do not fear the jinx number and are confident they will increase their string of victories at the expense of the Phantom Five of Greensburg. An added feature will be the appearance of Chick Davies, Duquesne University's popular coach, in the role of referee.

The Knickers, of Lawrenceville, meet an old opponent in the only game scheduled in the West Penn League, when they stack up against the First U. P. Community House passers at Foresters Hall, while Atlantic meets B. & O. in the Greater Pittsburgh League.

The North Side Bucks, of the West Penn League, will meet the Manchester Community passers of the Greater Pittsburgh League on the Salvation Army floor. It is an independent contest.

FELDERS LOSE AGAIN

The Jeannette Felders lost their third in a row in the County League on their home court last night, being nosed out by Fintex, 28 to 27. The Knickers tripped the Falcons, 41-34, in the West Penn circuit.

In a heated Wagner Institutional League battle, I. K. S. barely beat Trinity Cathedral, 33-31, while the Baptists knocked off Presbyterians, 46-28, in the Crafton Church League.

The Grand Cadets won from the Burkes, 36-6, in the Junior League, while the Chesters topped the X Club, 29-6, and Lou Littles beat Phi Alpha Beta, 21-7, in the Y. M. H. A. Intra-Mural circuit.

MEALEY LAUDED AS RECEIVER

By CHARLES J. DOYLE.

Encouraging reports on Maurice F. (Jack) Mealey, Pirate recruit catcher, may have a tendency to comfort the Pittsburgh directors in their so far fruitless effort to land a known star for receiving duty.

Athletes who have performed with Mealey are quick to pronounce him an ideal man behind the plate, despite an apparent weakness at the plate. It is said that Mealey is the equal of Rolly Hemsley as a catcher and if this be so, he has plenty of class, for Hemsley oozes natural ability.

SMART AT PLATE

Maurice, who is in his late 20's, is said to be smart under the plate. Therefore, he may be able to hit better in the big show than he did for Wichita, winner of the Western League flag.

A smart fellow should fare better against the pitchers of the big show. For one thing, he has better balls and bats at his disposal in the majors; then again he is apt to encounter the same pitcher, who—able to fool the hitter in the minors, may be saving himself when he reaches the majors. Hence, the resourceful batter, swinging at less stuff, stands a good chance to make more safeties. This theory is accepted by more than one star.

Mealey batted about .280 for Wichita; perhaps he will be able to better this mark if he wins a Pirate berth.

CAUGHT FOR WOOD

As a receiver, the recruit, among other things, has the O. K. of Charley Wood, youthful Bucco lefthander. Maurice caught the South Carolinian as he fanned 197 batters in 197 innings.

It is no secret among the Pirates that the Pittsburgh catchers had all sorts of trouble trying to handle Wood's unique curve. Mealey, 'tis said, knows the recipe and applies it.

Rolly Hemsley had a session with his employers yesterday. The catcher and his family have returned from California, where they spent most of the winter. They were called back by the illness of Mrs. Hemsley's mother at the family home in Syracuse, O. Rolly expects to remain at Syracuse until the time of departure for spring training.

RIFLE SHOOT TONIGHT

A prize rifle shoot for the benefit of helping the financing of the American Rifle team on its trip to an international match in England in June is to be held tonight by the East End Rod and Gun Club at its indoor range, 8236 Frankstown avenue, from 7 to 10 o'clock. The entry list is open to all sportsmen.

CHICAGO, Jan. 20.—(AP.)—Frank S. Scoville of Buffalo, defeated Johnny Layton, defending titleholder, in the opening game of the world three-cushion billiard championship tournament here last night, 50 to 35, in 55 innings. Scoville spurted in the seventeenth inning, running 6, and from that time to the end he was always ahead.

Scoville's high run was 6, Layton's 5.

For the first 15 innings the battle was close but in the sixteenth Layton tallied a run of 5. Then Scoville showed he was in the game, running off 6 in the seventeenth. At the end of the twenty-sixth inning Scoville led by 26 to 22. He continued his fine work to the finish.

Charles S. Jordan of Los Angeles, Western champion, who has been suffering from a mild attack of influenza, will play his first game tomorrow night. He was scheduled to oppose Otto Reiselt, of Philadelphia, tonight, but, due to his physical condition, the director of the tournament gave him an extra day to recover. Scoville has been named to oppose Reiselt this evening.

Forbes

Will Eastern Rail Combines Help Nation?

By B. C. FORBES

Mr. Forbes

HALF OF the population of the United States lives in the territory served by the Eastern railway systems figuring in the proposed four consolidations. The rest of the country should also be interested because what is finally done in the East will indicate what is likely to happen throughout the continent.

What are the prospects?

ONE MAN who carries in his mind a complete detailed map of the railroads of this country, and who supplements this by thorough knowledge of who is who and what is what in railway ownership and control, is F. J. Lisman, well-known New York investment banker. For the enlightenment of readers of this column, Mr. Lisman kindly consented to present the facts lucidly and to express his judgment concerning the wisdom of the proposed combinations. His comments are illuminating.

"My understanding is (and I am quite sure I am correct) that President Hoover merely kept insisting that the presidents of the four big companies get together on some plan. At no time did he go beyond that, but he did continue to insist on an agreement even after several meetings which broke up without any accord in sight.

"The section of the country west of the Hudson River and east of St. Louis and Chicago never before had four strong, competitive railway systems. The Pennsylvania and New York Central have always been strong systems everywhere. The Baltimore and Ohio is a strong system in places, and the other roads did not cut a very big figure anywhere, except that the Chesapeake and Ohio was important as a coal carrier and the Erie as a freight carrier between New York and Chicago.

"WHILE THEORETICALLY it may have been possible to develop a fifth trunk line system based on the Wabash, Lehigh Valley, Wheeling and Lake Erie, etc., it was doubtful, even during the boom time of 1929, whether such a system could have been constructed on the credit of any one or two of these corporations. Now with Wabash common selling at 20, the 'Greater Wabash,' obviously, is an impossible dream. The plan of the I. C. C. under which this fifth system was to absorb the Norfolk and Western and Seaboard Air Line was rather weird.

"IT IS THE DUTY of the I. C. C. to pass on whatever plans are put before them for the purpose of seeing whether such plans are in the interest of the public, whether they conserve competition, and to the extent to which this is the case, consolidation undoubtedly will be approved, provided the companies are not overcapitalized—that is, capitalized beyond the fair I. C. C. valuation.

"In accordance with the law, the commission will have to hold hearings and give to any locality, trade organization or individual, an opportunity to voice objections. Heretofore the city of Philadelphia vigorously objected to the merger of the Reading and the B. & O. It has been assured in many quarters that this opposition was accelerated by the Pennsylvania Railroad interests. If that should be true, then this opposition presumably will be mute hereafter.

"The cities around Hampton Roads have already voiced their objections to the joint control of the Virginian by the C. & O. and Norfolk and Western. Quite likely the commission will heed this objection and keep the Virginian as an independent line, although this road forms a natural and logical outlet for New York Central system. New York Central officials, however, have shown no anxiety to acquire it or to expand in any other direction.

"The New York Central System is fairly complete; it reaches all points in the Middle West advantageously. The Central people have pretty well obtained all they wanted and, guided by wise counsel, they have not paid high prices for anything. What they did acquire in the last few years has been mostly through exchange of their own stock for that of the allied companies.

"Most of the expanding has been done by the Van Sweringen interests who started in with a nucleus of the original Nickel Plate road between New York and Chicago, the Clover Leaf between Toledo and St. Louis and the Lake Erie and Western touching various points in Ohio, Indiana and Illinois — all of which they acquired on the bargain counter. The lines they have added since supplement each other quite thoroughly and, when finally cemented together, should make an extremely strong system.

Now Is the Time To Turn Corner

By JOHN H. VAN DEVENTER

In studying the chart of business activity covering the past 50 years, one is struck by a rather remarkable coincidence regarding the ending of depression periods. Of the seven major depressions that American business has encountered during that half century period, six times we have turned the corner and started toward recovery during the first quarter period of the year. The one exception in all seven of them started upward in January, but failed to follow through and slipped back again. All six of the others, however, maintained their upward climb back to normal.

In all of these cases, the upward movement was begun not later than February.

When you stop to think of it, there are good reasons why depressions have behaved this way, and why the first quarter is a favorable time for bidding a business slump goodby.

The first reason is the seasonal pickup which many of our industries experience during the first quarter of the year. Iron and steel making, automobile manufacture, building construction contracts and many other large lines of business always exhibit added vitality after the old year has been rung out. They have gotten the habit of doing this and habits are hard to break.

Another reason is that business plans usually date from January first. Many concerns which drew in their horns and cut expenditures last year on the basis that 1930 was going to be a poor year anyway, have been saving their ammunition, so to speak, for 1931. They are not going to take a licking two years hand running!

BANK DEPOSITS UP IN 1930

NEW YORK, Jan. 20.—Deposits of the 100 largest banks in the United States increased more than $300,000,000 in 1930, despite industrial depression, to a total of $22,158,278,318 as of December 31, a compilation published today by American Banker shows.

Mergers continued to reduce the number of New York banks among the 100 largest, Wall street having only 20 representatives on the list this year, as compared with 23 in 1929 and 30 in 1928. Thirty other cities are represented by banks in the 100 largest. Among them are Philadelphia, Chicago and San Francisco, with 8 banks each; Pittsburgh, 5, and Boston, Los Angeles, Detroit and Cleveland, 4 each.

The Chase National, of New York, with deposits of $2,073,775,923, wrested first place among world banks from the largest of the British "Big Five" banks, Midland Bank, Ltd., of London.

Federal Reserve Members Loans Off

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—The Federal Reserve Board's condition statement of weekly reporting member banks on January 14 shows decreases for the week of $110,000,000 in loans and investments; $46,000,000 in borrowings from Federal Reserve banks, and $33,000,000 in government deposits, and increases of $41,000,000 in net demand deposits, and $16,000,000 in time deposits.

Loans on securities totaled $7,522,000,000, a decrease of $131,000,000 in the week. All other loans were $8,400,000,000, a decrease of $11,000,000.

Leading dealers have reduced bid and asked rates for bankers' acceptances ⅛ of 1 per cent on all maturities.

Inquiries Enliven Machinery Market

An increasing flow of inquiries and sustained ordering feature current activity in the nation's machinery and machine-tool markets, American Machinist reports. Sectional reports of the past week strike a more encouraging note, as dealers everywhere began to dig out from the murky depths of December.

New York Standard Raises Gas Price

NEW YORK, Jan. 20.—The Standard Oil Company of New York has announced it had increased the tank wagon price of gasoline 1 cent a gallon effective today in New York and New England. The retail price remains unchanged.

Wall Street Evidences Slight Interest In New Issues.

While Wall street has recovered from the black pessimism of a few months ago it has not yet reached the cheerful state of mind which responds to favorable news, otherwise it would pay more attention to the plans for the future now being made by the investment trusts. Financial observers in London are finding great comfort in the news of the formation of several new investment trusts. The offering of one English investment trust shares was heavily oversubscribed last week despite the dull market. It is inferred that both the financial experts behind the trust and the investors buying the shares are of the opinion that this is an appropriate time for acquiring securities. New Investment trusts are also being contemplated in Wall street, while the old ones are planning their operations for the future with a greater feeling of security known since the present depression set in.

One reason for the extreme slackness noted in Wall street lately is the great depletion in the staffs of financial houses by sickness. One important bank has several hundred employes on sick leave suffering mostly with typical winter complaints. Scarcely a Wall street house can boast 100 per cent attendance of officers and employes. There has been a tightening up of preventative measures in the street and many houses are sending their employes home at the first signs of a cold.

So many large concerns have evidenced an interest in International Combustion Engineering Corporation that it is hard to guess into which lap the company will fall. Conversations have recently taken place with representatives of the Baldwin Locomotive Works. These talks, it is understood, have been informal and have never reached the stage of formal negotiations. The initiative in these discussions with other companies has come from interests identified with the reorganization plans for International Combustion, it is believed. A few months ago Westinghouse Manufacturing officials made an inspection of the Combustion properties and Foster-Wheeler Company also showed an interest in Combustion.

And now everyone with a television set can have the stock market brought to their homes, sale by sale. Next week in Chicago the Chicago Daily News television station W9XAP will inaugurate a new service making security prices visible right in home or office. To get the latest prices it will only be necessary to turn on a television receiver. Visual ticker tape quotations of New York and Chicago Stock Exchanges will become available. Final tests have been made, declares Clem F. Wade, president of the Western Television Corporation, and the television "is bound to exert a tremendous influence in broadening the market," he says.

Transactions have been small in many of the sessions recently. This is a direct reflection of the reduced interest in the market. Considering the many issues listed, the dealings have been as limited as at any time in many years. Trading has been mainly for professional account, and as many of the important traders are doing little, the total naturally has been reduced.

While odd-lot buying for investment has not been as large in recent sessions as it was just after the beginning of the new year, the demand has been rather persistent whenever reactions have occurred. Houses handling the business report that a considerable amount has been for cash, and the stocks have been taken out of the Street. That buying in all probability represents long-term accumulations by those who know that they cannot get the lowest prices, but who are willing to take on stocks to be held until general business improves and a higher range of prices develops for the standard stocks.

SUGAR PROGRAM WORKED OUT

LONDON, Jan. 20.—Thomas L. Chadbourne, chairman of the Cuban-American sugar delegation, said that a fundamental basis has been laid for a world-wide organization of the sugar industry.

Mr. Chadbourne is conferring with representatives of the Russian industry today. Their problem is really a banking one as the Russians have no definite exportable surplus, but are selling only when in need of credits.

Canada Dry Wins Patent Litigation

WILMINGTON, Jan. 20.—Federal Court here has handed down a decree in favor of Canada Dry Ginger Ale, Inc., in its trade-mark infringement and unfair competition suit against the High Grade Bottling Company. The defendant is enjoined from using in connection with its products any name including the word "Canadian" and from using packages and labels similar to those of the plaintiff.

Liverpool Wheat Market.

LIVERPOOL, Jan. 20.—The market was due 1½ pence higher. Opened up ¼ to ⅜ penny, but at 1:20 p. m. was ¼ to ⅜ penny off.

Liverpool wheat closed ⅜ to ⅝ penny lower.

AUTO INDUSTRY PROSPERITY'S KINGPIN

Sets Example to Other Trades by Offering to Public Greater Values

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER.

NEW YORK, Jan. 20.—The automobile industry, currently better managed than ever before, is setting a fine example to other trades.

Instead of waiting, like Micawber, for something in the way of a revival to turn up, the executives of the motor trade, with characteristic ingenuity, have offered the public greater intrinsic value and allurement in the array of new models than ever before. Moreover, they have cleaned house within the industry, and got better control of dealers' inventories of new and used cars.

Mr. Rukeyser

Through offering greater values, they are seeking to induce the public to break the tacit buyers' strike. The industry has gone as far as it could, instead of holding back and delaying the readjustment by failing to make the maximum concessions to the new mandate for economy and value. The automobile industry has become a kingpin of prosperity, but it occupies a spiral relationship toward general business.

My own feeling is that the affluent public will be more disposed to buy new cars as soon as it is convinced that the general economic outlook is better. Since June, 1929, the public has been taking new cars at a subnormal rate, and with gasoline consumption for the first 10 months of last year at a new peak it is evident that the existing cars have been put to longer use than would have been the case if business had been prosperous. As a result, many are riding around in disreputable looking cars, and a pent-up demand for new cars has been accumulating, and will be unloosed as soon as the curves of general business point upward.

Thus, though the turn probably must come from other sources, such as textiles and other trades making goods going into immediate consumption, the process of recovery will doubtless be accelerated by a subsequent marked revival in the motor industry.

Meantime, the consumers are in the drivers' seat. The industry has fully recognized present economic realities, and is doing its part intelligently. The current automobile shows emphasize this fact.

STOCK MARKET SHOWS FIRM UNDERTONE

Advances of Point or Two Numerous in Early Sales, But List Eases Later

NEW YORK, Jan. 20—(AP)—The retreat of a discouraged bear element gave the share market a firm tone in today's trading.

The lethargy of the market, however, still held the general price movement to a narrow area and advances were not well maintained. Professional traders found little in the Wickersham report to interpret either bullishly or bearishly, although it had been awaited expectantly. Opposition to the legalizing of light wines and beer may have been a factor in a moderate rise in the beverage stocks.

Gains of a point or two were numerous during the early trading, and a few issues made wider gains, but the list eased off a little from the top during the early afternoon.

The action of the share market was discouraging to traders favoring either side, and the speculative community seemed to be reconciling itself to a period of quiet, narrow markets, such as have marked the bottom of many major bear markets in the past. It was recalled that the list went through a period of extreme quiet lasting from June until October after the decline of 1920-21, and a narrow movement endured for about three months after as recent a break as that of 1926.

Money continued to cheapen and the bond market continued to maintain a good tone, with trading a little more active. Call money held at 1½ per cent officially, but time loans and commercial paper were cut another ¼ of one per cent, bringing 60-day time loans down to 1¼@1½ per cent. The possibility of a further reduction in the New York rediscount rate now at 2 per cent, was again widely discussed.

Sterling exchange still held at a disturbingly low rate, which may lead to a shipment of gold to New York with the sailing of a fast steamship tomorrow, although New York bankers are reluctant to impose any unnecessary embarrassment upon London. Wall street was interested in the remarks in London of F. C. Goodenough in his annual report to the stockholders of Barclay's Bank, Ltd. He asserted that any heavier demands for gold in the settling of the international debt would undo much of the good that has been accomplished in improving world economic conditions during the past decade.

The statement of President Farrell, of U. S. Steel, that "ample evidence" that the bottom of the depression had been reached had been apparent in the past 30 days, was encouraging, but stock market interests were anxious to see tomorrow's weekly steel trade reviews.

GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, Jan. 20.—Grains averaged lower early today, influenced by downturns in wheat quotations at Liverpool, where Argentine offerings were reported urgent and demand poor. On declines, corn received support owing to talk that the country was short a billion bushels of all feed grains and hay. Opening unchanged to ⅝ cents lower, wheat held near to the initial range. Corn started ¼-⅝ off, and recovered somewhat.

FINANCIAL NEWS AND VIEWS

CANADIAN POTATO CROP

The Canadian potato crop of 1930 will be 20 per cent greater than that of the preceding year, an estimate made public by the Department of Agriculture stated. Production is placed at 49,160,000 hundredweight, as against 39,930,000 in 1929. Although production is greater, the value of the crop is considerably lower. The 1930 price averages 79 cents per hundredweight as against $1.59 the year before. The present crop is estimated in the department's report as worth $38,949,000, compared with $63,372,000 in 1929.

MANUFACTURED FOODS

The people of the United States have a huge appetite for manufactured foods. Their craving for beverages, canned fruits and vegetables, confections and other processed delicacies require the manufacture annually of food products valued at $11,762,952,000, according to Food Industries. A survey analysis just released by that publication shows that 737,892 persons working in 54,762 plants are kept busy satisfying the American demand for manufactured eatables.

PINEAPPLE PACK LARGER

Hawaiian 1930 pineapple pack totaled 12,672,296 cases, compared to 9,211,376 cases in 1929, of which Hawaiian Pineapple Company packed 4,577,091 cases against 3,247,204 in 1929; Libby 3,289,501 cases, against 1,947,609 and California Packing Company 2,227,566 cases against 1,908,919 in 1929.

LOCAL MARKET QUIET AND STEADY

Trading Leaders Display Steady Tone Here While 'Big Board' List Gains

Trading on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange continued in light volume today, with early prices showing a steady tone. There was no change in the character of the dealings, the list continuing to reflect the deadlocked condition evident in this market for the past several days.

Only fractional changes were noted in the leaders in the initial trading. Lone Star Gas was slightly higher at the start as was Pittsburgh Screw and Bolt. Western Public Service continued to sell around 11½ in comparatively small volume and Blaw Knox held to the 26-level at which it has been resting for a week or so.

Armstrong Cork developed a firm tone during the afternoon, selling up two points. Hachmeister-Lind, which had not appeared on the board for some time, opened at 10 but quickly rallied to around 12. National Fireproofing preferred was off two points at 31.

GOLD HOLDINGS GAIN IN 1930

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—Gold holdings of the United States showed a greater gain in 1930 than during any recent year.

Department of Commerce figures on gold movements issued today showed that during last year gold imports amounted to $396,054,000, against exports of $115,967,000, a net gain of $280,087,000.

The influx of gold still was notably in progress when the old year ended. December imports of $32,778,000 were offset only by export of $36,000, leaving a gain for the month of $32,742,000.

Gold imports in 1929 were $291,649,000 and in 1928 $168,897,000. In both these years there were large gold exports. These were so large during 1928 as to register a gold loss for the United States of nearly $400,000,000.

American silver exports for 1930 amounted to $54,155,000, against $83,407,000 in 1929. Silver imports for the same two periods were $42,752,000, against $63,940,000.

COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, Jan. 20.—Cotton opened steady today at a decline of 1 to 4 points. The offerings were not heavy and appeared to be readily absorbed.

Houses with Japanese connections were among the buyers here which helped to offset some Liverpool selling and general business seemed to be a little more active than recently. January notices estimated at about 5,000 bales were reported and caused some liquidation, but spot interests bought near months against sales of later deliveries and the market held fairly steady at the end of the first half hour, with March selling around 10.16c and July 10.61 or at about the opening prices.

There was a little more southern selling during the morning, while Liverpool selling continued until the close of that market and prices worked off to 10.10 for March and 10.55 for July or about 7 to 10 points net lower. After the close abroad offerings were lighter and the market at midday was a shade steadier on some covering and trade buying.

LIVERPOOL, Jan. 20.—Cotton spot quiet, prices barely steady; American strict good middling 6.14; good middling 5.79; strict middling 5.54; middling 5.39; strict low middling 5.24; low middling [illegible]; strict good ordinary [illegible]; good ordinary 4.39; good ordinary 3.89. He left his valuables in safe keeping

The Bank, in accordance with its established custom, collected the interest and the principal on matured bonds, and invested the proceeds for the absent client in accordance with his instructions. Knowing that his securities were safe, that the details of collecting interest and principal were in competent hands, and that funds so collected would not lie idle, the client enjoyed freedom from worry and pursued his travels in peace. This service is available to any depositor of the Mellon National Bank.

Coal Producers Suffer From Low Prices

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

COAL PRODUCERS ARE still suffering from lack of business and low prices. While nearly all industries have had similar difficulties, coal has undergone the normal troubles resulting from the business depression in addition to unsatisfactory conditions existing when general business was good.

Coal operators have not enjoyed a good volume of business at satisfactory prices at any time during the past five years with the exception of two brief periods. These occurred during the anthracite coal strike and the British miners' strike. Last year prices reached the lowest levels since the war. Since then there has been little change in prices and volume has continued to decline in line with reduced industrial operations.

At present mines are receiving only about $1.75 a ton for lump coal and from 60 to 70 cents a ton for slack. The mere labor cost of producing slack amounts to about 50 cents a ton so that it is obvious that practically all mines are working at a loss.

Wages Reduced

CONTINUAL SHAVING OF coal prices has forced many operators to put further wage cuts into effect. The downward trend of wages of coal miners has been under way for the past six years. Apparently the operators will continue to reduce labor's share in their revenues as long as prices continue to decline.

The operators cannot be accused of having profited at the expense of labor. Nearly all mining operations have been at a loss during the past year and few mining properties in the Pittsburgh district have worked at a profit for any great length of time during the past four years.

Production Declines

THE TOTAL PRODUCTION of soft coal during 1930 was estimated at 461,630,000 net tons, according to the United States Bureau of Mines. This was 13.7 per cent less than in 1929. While this decline was not greater than those reported for many other industries, coal did not share in the general prosperity of 1928 and 1929. Low prices wiped out the margins of profit for most producers and the installation of more efficient combustion equipment was responsible for substantial reductions in the consumption of coal.

Since the beginning of the year the decline in coal production has been even more pronounced. In the week ended January 10 output was 9,181,000 tons, which was 17.7 per cent less than in the corresponding week of last year.

Gains Expected

WHILE COAL PRODUCERS expect their volume to increase as industrial operations reach a more normal pace, there are few signs of changes which will restore the industry to a satisfactory basis. In discussions of the future of the coal trade, much has been said of the existence of too many mines and of the possibility that continuous operation at a loss would eventually reduce the number of producers.

Up to the present the losses from mine operations have not had much of an effect on the number of producers. It is generally understood, however, that many operators are nearing the end of their financial resources and that bankruptcy will be an important factor in helping the competitive situation in the future.

During 1928 and 1929 many mining companies were operating on a liquidating basis. They were earning operating expenses but not enough to cover reserves for depreciation and depletion. This permitted the companies to continue production without impairing their working capital. But during 1930 production of coal has been on an even less favorable basis.

Many accumulations of property and money, built up by a lifetime of endeavor to provide for the future comfort and protection of a family, are quickly dissipated or lost through the inexperience or folly of the very ones they were designed to protect.

And this happens in spite of existing means which, if properly employed, would conserve these estates.

To protect that which you may leave, it is essential that you make a will, definitely setting forth your intentions, and that you appoint an executor and trustee who can competently carry out its provisions.

This Company offers special facilities for such a service—and its resources and experience are a guarantee of sound and responsible administration.

Maid Is Questioned About Missing Pearls

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XXXVIII.

Connie's immediate faith that Duke Garson was a touchstone to which the story of the stolen pearls should be carried at once left her mother doubtful.

"Oh, I'm afraid—afraid we've made a frightful mistake about everything," she said unhappily. "It isn't the value of the pearls that is important—we can stand the loss. What upsets me is the thought that we've introduced a dangerous element into our home. Kitty—she deserves every pity, heaven knows—but we must face the fact that she came to us right out of the slums. And this man Garson—he came with her. We know practically nothing about what they are really like inside."

"That's because they are near your own age and you look at them with curiosity and sympathy," her mother pointed out. "But I'm afraid they aren't people like we are. Their childhood environment, their upbringing."

Tells Garson

"Of course I understand all that," Connie returned quickly, "but it's nonsense all the same, dear. More likely than not you've simply misplaced them. You go take another look for them and I'll talk to Mr. Garson."

Connie dressed quickly and went downstairs. This, for her, was a little early; neither Kitty nor Jim had yet appeared, but she found Garson outside gravely examining a flower bed. It developed that he had already had breakfast. Higgins had informed him that rarely the family or guests ate the morning meal all at the same time. As briefly as she could Connie told him of her mother's loss. He betrayed no excitement, but she was conscious of a concentration of his nerves.

"The question is what are we going to do? I concluded if we notify the police or the insurance company there will be a lot of undesirable publicity, I suppose."

"Yes, they'll demand the history of everybody in the house, and some of it will get in the papers," Garson told her. "Kitty's story might be revealed and you'd have to explain me, with my crooked reputation. Still, the usual thing is to notify the police, and perhaps you had better do it."

"But isn't there another way—can't you suggest what else we might do?" Connie asked him.

"I can't imagine—unless Higgins did it," she said helplessly. "But possibly someone from the outside stole into the house."

"No, almost certain it was an inside job—the work of someone staying under the roof," he assured her. "I might have done it myself, you know."

"Oh, it would have been perfectly simple. Remember, Higgins gave me the layout. I'm bound to be suspected, if not by you, then by your mother, and surely by the police. Why, I'm the ideal man, except for Higgins; he's even more logical, poor fellow. Still, I'm sure he didn't take your mother's pearls and I knew I didn't. Shall we talk to Higgins?"

Follows His Judgment

Once more she felt the sweep of his personality and the odd assurance that he was a solid rock in the midst of her insecurity. In the morning, now, the glamor of the previous night was changed but the attraction remained. Viewed in daylight, Duke Garson was, perhaps, a little less romantic, yet in compensation he had a quality of dependability that in a greater degree stilled her uncertainties. Without hesitation she was quite willing to follow his judgment.

"Before we talk to Higgins, hadn't we better make another search of your mother's room and be sure the pearls are gone?" he asked.

The search, however, revealed nothing. Garson had a talk with the butler, but Higgins, informed of the loss, protested his astonishment and innocence so convincingly that Garson believed him.

Maid Has Suspicion

Kitty and Jim Tracy appeared downstairs at nearly the same time and went to breakfast together. They had not yet been informed of the missing pearls. Connie, her mother and Garson went into the library and closed the door.

"For the present we can leave the chauffeur and gardener out of it," Garson told them both.

"They've been with me for years and I could swear to their honesty," Connie's mother said.

"And the cook?"

"Mrs. Lahey has worked for me since before my husband's death. No, I'd as soon suspect myself."

"That leaves Kitty and the maid. I've talked with Higgins. Might I have a chat with the maid?"

"Certainly."

The girl was summoned—a thin, pale creature with dim blue eyes and straw color hair—by name of Mary Smith. In her black service dress she was a skimpy figure, a daughter of a carpenter in a neighboring village. She had the aridness of the dried-up New England woman of a withering stock. At the age of 28 she had looked almost 10 years older. To Connie and her mother, Mary Smith, too, was beyond suspicion; for five years she had been in their employ and had performed her duty with a zeal of cleanliness and neatness. Almost a miraculous antithesis of slipshod service.

"Mary, Mrs. Calvert's pearl necklace has been stolen from her room," Garson told the girl. "Someone in the house took it. You knew where it was, and if we called in the police you would undoubtedly be under strong suspicion; you might even be arrested. Now, I don't want to frighten you, but I want you to help us out. It's possible you yielded to temptation and took them yourself; don't misunderstand—I'm merely saying it's possible. Temptation comes to all of us and sometimes we're not strong enough to resist. Now, if it so happens you did take Mrs. Calvert's pearls, it isn't too late for you to tell the truth and return them. You won't be arrested. On the other hand, if you are guilty it's only a question of time and you'll find out you most certainly will have to go to prison. What have you to say to us?"

The girl had stood listening with sullen, downcast eyes. When she spoke Garson was surprised at her self-possession.

"There's a lot of sense in what you've said, but you're picking on the wrong person," she said, in a dry voice. "The servants didn't steal them."

"Can you tell us who did, Mary?" Connie asked.

The girl's eyes looked straight at Connie and Garson, observing her, fancied he detected a faint hostility in her gaze.

"I've got my suspicion," Mary Smith said, "but, being only a servant, I'm going to keep my mouth shut."

DAILY TRUE STORY The Snickersnee

Chad was feeling quite well, thank you.

"Waiter," he said, "I speak French, but it is my own private brand. Therefore, if you do not understand English as it is maltreated in Gotham, Hoboken and points west, that is your hard luck."

"We would sup at yonder corner table. Bring bottle of Pommery, waiter." He turned to his friends. "While the Pommery is sitting itself on the ice in the bucket we shall harmonize—such ballads as 'the Lone Cowboy,' 'Sweet Adeline,' 'Steamboat Bill,' and Tosti's 'Goodbye'."

"One can but try."

"It's no use, Al," Marty declared. "They all do it. We tried to do it the first few months we were here. Chad will get accustomed to it."

"And listen, Chad," Dick Gilbert said, anxiously, "for Pete's sake go easy while you are getting accustomed to good liquor openly sold. If you get into any of your jams now your honored sire will ease us out of our jobs on the ground that it is our fault."

Chad Winslow had been sent over to become familiar with the foreign interests of his father's internationally known mechanical industry. His three friends had been there for a year or so. Chad, after the manner of many sons of rich but wise fathers, was learning the business from the ground up.

"Be your age, Gil," Chad answered. "Dad knows that I can get into a jam if I am quite alone in the midst of a desert!"

Dangerous Man

"Get an eyeful of the overstuffed Gallic shirt who is twisting his neck every few minutes to give me the fishy eye," Chad said, indicating a well-built Frenchman at the next table with friends. He had been turning to scowl at Chad a score of times, whenever Chad laughed loudly or hummed a few bars of some innocuous old song.

The Frenchman, Mons. Henri D'Estante, said loudly in French to his companions, "Another rowdy American, brainless and noisy."

Marty heard and glanced nervously at Chad to see if he had also heard, but he was occupied with watching the waiter pouring their Pommery. Marty knew that despite his joking, Chad understood and spoke French astonishingly well.

Just then John Selwin and his wife came in and took a table. Chad knew them well. His friends did not. They recognized Chad, who promptly got up and went over to greet them. He confessed that he was trying to drink Paris dry and, after a few words, he went back to his table.

Mrs. Selwin commented on the cleverness Chad had in dissembling, in emergency, when he had been too long at the wine.

Mr. Selwin left the room on some errand, and Chad noticed that the big Frenchman who had been glaring at him was now staring brazenly at Mrs. Selwin. It made him nervous. She moved slightly and tried to lower her skirt, for this was in the hey day of the very short skirt.

Marty got wise.

"We'll go to a livelier place," he said, hurriedly, fearing an outburst from Chad.

Challenged to Duel

The outburst came then, but rather calmly, for Chad. He caught the eye of Monsieur Henri D'Estante. And in excellent French Chad said to him, "Frog, keep your eyes front and off the American lady or I shall twist off your nose and thus perfect your otherwise monkey face!"

"Chad, stop—"

Al got no further for Monsieur Henri D'Estante arose from his chair and turned to Chad. He drew from his breast pocket a pair of white kid gloves and slapped Chad across the face.

He intended to draw himself up, puff out his chest and thus complete his insult to open the challenge. But it didn't work with Henry. Chad had him by the neck. Chad yanked the gloves from his hand. Chad rubbed the gloves in a reddish colored meat sauce before him and then rubbed the gloves across the face of Monsieur Henri D'Estante.

Marty, Al and Dick got Chad out of the place. They took him at once to his new quarters.

"Now you've done it!" Marty said.

"I would have done it if you hadn't finished. After I had smeared his face I was going to make him apologize to Mrs. Selwin. What made you butt in?"

"Sap," Al said, with the privilege of a college chum and regardless of the fact that Chad's father was his boss, "that guy was merely challenging you. One does no more than slap with the gloves. The challenge will follow."

The challenge did follow, the next forenoon. Two seconds came with the challenge.

"And ze weapon, monsieur?"

"I know all that rot about being disgraced," Chad murmured.

Chad waved them away.

"Tomorrow at dawn, any place you name. Snickersnee to be used until the death, or until one of us falls hors de combat."

At "six of the clock" the next morning Monsieur Henri D'Estante and his seconds and a doctor were on the "named spot."

Chad got out. He wore plus fours and a gay sweater shirt. Carefully he took out a large bundle from the car. The seconds came forward. Monsieur Henri stood within earshot.

"I have brought a pair of snickersnees," Chad said loudly, "because neither Monsieur Peeping Tom over there nor his seconds seemed to know what they were. Such ignorance is pitiful. Have a look at a fine pair of snickersnees!"

Chad unwrapped the queer bundle and exposed two scythes, with long, keen curved blades and crooked snaths.

"Gentlemen," Chad said, "a snickersnee, according to standard dictionaries, is any cutting implement. Having my choice, I select these. Monsieur Henri, take your choice!"

Father Pleased

Chad picked up one scythe and swung it viciously. Monsieur Henri backed away.

Monsier Henri's seconds explained that he, Monsier Henri, would be disgraced if he refused to fight. The snickersnee, it seemed, was a weapon of death, as is any sizeable cutting implement.

They went.

"An eye-opener, gentlemen," Chad said.

"A new drink I invented. I call it the 'snickersnee,'" Chad explained.

The New Administration

Gov. Pinchot Takes Office With Opportunity to Render the People of Pennsylvania Valuable Service.

A new era fraught with possibilities for weal or woe opens in Pennsylvania today with the retirement of John S. Fisher as Governor and the inauguration of Gifford Pinchot as his successor.

The Sun-Telegraph is confident that the new administration will take advantage of the opportunity now offered to render the people of the state valuable service.

The contest over the election of the president pro tem of the Senate aroused misgivings that the Governor and the Legislature would be at odds. Assurance has been given, however, by some of the senators who opposed Pinchot in that fight that they will not carry their antagonism to him to the point of opposing legislation sponsored by him if the legislation has merit. It is sincerely to be hoped that there will be no feud between the Senate and the Governor, but that they will co-operate for the welfare of Pennsylvania.

The first task of the new administration is to deal with the unemployment situation. It is gratifying to note that Gov. Pinchot has been studying the problem for months and is now prepared to act.

Stricter regulation of the public utilities and abolition of the coal and iron police system are other matters requiring attention.

It is to be hoped the Legislature, with the Governor's approval, will repeal the Blue Law of 1794, governing Sunday observance.

As he leaves office the Sun-Telegraph salutes Gov. Fisher. This newspaper has been in serious disagreement with him more than once, but is happy to acknowledge that his administration has brought many benefits to Pennsylvania.

Don't Blame the Water

Intestinal "Flu" Now Going Around In Pittsburgh Is Prevalent In Other Cities.

Since Pittsburgh's drinking water is taken from the rivers, which in this vicinity are practically nothing but open sewers, there is a natural tendency to suspect the water when new disease epidemics of an unusual kind break out. We still have in remembrance the frightful mortality from typhoid fever that impure drinking water inflicted on the city some years ago.

But the water is not responsible for the intestinal "flu" from which several thousand persons are now suffering. The disease is prevalent in Philadelphia, New York and Baltimore as well as Pittsburgh, and there is no doubt it is an infection.

Pittsburgh's water, purified by filtration, is exceptionally good, and careful tests which have just been made by the Department of Health have failed to show the slightest evidence that it causes illness.

Certain Philadelphia physicians have expressed the opinion that worry and undernourishment, due to industrial conditions, have made it easy for intestinal influenza to gain headway. That may or may not be true.

Dr. C. B. Maits, Pittsburgh's director of public health, says fatigue, a cold, exposure, undernourishment and worry may lower body resistance. They are accordingly to be avoided.

House Cleaning Needed

Action by Congress Is Necessary to Rid the United States of Undesirable Aliens.

Congress is guilty of indefensible neglect of duty in failing to provide for the swift deportation of all undesirable aliens.

Most of these undesirables have been driven out by other countries, just as a house cleaning drives vermin from one house to another.

America urgently needs a house cleaning that will rid the country of these undesirables and protect the country against their return.

America urgently needs stronger deportation laws, more strictly interpreted and more sternly enforced. That will get rid of some of the undesirable aliens. That will start the house cleaning.

Four hundred thousand aliens are illegally residing here today, according to the latest estimates. Every one of these undesirables broke the law to get in and defies the law by refusing to get out.

Of these 400,000 illegal residents, Secretary Doak finds that only 100,000 can be deported under existing law, even when the law is strictly interpreted and effectively enforced.

Furthermore, not one of these 400,000 illegal residents, under sentence of imprisonment, can be deported until the termination of the punishment because the immigration act of March 4, 1924, specifically forbids it.

As a result of this utterly foolish prohibition, convicted aliens are adding to the awful congestion of our jails and living off of our taxpayers.

Congress cannot plead ignorance as an excuse for its failure to act. The necessity for stronger deportation laws has been repeatedly urged upon the Congress by the executive branch of the government:

In his last annual message, President Hoover said:

"I urge the strengthening of our deportation laws so as to more fully rid ourselves of criminal aliens. Furthermore, thousands of persons have entered the country in violation of the immigration laws. The very method of their entry indicates their objectionable character, and our law-abiding foreign-born residents suffer in consequence. I recommend that the Congress provide methods of strengthening the government to correct this abuse."

Senator Davis, of Pennsylvania, whose long and excellent service as secretary of labor entitles him to speak with authority, has repeatedly told the Congress how this abuse can be corrected.

His successor as secretary of labor, Mr. Doak, has just recommended to Congress five specific changes in existing laws to facilitate the deportation of all undesirable aliens.

Congress has all the facts. What Congress needs is the courage to face the facts and follow where they lead.

With millions of American citizens unemployed, the very least that Congress can do to relieve this serious situation is to make it possible for the federal government legally and swiftly to deport every undesirable alien who broke the law to get here and breaks the law by staying here.

Either these 400,000 undesirables are holding jobs which American citizens urgently need and to which they have every right, or these undesirables are accepting aid which our own citizens urgently need and to which they have a prior claim.

For the continuance of this disgraceful situation the inaction of Congress is chiefly to blame.

WHY DOES NOT CONGRESS ACT?

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Jan. 20—The opening of a new five and ten-cent store these days has taken on a musical show hoop-la. It brings out an entire neighborhood in a furore of excitement. Extra police often have to be called. And an ambulance stands by.

The doors open promptly at 9 a. m., but by 8 sidewalks in front are bulging with a jostling crowd of bargain hunters. Many unusual values are offered at a premiere and souvenirs are given away. There are clowns to amuse the children.

A huge orchestra renders popular selections and in instances the management secures the presence of a movie or stage star or a prize fight celebrity. The whole thing has the expert touch of a professional stage director. Many come in limousines.

Sales girls are beautified to a Tiffany polish. Floorwalkers are in cutaways and boutonniered. The opening I attended on upper Broadway featured a special sale in step-ins. Lavender and pink things were selling like hot cakes at 10 cents a copy.

The perfume counter, too, had a big crush. The favored scent was put up in atomizers and sold for a dime. On opening day many articles are priced far below cost to bring in the crowds for a look-around. Once inside few resist a whack at picking up an armload of doo-dads.

Next to the growth of the red-fronted 5 and 10—there are four on 5th avenue now—the greatest mercantile phenomenon in New York is the drugless drug store. One of the largest in Times Square does not sell a single patented medicine or fill a prescription. Yet is always packed.

* * *

An amusing touch to the 5 and 10 opening was offered by an early morning drunk all dressed up and no place to go. After lurching around various counters he finally buttonholed a floorwalker and hiccuped: "What have you in flowers better than a silly orchid?"

A day before the departure the servant, a trifle embarrassed, sought out Barton and temporized: "I sho' would like to go with you all but I'm plum frightened about crossing smack over that rough ocean. Isn't there some way I could just ease around the edges, kinda like?"

Twenty years of knocking around Broadway as a press agent has not disillusioned Harry Reichenbach. "I can," he confesses naively, "look upon a table d'hote chicken croquette with no suspicion whatever."

Fanny Ward is still to be seen where the pleasure seekers gather, especially at benefits. And this has been a winter of benefits. She confesses to being "past 60" yet remains one of the perky robins of life, winging from New York to Paris and back to Palm Beach. She has the form of a girl of 20, affects a youngish bob and skips about like a bubbling graduate. Her voice is a bit strident and her hands suggest maturer years, but otherwise she upholds her theatrical billing of the "eternal flapper."

* * *

The most youthful looking man for his years it seems to me is Charles King, the actor. I do not know his precise age, but I applauded him in vaudeville when I was in short pants and many think I'm ripe for the ether cone. He has the joyous vigor, clear complexion and jaunty swagger of the collegiate.

* * *

Yet somehow I'd as soon look my years. I have a wholesome enthusiasm and respect for even the valetudinarianism of old age. There is more fun in the chimney corner rocker than most suspect. Youth is mostly headaches and regrets. I'd rather be the droning house-fly than the stinging young hornet any day. Me and that 156-year-old Turk, what's his name!

A SELF-RECREATING UNIVERSE

By Archibald Henderson

The world of physical theorists is seriously divided upon a question which has both far-reaching philosophical and theological implications. It is a question of the most universal character, dealing with the formation, carrying on any possible annihilation of the universe. It is a problem something like unscrambling an omelet or putting Humpty Dumpty together again.

Science tells us that the world we know, certainly our own galaxy, is disintegrating. The sun and the stars are gradually breaking down, mass being transformed into radiant energy which streams out throughout all space. Is any building process contemporaneously, simultaneously, going on, to offset the fully demonstrated disintegrative process observed on every hand?

To many philosophers, theologians and even scientists, there is something horrible, even diabolic, in the thought that the universe is ultimately foredoomed to dissolution. Even Einstein himself once said that the disintegration of the universe through radiation was repugnant to him.

This is particularly so in the case of all philosophers who identify God with Process, the Creator with the Created. If a deity identified with the universe itself, possesses the attribute of eternal life, this automatically disposes of the notion that the material universe will ultimately suffer a heat death, and resolve itself into a pale glow of low power radiation.

This, however, is not the scientific mode of approach to the problem. The scientist seeks conclusive evidence, in the material universe itself, that it is a sort of cosmic perpetual motion machine.

If the sun, planets and stars under our immediate observation are gradually losing weight, mass, heat and energy, may it not be true that a contrary process is taking place elsewhere in the universe? As the cosmos breaks down in one part of the universe, may it not be building itself up in some other part?

R. A. Millikan, the American physicist, has found within very recent years some plausible evidence for upholding the latter view. The cosmic rays, which come to us apparently from the deeper recesses of inter-stellar space, indicate that they are formed, not from the disintegration of elements, but from the formation of one element out of another element.

The energy of the cosmic ray is precisely 10 times that of the hardest gamma ray, which emanates from radium. This is the figure shown by Ashton, the Cambridge physicist, for the energy liberated from the formation of helium out of hydrogen.

Says Millikan: "If atom formation out of hydrogen is taking place all through space, as it seems to be doing, it may be that the hydrogen also is somehow being replenished there from the only form of energy that we know to be all the time leaking out from the stars to the inter-stellar spaces, namely, radiant energy." Here is perhaps a little of experimental finger-pointing in the direction of a Creator still on the job.

Against Prohibition

Dr. Hibben, President of Princeton University.

Dr. Abbott, Head Master of the Lawrenceville School.

Dr. Hopkins, President of Dartmouth College.

THESE THREE LEADING AMERICAN EDUCATORS DEAL WITH THOUSANDS OF YOUNG MEN AND BOYS. THEY KNOW HOW PROHIBITION WORKS AND WHAT IT DOES, AND THEY ARE AGAINST IT.

No Prohibitionist, and certainly no intelligent citizen, can lightly ignore the fact that three such men as those above, the presidents of two universities and the head of one of the greatest preparatory schools in the United States, all oppose Prohibition as a public evil.

All three agree that Prohibition, promoting the illicit sale of whisky, encouraging contempt for the Constitution and for law, is a calamity and a disaster.

The opinion of these important American educators is based on wide experience. They deal with thousands of young men and boys, and know what problems Prohibition has created, that were unknown before the Eighteenth Amendment and the Volstead Law were adopted.

They know what happens in colleges and schools, and in the neighborhood of colleges and schools. They also know, from the boys and young men whose confidence they have, what Prohibition has done to the home.

It would be interesting to know whether the Wickersham Committee, solemnly discussing Prohibition, has ever asked the opinion of these three men, or of any of them.

If you wanted to know about sheep you would ask sheep farmers, shepherds, not old ladies that never came within half a mile of a sheep.

If anybody wants to know what Prohibition has done in the United States, what demoralization and contempt for law it has created, what its effect is on young boys and men and the coming generation, such men as these three should be consulted and THEIR ADVICE SHOULD BE TAKEN.

Dr. Abbott, head master of Lawrenceville, whose school this year has been chosen, in a test at Harvard University as the outstanding preparatory school of the United States for 1930, has written a book: "The Boy Today," that fathers and mothers are advised to read.

This book, published by the Fleming H. Revell Company, of New York City, describes forcefully the influences brought to bear upon the boys and young men, in this age of hypocrisy and contempt for law, this age of bootleg crime and cynicism forced upon the nation by Prohibition. Dr. Abbott writes:

"A splendid boy once said to me: 'You know while the fathers drink, the boys will drink.'"

Millions of fathers, unfortunately, set before their children an example of lawlessness.

And millions of children in the United States have learned to drink whisky under Prohibition that never would have learned that vice without Prohibition.

All three of these men, needless to say, are total abstainers, strict observers of the law. They believe it unwise, harmful, but, as a matter of course, set the example of obedience to it.

Such men as they, and not the unreasoning fanatics, should be heard by those that make the laws for the United States.

He's sure he works just as hard as other fellows—harder than a lot of them. No one can say he's lazy. Most fellows crab about overtime—but he's willing to work an extra hour any day and be good-natured about it.

He pays his debts, too. A lot of fellows like to skin out of obligations, but Dan doesn't. He's absolutely honest. You couldn't tempt him to lie. And he's clean and decent. Not a bad habit. Smokes a few cigarets—but what of that? As for girls—he's gone with the same one for eight years. But they can't be married because he isn't able to get ahead. And, to save his life he can't tell why.

Dan's body doesn't like to get up in the morning. It would like to stay in a warm bed. But Dan, because he detests laziness, won't let his body stay in bed. He makes it get up and get on the job. He should do the same thing with his mind, but he doesn't.

Dan's mind, also, hates to get up—likes to stay in a warm bed. It likes to stay cuddled soft and snug beneath old notions. It hates to face new ideas, new situations. It hates to be hurried or bothered. And Dan, who won't coddle his body, coddles his mind.

Dan is thinking the same thoughts that he thought when he was a little boy, because it's easy to think old thoughts and hard to think new ones. And when he meets new thoughts, new situations, new problems, Dan's mind slides away from them. And Dan lets his mind slide away and crawl off in a corner and get comfortable, like a fat, lazy slug.

Dan doesn't need to let his mind slide away. He could control his mind just as he controls his body. He could kick his mind out of its warm bed and make it get out and hustle. But he doesn't know that. He thinks that minds can't be changed. He thinks that we must accept our minds, just as they are and that it's useless to try and change them.

That's wrong, of course. Minds can't be changed and trained exactly as bodies can be changed and trained. When Dan was a baby his legs went slowly, uncertainly. He crawled, toddled. But as he grew older he trained his legs to move quicker, faster, more certainly. It wasn't easy—learning to walk, learning to run. Sometimes he slipped and fell and bumped his head. Sometimes his legs ached until he cried. But he kept on. Today his legs move as fast as any normal man's. But his mind doesn't move as fast as any normal man's. He has never trained it to move.

Your body isn't lazy, but how about your mind?

Your body moves fast—but how fast does your mind move?

How quickly will your mind meet a new situation—how willing is your mind to tackle a new idea? Your body is awake—but is your mind asleep?
